PREFACE

The Passover festival is the most outstanding event in the Samaritan calendar and its predominant feature, the slaughter and sacrifice of the paschal lamb, is the last vestige of the Biblical sacrificial rite, which scholars believe to have been the adaptation of an earlier ritual, dating back to the very dawn of humanity. The present work is an attempt to present a comprehensive and coherent rendering of the liturgy, which accompanies the performance of the sacrifice, and of the Feast of Unleavened Bread, which follows it. The basis of this translation, and the starting point of the investigations of which it is the outcome, is the Hebrew text of the Passover prayers contained in Prof. A.E. Cowley's The Samaritan Liturgy. These texts have been re-examined in the light of some of the Mss. available to Prof. Cowley and of others that have since come to hand. Prof. Cowley in the introduction to his work, has pointed to some of the difficulties involved in translating Samaritan Hebrew—particularly their rhymed hymns—which has been developed in seclusion along distinctive lines as an artificial language solely for liturgical use. The research amongst the additional Mss. has been of assistance in working out an intelligible translation of some of the difficult passages, though others have still been found amenable to only a tentative rendering. The variant Mss.
readings are furnished together with this translation in the form of footnotes, irrespective of whether they have been taken into account or not.

The study of the text has also been accompanied by a wider study of the theological concepts of the Samaritans in general and of their Passover ritual in particular as well as of various eye-witness accounts of the sacrificial ceremony. As a result of this, certain features of the liturgy and of the sacrificial ceremonial seem to be particularly associated, and to assume a significance which suggests to the writer, that the Samaritan Passover sacrifice has preserved elements of an ancient Blood Covenant ritual, which scholars believe to have been the antecedent of the Biblical Passover sacrifice. This theory is fully developed in the opening chapters of the introduction to this work, which deal with the origin and significance of the Passover and particularly in the chapter on the principal differences between the Jewish and Samaritan Passover rituals. The introduction also describes the development of the liturgy, relating it to its general historical background and that of its authors, concerning whom all available data is likewise given. The various types of liturgical expression occurring in the Passover series are analysed and described in detail as well as the unique form of abbreviated Biblical reading known as the KATEF and the antiphonal readings, none of which can be comprehended from the text as presented by
The analysis of the various elements of the liturgy makes it possible to discern the pattern according to which the service is arranged. Thus in the introductory chapter on the Order of the Service we see that what ostensibly is an endless succession and repetition of phrases and terms, is actually a symmetrical and methodical order of service, basically uniform throughout the series, as illustrated in the appended tables.

Having established the basic order of the service, it is then compared with the Sabbath order of service and parallel features and usages discussed. Comparison with Jewish ritual, both in content and in form, is also made and certain common elements - pointing to their comparative antiquity - are noted. The study of the content of the liturgy is further developed in the introductory chapters on the Theological Concepts reflected therein. The various references are detailed and related to their particular expression in the Samaritan creed.

It has occasionally been necessary to dissent from Cowley's method of presentation of the liturgy. It has been found that, on two occasions, entirely separate services have been grouped together under a common heading and that he has omitted one service completely. For the sake of convenience, however, Cowley's service headings are maintained in the translation with only the addition of a numeral to indicate the separate services that have been established. Similarly, the service omitted by Cowley has been given in the appendix so as to maintain the general character of the work. In addition to the usual pagination, references to Cowley's page numbers are given throughout in the body of the English text so that the reader can see at a glance the Hebrew original on which the translation is based. The aforementioned observations, on Cowley's arrangement of the services, are supplemented in the final introductory chapter by others, on the authenticity of the text itself. Apart from these comparatively few shortcomings, the text presented by Cowley has been proved to offer a sound basis for these studies and a reliable and well-nigh exhaustive collection of the Samaritan liturgical compositions. In producing his two volumes of Samaritan Liturgy and his other Samaritan studies, Prof. Cowley has made a vital, if not the greatest, contribution to the scholastic endeavours to understand the ritual and beliefs of the most ancient Jewish sect - the Samaritans, since their re-discovery in the 16th century. In making this acknowledgement the writer also expresses his gratitude to Dr. J. Bowman, Head of the Department of Semitic Languages and Literatures at Leeds University, and the members of his staff, who have given invaluable advice and guidance on the preparation of this work.

INTRODUCTION.

THE PASSOVER.

ITS ORIGIN AND SIGNIFICANCE.

Scholars appear to be virtually in agreement in regarding the Biblical Passover rite as the adaptation, by the ancient Hebrews, of a ceremonial dating back to the dawn of civilization, to serve as a commemoration of events in their early history. Thus Hastings, in citing the various opinions that have been formulated regarding the origin of the Passover rite, says, "It is probable that we have here another instance in which Israel's religion takes up, transforms and appropriates an existing institution", whilst a contemporary writer, upon the theme of sacrifice in early religions, says, "Pesach is one of the oldest religious festivals in the world". In summarizing his description and analysis of the Passover rite, the same writer concludes, "The origin of the pesach, like the origin of many religious rites and ceremonies, will never be known. For more than twenty five centuries it has been continued in memory of the simple fact that the Jewish people owe their very existence not to their own power and virtue, but to the power of Yahweh upon which they will continue to depend, convinced that if they neglect Yahweh, they will pass into the oblivion which has swallowed all other ancient peoples of western culture. If this assertion is true of the significance of the Passover for the Jewish people, it is even more so for the Samaritans. In Jewish ritual the sacrificial element of the Passover festival has been suspended, since the destruction of the Temple, remaining but a memory perpetuated by the home ceremonial of Passover-eve. Furthermore the festival itself appears to have yielded pride of place in the Jewish year to the festivals of the New Year and the Day of Atonement, which now reign supreme in the Jewish Calendar. For the Samaritans, however, Passover is still the most outstanding event in the year. Passover is regarded in Samaritan teaching as one of the Seven covenants between God and His people and the sacrifice is still performed by them, in accordance with their ancient traditions, upon their sacred Mount Gerizim. Whereas for the Jews, as Yerkes says, the Passover is a 'memory' and a symbol of the power of God, by whom they have been saved from passing into oblivion, for the Samaritans, the Passover sacrifice has been an actual and a practical means to this end. It has served to keep them together amongst themselves as a coherent community and what is more, since the re-discovery of the Samaritans in the sixteenth century, the Passover probably more than any other feature of their life and ceremonial, has excited the interest of the western world and attracted the attention of the scholars, as the last remaining vestige of the ancient Temple ceremonial which features so lists these as follows:

(1) The covenant of Noah (Gen. ix.14).
(2) The covenant of Abraham concerning circumcision
   (Gen. xvii.9-14).
(3) The covenant of the Sabbath (Ex. xxxi. 12-17).
(4) The covenant of the two tables of the ten commandments
   (Ex. ix. 2-7)
(5) The covenant of salt (Num. xviii.19)
(6) The covenant of the Passover (Ex. xii. ff.)
(7) The covenant of the priesthood (Num. xxv.12,13).

They are likewise listed by J.A. Montgomery, The Samaritans, p. 232, who says that the doctrine of the Seven Covenants is frequently referred to in the Epistles.
This covenant element of the Passover is probably the reason for their insertion of the key word in the KEFARIM of the Passover series (see introductory article on the KEFARIM) whereby the covenant theme is repeatedly emphasised in their Biblical renderings. This covenant aspect probably has also a bearing upon their ancient custom of sprinkling the blood of the Passover sacrifice upon participants in the ritual as will be seen in the sequel.
prominently in the rise of Christianity. Numerous eye witness accounts of the Samaritan Passover ceremonial have been furnished by those who have attended the sacrifice often at great risk to themselves, owing to the unrestful state of the country in earlier times. Hence the Samaritans in preserving the Passover sacrificial rite have ensured thereby their own survival, and also, that the sacrifice which inaugurates the "One of the oldest religious festivals in the world" should probably be the last sacrificial rite to survive in the world.

1. George Buchanan Gray, Sacrifice in the Old Testament, p. 383 states, "As in the Old Testament, so also in the New Testament, Passover is mentioned more frequently than any other festival of the Jews. But the mere frequency of reference in the New Testament is not the reason that Passover has left a deeper mark than other Jewish festivals on Christian terminology and Christian thought. This must rather be sought in the fact that the supreme acts of our Lord's life coincided with the Passover season - a fact which at once accounts for the great majority of the uses of the term, 'Passover' and of the explicit references to the festival in the New Testament. These explicit references number 31."

2. Yerkes, ib. p. 82-83.
Although, as stated, scholars are inclined to regard the Passover as the adaptation of a sacrificial rite of great antiquity, there are divergent views as to the precise nature and purpose of the antecedent sacrifice upon which the Biblical Passover is based. Some are inclined to see in the Passover a seasonal significance as a celebration of the spring solstice or a celebration of the entrance of the sun into the Zodiacal sign Aries. For others the Passover has a propitiatory significance, serving as a means of removing the impurity of the old year. Others see in the Passover a combination of both these elements, the paschal lamb for atonement and the unleavened bread a trace of the haste of the early harvest. These two distinct features of the festival, the lamb and the unleavened bread have further prompted the suggestion that the Biblical Passover represents the combination of two distinct, earlier festivals. The Passover itself connoted a pastoral feast celebrating the birth of the lambs, whilst the Feast of Unleavened Bread was originally an agricultural observance. A chronological sequence has been perceived in the process whereby these two elements were combined as one festival. Thus it is suggested that in Egypt, the Israelites, as a pastoral people, sacrificed firstlings in spring and the refusal to permit a general gathering caused the Exodus. When the Israelites settled in Canaan they found an agricultural festival coinciding in date with Passover and accordingly associated it with it. The suggestion that the Passover sacrifice is a trace of an earlier annual sacrifice of the firstlings of the flock, is further strengthened by the Biblical account (Gen. iv.4) of Abel's bringing of the firstlings of his flock and also by the fact that the Biblical law (Ex. xiii.12f.) sanctifying every firstling beast to the Lord, is directly associated with the Passover story. It is suggested that this original custom explains the remarkable choice made in the selection of the smiting of the firstborn as the final plague. Because Pharaoh prevented the bringing of this offering which was due, God took, instead, the firstborn of the Egyptians.

1. Jacobs and Box, ibid, in the name of Robertson-Smith. In addition to the views quoted, mention must also be made of the view of J. Spencer, De legisbus Hebraeorum (1685), quoted by Jacobs and Box, that the Passover was instituted as a practical protest against the Egyptian worship of Apis.

2. Cf. Hastings, ibid. p. 688, where also is mentioned the view of Wellhausen, that the Passover represents a trace of an early rite connected with human sacrifice. Gray, ibid. p. 364, also mentions the theory that the "Paschal victims were the firstlings of sheep or goats substituted for a yet earlier annual sacrifice to Yahweh of all the new firstborn children of the year".

Of particular significance, however, are the views which see in the Passover the adaptation of an ancient form of Blood Covenant, of a piacular nature, in which the blood ritual of sprinkling on the doorposts secures the house from all harm in times of pestilence. This view is supported by a passage in the Book of Jubilees, xlix.15, which states, "And no plague shall come upon them in this year to kill and destroy them, if they observe the Passover at its season according to its ordinance." In order to bring out the full significance of this view, in relation to certain distinctive

1. Jacobs and Box, ibid. and Hastings, ibid. p. 689.
Buchanan Gray, Sacrifice in the Old Testament, p. 356, asserts that the daubing of blood on the lintel and doorposts of the Israelite houses, mentioned in the Exodus story, bears witness to the existence of "A long-continued custom or ritual of indefinite antiquity, but still practised when the story first took shape and form". On page 358 ff., he cites various analogous primitive customs amongst Oriental peoples, in which a blood ritual is performed for purposes similar to those mentioned here.
features of the Samaritan Passover, and also in order to clarify the notable differences between the Samaritan and Jewish Passover, it will be necessary, at this juncture, to present a brief summary of (i) the Biblical data concerning the Passover, (ii) the Jewish usage as evolved in accordance with Rabbinic tradition and (iii) the Samaritan procedure as described in the various eye-witness accounts mentioned previously.

BIBLICAL DATA.

1. The principal sources of the Biblical laws of the Passover sacrifice are as follows:

Ex. xii. 3–11:

The sacrifice is to be selected on the tenth day of the first month. It is to be slaughtered and eaten at home on the evening (בֵּין הָעַרְצִים) of the fourteenth day of the first month. The blood of the sacrifice is to be smeared with hyssop, on the door posts and lintel of the house. The sacrifice, which must be roasted - not raw or boiled - must be eaten with unleavened bread and bitter herbs. None of the sacrifice should remain until the morning; that which does remain should be burnt. It is to be eaten in haste with loins girded, feet shod and staff in hand.

1. Incidental mention is also made of the Passover Festival in Ex. xxiii. 15; Ex. xxxiv. 18; Lev. xxiii. 5; Num. xxviii. 16:
Verse 14, states that the feast presumably as previously described, is to be kept "Throughout your generations".

Verse 43f. No alien may partake, servants must be circumcised, the sacrifice may not be taken out of the house and no bone may be broken.

Num. ix. 2-14:

Passover to be made on 14th of the first month, or of the second month, if unclean or afar off. It is to be eaten with unleavened bread and bitter herbs and none should be left until the morning. No bone should be broken in it.

Deut. xvi. 1-8:

Passover to be made in the "Month of Abib... in the place which the Lord shall choose". Leavened bread is prohibited and unleavened bread enjoined to be eaten with it. None of the sacrifice should remain until the morning. The sacrifice is slaughtered 'at even' (קָטְבָּה).

THE JEWISH PASSOVER.

The Jewish Passover rite, as it finally evolved, required the sacrifice to be taken and slaughtered in the Temple court, where all other KODASHIM were slaughtered, on the eve of the Passover, on the afternoon of the 14th of Nisan, after the Tamid sacrifice had been killed, i.e. at three o'clock, or in case the eve of the Passover fell on Friday, at two. The blood of the sacrifice was sprinkled by the priest upon the altar. The animal was skinned in the Temple precincts and the usual fatty portions were offered by the priest upon the altar. Even if the eve of the Passover fell on Sabbath, the lamb was slaughtered, the blood sprinkled and the entrails removed and cleaned and offered on the altar; for these four ceremonies in the case of the paschal lamb, were exempt from the prohibition against working on the Sabbath. When the sacrifice was completed and the victim ready for roasting, each one carried his lamb home, except when the eve of Passover fell on a Sabbath, in which case it might not be taken away and they were required to wait in the vicinity of the Temple until the termination of the Sabbath. At home it was roasted on a spit of pomegranate-wood. No bones might be broken either during the cooking or during the eating. The lamb was eaten along with prescribed portion of unleavened bread and bitter herb as part of the evening family banquet known as the SEDER. The sacrifice had to be consumed entirely that same evening, nothing being allowed to remain overnight. According to Rabbinic enactment the time of eating was further limited till midnight. All leavened bread was removed from their domains prior to the slaughtering of the sacrifice, in accordance with a prescribed routine beginning with the search for leaven on the previous evening.

THE SAMARITAN PASSOVER.

1 The whole community takes up residence on Mount Gerizim prior to the time of the sacrifice. The sacrifice is slaughtered at sunset. 2 A number of lambs, sufficient for the worshippers present, are 3 selected from those born in the preceding Tishri. Some hours before the sacrifice two fires are started in the trenches, at the sacrificial site; in one of them a cauldron is heated for boiling the water necessary to fleece the lambs, in the other a mass of fuel is kindled to make the oven for roasting the lambs. Coincidental with the starting of the fire the service begins, and this is kept up until the lambs are put into the oven; it

1. This description is based on the outline given by Montgomery, The Samaritans, p. 38f. which is a succinct summary of the descriptions given by the various eye-witnesses he mentions.

2. If the 14th Nisan is a Sabbath, the feast takes place the day before. The functions are then performed earlier so that all may be over before the advent of the Sabbath. If the feast falls on Sunday, the preparations may not begin until after the termination of the Sabbath, which is reckoned from sunset to sunset.

3. J. Mills, Three Months' Residence at Nablus, p. 249 states that the sacrificial lambs are bought on the tenth of the month. This coincides with H. Petermann, Reisen Im Orient, p. 287, who adds, as here, that the lambs must be born on the previous Tishri. consists in the reading of the \textsuperscript{1}Passover lections from Exodus, and ancient Passover hymns. A certain number\textsuperscript{2} of representative men render the antiphons. In the service all turn towards the Kibla, the top of Gerizim. At sunset the sacrifice takes place, not on an altar but in a ditch; the throats of the lambs are deftly cut by a

1. Presumably a reference to Passover Evening Service I, C. p. 157 and the reading from Ex. xii.1ff. as directed in the Rubric p. 158. Stanley, "The Samaritan Passover" The Jewish Church, part I, Appendix III, p. 514, testifies that they recite 'prayers or praises chiefly turning on the glories of Abraham and Isaac'. This is presumably a reference to the 'KATEF of the Meritorious Ones', occurring in Evening Service I, the translation of which is given in our text.

2. Petermann, Reisen Im Orient, p. 237, states that twelve men - possibly representing the twelve tribes of Israel - recited alphabetical poem of Marqah interspersed amongst readings of Ex. xii - xiv. Moulton, "The Samaritan Passover" The Journal of Biblical Literature, vol. XXII p. 189, states that he could not distinguish twelve men detailed for this purpose. The alphabetical poem referred to is presumably 'Welcome O festival' the text of which is given, C. p. 114, reference to this alternate reading at the sacrifice is made, C. p. 158 note 4. A similar procedure is followed in Evening Service II and in the Passover Morning Service when the hymn 'O assembly' is recited, C. p. 162.
young man, hot by the priest. The ritual inspection then takes place, the sinews of the legs are withdrawn, the offal removed, and the lambs fleeced by the aid of the hot water. The lambs are then spitted with a long stick run through their length, and are conveyed to the heated oven, over which they are laid, and then the oven is sealed with a covering of turf. The roasting takes three or four hours, during which an intermittent service is held.

1. Stanley, ibid., stated that this was done by six young men dressed in white and evidently trained for the purpose. Mills, Three Months' Residence at Nablus, p. 253, states that the youths, dressed in blue, threw the lambs and one of them did the killing.

Mills, ibid., p. 254, states that the young men 'dipped their fingers in the blood, and marked a spot on the foreheads and noses of the children. The same was done to some of the females, but to none of the male adults'. Stanley too, ibid., p. 516, makes mention of this adding that, 'A few years ago, the red stain was placed on all'; the present usage he says, is preserved as an emblem of the whole. Macewen, Good Words p. 50f. also refers to the turbaned man who 'ran swiftly out of the Tabernacle with a bowl of blood and handful of hyssop, and passed from tent to tent, scoring the top of each tent with a deep blood stain'. T. Bull, Studies in Oriental Social Life, p. 371, also testifies that the children's foreheads and the tents were marked with blood. He says, p. 382, that the blood over the doorway is deemed a protection to all who were within that consecrated home. Moulton, "Das Samaritanische Passahfest", Zeitschrift des Deutschen Palästina-Vereins, Band xxvii, p. 194, and "The Samaritan Passover", The Journal of Biblical Literature, Vol. XXII p.187, states he saw no signs of marking of the tents or children with the blood of the sacrifice, during his observations in the year 1903. In the former reference he quotes the Samaritan high priest Jakob who said that the rite had been discontinued five or six years previously because of the 'Missbühlung' of the Mohammedans.

After this the lambs are withdrawn, the congregation have their loins girt up and their staves in their hands (Ex. xii.11) a short service ensues, and when it is over, they "eat in haste" falling ravenously upon the coal-like pieces of flesh, devouring it and taking platters in the tents. When all the flesh is consumed, the bones, scraps, wool are carefully gather up, and thrown into the still smouldering fire, until all is consumed, "so that none of it remain till the morrow". After the meal ablutions take place, and the ceremony is concluded with further prayers and chants.

On the 13th of the month a careful search is made for all leaven which is scrupulously removed, and from the 14th day till the 21st no leaven may be eaten. The 21st is the great day of this feast of Unleavened Bread; on it they make pilgrimage to Gerizim, reading through the book of Deuteronomy on the way and at the village of Makkada, where they finally halt.

1. Petermann, ibid., p. 239 states that the eating of the sacrifice is followed by the morning prayer which takes four hours. Moulton too, ibid., Zeitschrift p. 194 speaks of the lengthy morning prayer continuing after dawn.

2. The Service for the Feast of Unleavened Bread, C. p. 270 Petermann, ibid., p. 288 says that they read right through the Pentateuch, during the course of the night and the following day.
THE PRINCIPAL DIFFERENCES BETWEEN THE JEWISH AND SAMARITAN PASSOVER RITUALS.

Comparison of the foregoing Biblical sources reveals certain important differences between them which have a direct bearing on the development of the Jewish Passover Ritual and also form the basis of the differing Jewish and Samaritan procedures. Thus, whereas in Ex. xii., Passover is essentially a home ceremonial, the lamb is to be slaughtered and eaten in haste at home, accompanied by the sprinkling on the door post, in Deut. xvi the Passover is to be made in the place which the Lord shall choose - in the Jewish view - at Jerusalem. No mention is here made of the sprinkling upon the door-post or of the eating in haste. It must be observed, however, that both sources are in agreement that the slaughtering should take place at evening, Ex. xii expresses it וַיְהַלָּקֵץ נִּיְנֵי יָדָיו whilst Deut. xvi expressly says 'at even at the going down of the sun'. In the Jewish usage the two principal elements of the rite were separated, the slaughtering was at the Temple and the eating at home. The sprinkling on the doorposts had given way to the pouring out at the base of the altar. The Jewish tradition justified these departures by differentiating between the Egyptian Passover and the permanent Passover (אֶפְּרַע). The prescriptions made in Ex. xii were intended only, it was maintained, for the 'Feast of preparation' and were not to be perpetuated in the 'Feast of commemoration'. The permanent Passover assumed the full sanctity of a sacrifice and as such it was performed with the usual priestly and Temple rites. Like 'Peace offerings' and other sacrifices of that category, it was taken 'home' to be eaten, in the confines of Jerusalem.

Modern scholars consider Jewish usage to be the result of the Deuteronomic Reform. The centralization of worship required by Deuteronomy, and carried out by Josiah, applied likewise to the Passover. As a sacrifice the

1. Cf. Mishna, Pesahim ix.1., this differentiation applied also to the selection on the 10th Nisan, and the haste in dress and manner of eating which were intended only for the Egyptian Passover. The admission of those Levitically impure was also only for that one occasion. Gray, Sacrifice in the Old Testament p. 357, says, "In Ex. xii the distinction emphasized by the Rabbis between the Passover of (future) generations is, if not actually already present, at least not unnaturally suggested. Ex.xii. 1-13 contains the instructions for the observance of Passover in Egypt (vv.12,13), including the blood ritual (vv. 7,13); Ex. xii. 43-49 contains the permanent 'Ordinance of Passover' regulating the conditions under which sojourners among the people may eat Passover. In this section the ritual of eating the Passover is given, but no blood ritual."

Passover had to be slain and eaten in Jerusalem. As a natural consequence of this enactment the sprinkling on the doorposts became obsolete, for if the Passover were performed in Jerusalem, it would be impossible for those who were not permanent residents in the city, to perform the rite. "The blood of an animal slain in Jerusalem at sundown on one day and eaten in Jerusalem the same night could not be applied to the houses of those who were not free till next morning to leave the city and return to their homes in the country. Deuteronomy does not definitely forbid the practice of the ancient custom, and perhaps it was only gradually that under the influence of the new law it fell into complete disuse".

Buchanan Gray, discerns three stages leading up to the usage as it finally evolved. "In the earliest times" he says, "Wherever exactly the Paschal victim was slain, the Paschal meal was eaten at home, in the house of each Hebrew householder; later, after the Reformation of Josiah, the Paschal meal was eaten, as the Paschal victim was slain, within the Temple area at Jerusalem; later still, certainly by the first century A.D., the victim was slain in the Temple enclosure, its blood and fat were conveyed to the altar, but the meal was eaten by small companies in the houses of Jerusalem". "The custom of eating not in houses but in the sanctuary appears to have prevailed among the Jews down to the second century B.C., for it is clearly enforced in Jubilees xlix.16ff., but by the first century A.D., probably as a result of the vastly increased numbers coming to Jerusalem for Passover, the meal was taken in the houses of Jerusalem".

2. Ibid. p. 371f. and again in the summary on p. 385.

The increase in and pressure of numbers is elsewhere offered, with reserve, by Gray as the cause of an apparent departure by Jewish usage from the literal

1. Ibid. p. 339.
2. The earliest reference to the earlier time of slaughtering is in the Book of Jubilees xlix.1, which, as stated, reflects the usage at a time when the number of celebrants of the Passover were few enough to be contained within the Temple precincts for the eating of the meal, it is because of this that doubt appears to be cast upon the suggested cause of the early timing of the slaughter of the sacrifice. The traditional explanation of the Jewish practice bases itself on the interpretation of the expression 'between the evenings' in Ex. xii., it is maintained that the first of the evenings referred to began either when the sun passed the meridian, or when it had sunk half-way from the meridian to the horizon, the second evening of the Biblical phrase being the actual sunset. Cf. Gray, ibid. p. 338, and Hastings, A Dictionary of the Bible, vol. III, p. 691.
Biblical precept. It has previously been observed, in passing, that both Ex. xii and Deut. xvi. seem to require that the slaughtering of the sacrifice should take place at sunset, yet in Jewish usage it was slain in the afternoon. It is, therefore, possible that the time of slaughtering, in Jewish usage, and the place of eating, were governed by the same external circumstances, the pressure of numbers which ultimately made it necessary to begin the slaughtering in the Temple earlier and to disperse the actual meal to the homes of Jerusalem.

It is readily conceivable that the pressure of circumstances, which operated in the case of the Jewish community, necessitating these important amendments of the Biblical statute, did not apply to the Samaritan community. Hence, in the light of the foregoing discussion the Samaritan usage is seen to be a practical implementation and synthesis of the Exodus and Deuteronomy Passover regulations, unhindered by the pressure of external circumstances such as seem to have compelled the Jews to modify their usage, introducing such notable changes in time and place. Unlike the Jews, the Samaritans normally slaughter at sunset, maintaining the more literal interpretation of the Biblical precept; they slaughter and eat at the 'chosen place' which for them, is Gerizim.

1. Cf. Gray, ibid. p.339. 'The numbers gathered to Shechem can never have been very great, and are now, of course, exceedingly small.'
Thus, unlike the Jewish Passover, which is a domestic 'family' rite, the Samaritan Passover is a communal gathering as would appear to be implied by Deut. xvi., and the Book of Jubilees xlix.16ff. The differences in the time of slaughtering appears likewise to have had its consequences in the differing time allotted for the eating of the sacrifice. In the Jewish rite, this begins at nightfall and ends according to Rabbinic enactment, at midnight, whereas in Samaritan usage it usually begins at about midnight concluding before dawn.

Maintaining their literal and complete implementation of the Biblical prescription for the Passover, the Samaritans select their sacrifices on the tenth day of Nisan and they also eat it in haste with loins girded etc., as directed in Ex. xii; they also, until modern times, sprinkled the blood upon the tents, set up as their temporary abodes for the duration of the Festival, upon Mount Gerizim. But in one important particular they appear to have surpassed the Biblical requirements, that is this

1. In view of the statements by Trumbull, "The Samaritan Passover" Studies in Oriental Social Life, p. 371, that the Samaritan Passover sacrifice is a 'continuation' of the ancient Jewish observance, is hardly tenable, and can only be accepted if qualified to mean that of the period of the Book of Jubilees.
in the daubing of people with the blood of the sacrifice, a practice which, we are told, was originally applied to all the members of the community and only latterly was limited to the children and some of the females and finally abandoned entirely about the turn of this century.

This non-Biblical habit, which now stands out clearly as a peculiar character of the Samaritan Passover, without parallel in Jewish usage at any known period, appears to be a strong indication that the Passover sacrifice is the adaptation of an earlier form of Blood Covenant or Ritual, as suggested with particular emphasis during the earlier review of the various theories regarding the antecedent of the Passover sacrifice. Gray, refers specifically to such rituals in which blood is applied to buildings and also to persons. The particular instance he cites, incidentally concerns a child and is, therefore, strongly reminiscent of the later Samaritan usage.

1. Cf. the various references given to eye-witness accounts in the note on the previous description of the 'Samaritan Passover', particularly Stanley, who states that the bloodstain was previously placed on all.

2. Ibid. p. 360-1. Cognisance must, however, be taken of the reference in Ex. xxiv.8, where Moses effects the Covenant between God and Israel by sprinkling blood upon the people. This may well be the origin of the Samaritan usage, particularly as the Passover is one of their seven covenants, XXII.

The haste with which the sacrifice is eaten, although of Biblical origin, appears, according to eye-witness accounts, to be of such intensity as to be strongly reminiscent of an Arab usage quoted by various scholars, whereby a camel was completely devoured, before dawn as a means of binding the participants in a common bond, by their absorption of part of the victim's life into themselves.

The foregoing distinctive features of the Samaritan Passover enhance the theory summarised by Gray as follows, "The double Paschal ritual of sprinkling the blood and eating the victim secured its main end, the security of the household, by a double method; the blood sprinkled without kept evil powers at bay, and the meal eaten within renewed the divine life of the inhabitants".

Whether or not the modern Samaritan has these purposes in mind - ostensibly his purpose is simply the fulfilment

1. Mills, Three Months' Residence at Nablus, p. 256, says "In less than ten minutes the whole, with the exception of a few fragments, had disappeared". A similar assertion is made by Stanley, The Jewish Church, part I, p. 519.

2. Gray, ibid., p. 369; Hastings, A Dictionary of the Bible, p. 686; Yerkes, Sacrifice in Greek and Roman Religions and Early Judaism; p. 81.
of the Biblical command — we can indeed say that the Samaritan usage is a distinct pointer to some earlier rite of great antiquity which, as indicated at the outset, is thought by some scholars to go back well nigh to the beginning of time.

Dr. Gray, speaking of the later significance of the Passover rite, says that it was "At once historical in character and eschatological. It appealed by symbol, exposition, and song to a great redemptive act in the past as the pledge of a great redemptive act in the future". It is indeed doubtful whether the modern Samaritan has in mind the ancient notions regarding the security of his household, but so much is certain, these historical and eschatological ideas are most prominent in the Passover rite. Contemplation of the Samaritan Passover liturgy bears ample testimony to the prominence of both these themes. Passover is an enduring memorial in the world, until after the world', it is the feast upon which 'He comforteth them'. It has profound mysteries known only to 'the intelligent ones, whose hearts are full of knowledge'. The redemption of the past is brought into direct relation with the anticipated redemption of the future,

1. As He delivered them, so may He deliver you', 'May He restore the 'favour' and erect the sanctuary'. They look forward to the time when 'disfavour' will be banished and they will ^2^ perform the Passover with rejoicing to the latter day'. They pray for the time when they will be able to make the ^3^ 'Passover in faithfulness in the days of favour'. They hope once again, on those occasions, to see the sanctuary, the holy place, the ark and all the sacred appurtenances. 'We will eat the Passover in joyful haste and we will bless the name of the Lord who giveth us this and we will seek His mercy for He is merciful and gracious'. Small wonder then that, as stated at the outset, the Passover is the greatest event in the Samaritan year and surely there is ample justification for the assertion that more than any other single feature the Passover has assured their survival throughout the ages!

THE LITURGY.

ITS AUTHORS AND ITS DEVELOPMENT.

The prayers of almost every religion and sect are an indication and reflection of its creed, its ideals, its hopes and its aspirations. The foregoing brief quotations are evidence that the Samaritan liturgy in general and its Passover prayers in particular, are no exception to the rule. But, before discussing the theological concepts embodied in the liturgy of the Passover cycle, it is necessary to present a brief historical summary of the authors of the liturgy, its growth and development, a description of its component parts and a comparative analysis of the arrangement and order of the various services.

The early history of the Samaritan sect is shrouded in the mist of ancient times. The references to them in the Scripture and the histories of the period, themselves the subject of conflicting theories amongst critical scholars, cast no light upon their ritual and mode of worship. The ravages wrought by Rome upon the Jewish community of Palestine were shared with even worse consequences by the Samaritans. As a result of the destructions, wrought by the Romans, for the rebelliousness of the sect, we are faced with an almost complete absence of original knowledge of their history before the time of Hadrian.
Particular mention is made of a grievous calamity, in the days of Hadrian, resulting in the destruction of their sacred books with the exception of the book of the Law and the book of the succession of the priests. In the calamities which racked the Roman Empire prior to its fall, bringing havoc and desolation on Palestine, the Samaritan community was more than decimated, 'its riches looted, its culture exterminated'. With the Muslim conquest of Palestine and Syria in the early part of the 7th Century A.D., the ravages of Rome were consummated by Islam; the Samaritans shared the bitter persecution that befell the Jews, for their obstinate rejection of Islam. The sect was reduced to a few small fragments in Syria and Egypt. Thus it came about that when the dark veil of Islam separated the East from the West, the Samaritan sect... fell into deep oblivion so far as the Western world was concerned". The notice taken of the sect by Arabic scholars and occasional Jewish travellers, such as Benjamin of Tudela, failed to awaken the curiosity of Mediaeval Europe. "The Samaritans became to Christendom as real, or as unreal, as the lost Ten Tribes who dwell beyond the fabled river Sambation". The intense darkness that shrouded the sect was only finally penetrated by the inspiration of Joseph Scaliger, towards the end of the 16th century, as a result of which they emerged once again into contemporary notice, their correspondence with the West and the visits of scholars opened up a thorough acquaintance with them on the part of the western world.

Subsequent research has revealed, that despite all the darkness and misery of the era known by the Samaritans as the 'Time of Disfavour' or of 'God's Turning Away', certain bright periods of revival and intellectual creativeness have intervened. Such a period centres round their great hero, Baba Rabba, whose life and activities, are assigned by certain Samaritan Chronicles to the 3rd century A.D., but which scholars are convinced really belongs to the 4th century.

Baba Rabba is credited with the institution of the reading of the Law and the inauguration of synagogue worship. He is also said to have reconstituted the priestly line, whose pedigree had been lost, and to have recovered some of the holy books.

About this time, possibly a generation or two later than Baba Rabba, Marqah the great theologian of the Samaritans flourished. Marqah and the contemporaneous Amram Darah, tentatively identified as Amram b. Sered, his father, were responsible for the compilation of the Defter - the 'Book' - the earliest collection of Samaritan prayers. The compositions of Amram are known as the Durrān - 'string of pearls' - and like those of Marqāh are written in Samaritan Aramaic. The Durrān is chiefly in prose whilst the hymns of Marqāh, the style of which is followed by many later authors, is in alphabetic acrostic which is semi-poetic in form. These compositions were supplemented by others at various times down to the 14th century. Some of these are anonymous, whilst three are attributed to Moses, Joshua and the Angels, respectively, but are assigned by the scholars to some date prior to the eleventh century. The other known contributors to the Defter are Nanah, the son of Marqāh, ed-Dustan, tentatively dated as the 11th century, Tabiah, probably 10th century, Ab-gelugah 11th or 12th century, Abu1-hasan of Tyre, said to have lived in the 11th century, and the High Priest Amram in the 13th century. About the 10th and 11th centuries Aramaic ceased to be the vernacular of the people and although it was retained as the language of the prayers the liturgical compositions of the period reflect the change in their artificiality of language and frequent use of Hebraisms. The hymns of the Defter are for a variety of occasions; some prayers for daily use, others for the Sabbath and in addition a wide use appears to have been made of its compositions for the festival services. Indeed, until the 14th century, it was apparently the only prayer-book in use, and thus rightly merited the title conferred upon it by Cowley, the 'Corpus Liturgicum' of the Samaritan sect.

In the 14th century there was a fresh renaissance of religious and liturgical endeavour prompted by the high priest Pinhas b. Joseph, evidently a man of character, earnest in promoting the interests of religion amongst his people. He was the sponsor of one of the still extant chronicles of Samaritan history, and is supposed to have 'discovered' the pentateuchal scroll of Abisha, the most sacred relic of the sect. It seems that at this time there began the filling out and embellishment of the existing framework of the festival prayers, hitherto derived solely from the Defter. The specifically composed festival hymns and the general formulation of the separate festival prayer books are all of the fourteenth century or later. These compositions are marked by a significant change in the medium of expression, in that they are written in Hebrew. The high priest Pinhas was followed by his sons Eleazar and Abisha and his grandson Pinhas b. Abisha, all of whom, besides maintaining the priestly tradition, made significant contributions to the liturgy. The impetus roused in the 14th century has continued down to comparatively recent times when the liturgical writers have been distinguished as belonging principally to one or other of three groups; the Levitical (or Priestly), the Danfi and the Marhib (or Mufazzij) families.

2. This post 14th century development is reflected in the paucity of reference to the Passover Services in the early V. S. Ms. (Cf. C. Introduction p. xviii) which is confined to a brief rubric, a transcript of which is given in the Hebrew Section of this work.

Amongst these liturgists of the 14th century and later, the following have contributed to the Passover series;

Aaron b. Manir, early fourteenth century.

Abdallah (Obadiah) b. Berakhah, ḥaftawi, i.e., assistant priest, of Damascus. He lived in the 16th century; his office appears to have been hereditary, and he was the progenitor of a family of liturgists.

Abdallah b. Solomon, of priestly family, who lived in the 14th century and was a prolific writer.

Abishah b. Pinhas, of the fourteenth century, mentioned previously.

Abraham b. Jacob ha-danfi, who lived about 1750 A.D.; In addition to his liturgical works he wrote an Arabic commentary on the Pentateuch, and was also the copyist of several Mss.

Abraham b. Joseph ha-gabazi, of the 16th century, one of a party who appear to have moved from Damascus to Nablus in 1538.

Abu'l-'izz, probably 15th century, tentatively identified as one of the Yithranah family which appears to have featured prominently in the life of the Samaritan community at Damascus.

Amram b. Solomon, a priest, 19th century.

Eleazar b. Pinhas, high priest, 14th century, mentioned previously.

Hibat-allah ha-mizri, probably identical with the writer Methanel b. Obadiah and possibly the same as Mattanah ha-mizri, apparently of the 14th century.

Isaac the Priest, which may be either Isaac b. Zedekiah of the 17th century or Isaac b. Solomon of the 19th, a brother of Amram mentioned previously.

Isma'il b. Badr er-Ramhi, 16th century. Identified as the author of a work in praise of Moses.

Jacob ha-rabban or the Priest, 14th century.

Joseph ha-rabban, the title suggests that he was identical with a 16th century dignitary of Damascus, with the same name.

Khidr b. Isaac, 19th century, a member of the Levitical family of liturgical writers.

Mufarrij (Marhib) b. Jacob, 17th century, earliest of the Marhib family of liturgist. He is also alluded to as Mufarrij al-mufarrij.
Murjan ha-danfi, a liturgist of the Danfi family, probably 18th century and identical with Murjan b. Abraham.

Muslim (Meshalmah) b. Murjan (Ab-sakhwah) ha-danfi, also an 18th century member of the Danfi family.

Pinhas, of the compositions, bearing this name, in the Passover series, some are attributed to the 16th century high priest, Pinhas b. Eleazar of Shechem and others to Pinhas b. Joseph the 14th century high priest, the sponsor of the liturgical revival of that century, mentioned previously. Other compositions bearing the name Pinhas, but without any indication of the author's parentage may have been the work either of one or other of the above-named or of Pinhas b. Abisha, 15th century, grandson of Pinhas b. Joseph or Pinhas b. Ithamar, 15th century, high priest at Damascus.

Sa'dallah (or Sa'd-ed-din) b. Zedaqah al-Kethari, 14th century, also chiefly the author of the marriage service.

Solomon b. Amram, 19th century, member of the Levitical family of liturgists.

Solomon b. Tabiah, also a 19th century member of the Levitical family of liturgists.

Tabiah b. Abraham, 18th century, member of the Levitical family.

Tabiah (Ghazal) b. Isaac, 18th century, a prolific writer who was also a member of the Levitical family.
Having traced the principal features of the development of the liturgy and the historical setting of its authors, it is necessary to give some consideration to the various forms of expression and presentation used in the liturgy generally and in the Passover series in particular. Mention has been made previously, of the style of the earlier Durran and Marqah compositions and of the gradual process of change from Aramaic to Hebrew, as the medium of expression; this must be further supplemented by the observation that, as a result of the Moslem conquest in 638 A.D. and the predominance of Arabic as the colloquial language, later compositions have an increasing number of Arabic idioms and words, Hebrew (or Aramaic) words used in the Arabic sense and even phrases adapted from the Kor'an. Furthermore, the later Samaritans living in almost complete isolation, and speaking only Arabic, developed the use of Hebrew for religious purposes entirely along their own lines, with the result, that Cowley has observed that in rendering these texts it is not possible to deal with them 'by the ordinary rules of Hebrew and Aramaic'. These difficulties are further enhanced

1. C. Introduction p.xxxv.
2. Ibid. p.vii.
by the licence¹ assumed by the authors in their compositions, strange forms are invented by most writers for the sake of rhyme, and a word may even be divided for the same reason between two lines. The difficulties in rendering apply equally to the Rubrics containing the prayer directions, which are frequently written in Arabic, described by Cowley² as 'the vulgar language used by the later Samaritans....more than usually debased' cursively written 'often hard to read, and harder to explain'.

The change in use of language for the liturgical compositions appears to have been matched by variation in pronunciation at different times, with the results that it is not possible³ to discern any methodic metre. Some pieces seem to be metrical but the majority appear to be only arranged according to rhythm, the lines being of about the same length and short syllables being neglected or not as required.

In length, the hymns vary, from brief ascriptions of praise to God, to long drawn out Midrashic compilations. Most frequent of the ascriptions

3. C. Introduction p.xli. Montgomery, The Samaritans. p.299 says that the authors of the later period rhyme the verses of a stanza upon the same syllable, as in Arabic poetry. To fit his procrustean mould both at the beginning and end of the verse, the writer does not hesitate to distort his words'. of praise is the הובש rendered by Robertson1, as a 'Gloria', often commencing with the epithet descriptive of God, זיב the 'Might'. The 'Gloria' generally consists of two verses, the second, usually shorter in form is sometimes entitled the א☝ו , probably conclusory verse, in certain Mss. Some of the 'Glorias' introduce a reference to a Biblical character, one of the patriarchs or Moses and thus lead up to the ensuing abridged form of Biblical reading known as the KATEF, which will be described, in detail, later. Some Mss. have a specially extended form of 'Gloria' as an introduction to the Biblical reading of the Decalogue, as reproduced in 2 cp. 163 line 7ff..
This liturgical piece entitled הובש is not to be confused with the refrain, beginning with this word, which is chanted at intervals during the recitation of the Biblical passage of the plagues, after each of which is repeated 'Praised be the Doer of signs and wonders, blessed be the God of Gods.'

Another form of hymn of considerably greater length and complexity is the הובש, rendered as a 'hymn of praise'.

1. Catalogue of the Samaritan Manuscripts in the John Rylands Library, Manchester. Examples of 'Glorias' are found in Cp. 161 and henceforth throughout the series, particularly Cp. 203.

2. Similarly Ls. 6.
This 'hymn of praise' features very prominently in the service\(^1\) for the morning of the Sabbath of the Feast of Unleavened Bread, where a succession of them is given. It is noteworthy that it is only in this service, of the Passover series, that this type of hymn is given in full. It appears, however, to have been such a favoured type that it was used in the other services too, for reference to the customary hymn of praise is made in the \(^2\)rubrics of the other services, as if the hymn is an established integral part of the service. The pieces bearing this title all appear to conform to a set pattern. First there is an introductory eulogy of God, often based upon an acrostic of the author's name, this is followed by a four-fold sequence, which is the central part of the whole liturgical unit. The sequence is as follows (i) a number of epithets applied to God, each introduced by the formula, 'The Lord He is God' which is followed by (ii) the exhortation 'Lift up your hands'. Cowley does not give this refrain in full, from various instances in the Leeds 6 Ms. we learn that this has a fixed form, "Lift up your hands and say, praised be God, there is no God but One, He endures for ever, the Creator of heaven and earth". This is followed by the fixed refrain, which we learn from the same Ms. runs as follows. 'To the Great One who endures in His Divinity, to the Might like which there is none. To the Good One, who is good in His faithfulness. To the Good One who does good forever. To the hearer of all cries. To the Acceptor of all supplications. To the Doer of signs and wonders. To the One who knows hidden and revealed things. To the Merciful One whose mercy is without end.

(iii) The variable epithets introduced by and then again (iv) the refrain 'Lift up your hands and say praised be...earth'. This central sequence is regularly followed by a sequence of paragraphs praising God and identifying Him as the God of a series of Biblical characters. The first of these paragraphs is usually concluded by the refrain, 'In His righteousness' etc., and in the Leeds 6 Ms. each of the succeeding verses is concluded with the refrain 'AMEN, I AM THAT I AM'. That the title is confined strictly to hymns of this pattern seems evident from the fact that whilst the term is used in reference to all the liturgical pieces of this type in C.pp. 238-248, in the subsequent pages, where this pattern is not observed the term is not used, it reappears again, however, in the rubric, C.p. 265 line 18, introducing a piece in which the whole sequence

1. Cf. C.p. 239 line 3.
reappears. The term is also used, as the title of liturgical pieces conforming to this pattern in, the Pentecost series C.p.288 line 19, and also in the Service for the termination of the Sabbath of Unleavened Bread, which is omitted by Cowley but is found in the Leeds 6 and other Mss.

We also find an interesting confirmation of the connotation of the term קְנֵל, in the Leeds 3 Ms.. At the end of the work a later hand has appended an additional piece which bears this title and conforms entirely to the pattern outlined above.

Another liturgical pieces that is found frequently is entitled a KIMB (קְנֵל). The first instance upon which this occurs in the Passover series is on 1 C.p.167. The hymn is introduced by a paragraph of rhymed prose commencing with the words, 'As the days of the heavens above the earth' which is followed by a series of shorter verses all commencing with the expression 'God of' etc., identifying God as God of one or other of the Biblical characters and imploring God's favour in various ways, in their merit. The hymn concludes with the refrain, AMEN, I AM THAT I AM. In two of the instances in which this title is used the introductory expression 'As the days of' etc.,

1. Further instances of this type of hymn are found C.p.225, 227, 230, 231.
2. C.p.227, 231. The first of these, however, has the expression in its second line. It also has the unintelligible term MAKHRUG as the designation of the ensuing 'God of'...series, cf. C.p. 231.
is not used, and consequently there appears to be no justification for the application of the title KLINE unless it be assumed that the opening paragraph of the piece on C.p.167 is chanted in these instances as a regular, known refrain although it is not re-written, probably on account of its familiarity to the worshippers. In the second of these instances we also observe that the usual sequence of introductory expressions, 'God of...' is not used.

In addition to the afore mentioned liturgical types, others are found bearing specific titles, although they do not appear to have any distinctive features, or any relation to the usual connotation of the terms used in their titles. Such are the 2DEKJOR (דִּכְרוֹן), the 2SHEBUA' (שְׁבַע) and the 3MARAN (מָרָן).

Besides these undefined terms, there are others which occur in the rubrics as the designation of set portions or extracts of hymns or scripture to be recited on particular occasions, such as the, 4NUBA, SURA, MANAT.

A regular feature of virtually every service are the 5SEGUDOTH, (锽锽锽), probably so entitled because they are recited to the accompaniment of some form of prostration. They usually occur as 'the Three Segudoth' though in one instance they are seven. They are principally a declaration of scripture verses appropriate to the occasion, in which the pre-dominant themes, such as the sanctity of mount Gerizim and the festivals are expressed coupled with the mention of the priestly and other blessings. The last in the series also have the introductory liturgical expression 'Blessed be He who said.....'

1. C.p.172,222,255.
2. C.p.178,179
3. C.p.259,260

Frequent mention is also made of 'Three proclamations' (נְגָדְרִים נַחֲגָדְרִים) as a form of ascription to hymns and scripture readings. The precise content of these proclamations is nowhere stated in the Passover series, although the Jaffa Ms. of the Sabbath service does give them in full. It must be presumed therefore that the same were used for the festivals too. The previous expression is frequently followed by the directive 'Praised be' et seq, (ךָוָּדָה), though they often occur independently. As the directive for the reciting of 'Praised be' is frequently followed by 'For in the Name' (Deut. xxii.3) etc., it may be presumed that what is intended is the piece occurring C.p.157 lines 13-20, which contains this too, and which is intended to be recited either in part or as a whole. Frequent liturgical use is made of another scripture verse, Ex. xxxiv.6, "The Lord, a God full of compassion" etc., which occurs at the conclusion of sections of scripture readings and services.

SCRIPTURE READINGS

The KETAFIM

The most prominent, and possibly the most ancient, feature of the Samaritan religious service is the abbreviated scripture reading known as the KATEF (plural, KETAFIM); Hebrew, הֲנָא or 2 פָּקַדְנָא and frequently translated in Arabic 3 الخلف. The term itself is strongly reminiscent of the Biblical term 'to pluck' (Deut. xxiii. 25) and its frequent use as an epithet in eulogy of Moses, "The chosen of all souls", suggests that it is intended to define a reading of picked and chosen Biblical phrases. Consideration must, however, be given to the cognate Arabic term meaning simply 'abbreviated texts'. The term is variously rendered as a florilegium or catena of Biblical verse.

2. E.g. C.p. 161, line 2.
3. E.g. C.p. 159 line 4, s.v. translation at this juncture where rendering of KATEF is given (Translation p.6.)
5. DR. Gaster, The Samaritans, p. 75, whose mode of trans-

"literation" (KATEF) has been adopted here. Montgomery, The Samaritans p. 298, uses similar descriptive terms i.e.
It is to be regretted that Prof. Cowley in his Samaritan Liturgy was unable to reproduce the KETAFIM in their appropriate place in the various services. In each instance only the commencement of the KATEF is indicated, by the quotation of its opening words, which fails completely to give any indication of its content or character. The opportunity has therefore been taken in this work to repair this omission. On each occasion that a new type of KATEF is encountered, a translation is given based upon the available Mss., and the original Hebrew reproduced in the Appendix. Wherever a KATEF is repeated, in a subsequent service, adequate reference is made to the original rendering and any variations tabulated.

There are various types of KETAFIM, first and foremost is the basic Pentateuch KATEF, in which the whole of the Pentateuch is traversed in greatly abbreviated form. This type of KATEF is an essential element of every statutory service, at least in the Passover series. The first occasion on which this KATEF is found is in the 2nd Evening Service for the night of Passover. This has been

1. Excluding the first Evening Service, C.p.157, which is intended primarily as the preliminary to the sacrificial rite of the Passover and as such is not a statutory service. The reading indicated there, C.p. 158 line 8, from Ex.xii.I. ff. is a complete Biblical reading, and as such is not to be regarded as a KATEF and does not therefore require reproduction.

2. Cf.C.p. 159 line 5.
taken as the 'model' of the Pentateuch KATEF and in order to bring out clearly the full significance of the KATEF reading and the manner in which it is used as a means of expressing the predominant themes of the particular festive occasion, comparison has been made with available KETAFIM of Sabbath and Pentecost and the variations are noted in the footnotes. Besides these variants between the KETAFIM of Passover and other occasions it has also been observed that differences exist between the KETAFIM as used in the various services of the Passover series. In order to show these differences the KETAFIM have not been repeated in toto on every subsequent occasion. The additions to or omissions from the 'model' KATEF are systematically listed and correlated by footnotes to their appropriate place in the full KATEF, thus by leaving out the basic common elements between the KETAFIM and tabulating their variants it is possible to see at a glance the distinctive features of the KATEF of any particular service. In some instances the writers of the Mss. have themselves given an indication of the principal distinctive features of a particular KATEF. Thus on C.p. 161 line 2, the rubric commences with the listing of a series of terms or 'Key words' denoting certain special phrases that are particularly quoted during the course of KATEF. The rubric directive implies that in addition to the KATEF as given in the previous service, Biblical passages or phrases containing these XLIV.

Terms are to be incorporated in the ensuing KATEF. Reference to the translations, p. 68 ff., will show that hardly a Biblical text, containing one of the specified terms, has been omitted during the course of the KATEF, even to the point of laborious repetition of the identical word (e.g. Joseph), as often as it occurs in the Biblical text, without even quoting the surrounding context to give a suggestion of continuity of thought.

Thus the KETAFIM of the Passover series have been made the subject of a dual comparative study (i) external, as related to non-Passover KETAFIM (ii) internal, as related to one another. The first of these reveals that whereas the Passover KETAFIM concentrate on the themes denoted in the Rubric C.p. 161 line 2, these are almost entirely omitted in the Pentecost and Sabbath KETAFIM, the former of which substitutes all the appropriate Biblical phrases appropriate to the festival of Pentecost, the Omer, the Two Loaves and the revelation at Sinai. The internal comparison shows that, of the key words or phrases indicated in the above rubric of Passover Morning, some, such as, Covenant, First, Wonders and Unleavened Bread, are a feature also of the previous Evening KATEF.

1. In L.7, the phrases containing the Key words are underlined and in Ls.6 they are frequently written in red ink.
and indeed of all the Pentateuch KETAFIM of the Passover series. The additions of the Passover Morning are further augmented on the Sabbath Morning, C.p. 224 line 2.; but the most significant augmentations are those of the Seventh Day of Unleavened Bread, C.p. 273 line 1., ff. Here the method of tabulating only the variants from the 'model' KATEF, of the Passover Evening, is particularly helpful as the scribes have not listed them on this occasion. The Seventh Day of Unleavened Bread is of significance as the commemoration of the crossing of the Red Sea but it is also one of the fifty days leading to Pentecost, consequently the KATEF for that occasion besides retaining the Passover themes also incorporates references to Sea, Omer, Clouds — as a reminder of the clouds of the Lord on Mount Sinai — as well as the various references to the 'Glory of the Lord' occurring in the Pentateuch which are reminiscent of the Revelation at Sinai. The KATEF of the Seventh Day is, therefore, virtually a combination of Passover and Pentecost themes.

These comparisons also reveal the tendency to expand the usual abbreviated KATEF style into full readings of those Biblical passages that are particularly relevant to the occasion, in addition to the previously noted citation of all the casual references scattered throughout the Pentateuch. Hence some of the Passover KETAFIM give \textsuperscript{1}Ex.xii.1-xiii.10 dealing with the Exodus, as complete readings and even in the others they are only slightly abbreviated. Likewise, on the Sabbath morning, which is the Sabbath alluded to in Lev. xxiii 15, 'the morrow after the sabbath', the Omer portion is read in expanded form. Similarly, on the Seventh Day, the commemoration of the crossing of the Red Sea, the relevant passages, Ex.xiii.11-xv.21 are read in full in addition to the mention of all the, often unrelated, references to the word Sea that are found elsewhere.

All the KETAFIM of the Passover series\textsuperscript{2} have one feature in common, the full reading of Deut. xvi.1-8.

At the point where this passage is reached in the KATEF

1. The reading is always interspersed with the chanting of verses of an acrostic hymn. In the Evening Services, 'Welcome O festival' C.p. 114 and in the Morning Services, 'O Assembly'C.p.162. Reference has previously been made to eye-witness corroboration of this practice at the sacrificial ceremony cf. ibid. Introduction p. XII note 2.

2. The KATEF of the service for the Termination of Sabbath, the service, which is not mentioned in Cowley, is an exception; there this portion is abbreviated and no headings follow it.
reading, it is always the occasion for a special chant, three proclamations and the rendering of miscellaneous Biblical verses, termed 'headings'. These renderings are then followed by a repetition of the acrostic hymn 'Welcome' or 'O assembly' previously interspersed in the reading. The impression gained is, that having reached this important passage regarding Passover, the opportunity is taken to give a restatement of the principle Biblical verses relevant to the festival and with re-chanting of the hymn, to emphasise that here the service has reached its crucial point and here the festival is really welcomed and honoured.

Whilst the significance of some of the previously mentioned key words and phrases is obvious, some seem to be entirely irrelevant and others in need, at least of explanation. Whereas the significance of such terms as, Wonders, Egypt, Unleavened Bread, as a means of expressing the predominant themes of the Passover festival is obvious, terms such as Heave offering, Eleazar, or Morning are hard to justify. The term Covenant is probably intended to emphasise the character of the Passover as

2. Cf. rubrics C.p. 161 line 2; p.225 line 2.
3. This term is included in the KATEF of the Sabbath Morning, an example of its quotation is found in L.6. p. 139 where he shall not leave any of it until the morning; Lev.vii.15, is referred to, it may be intended as a parallel to the similar law of the Paschal lamb, but why its insertion in the Sabbath Morning and not in the Passover Morning KATEF?
of the seven covenants of the Samaritan creed. The term remembrance is perhaps intended to convey that the redemption from Egypt was wrought for Israel because God remembered His covenant with the patriarchs. The term, First, is undoubtedly intended to convey that Nisan is the first of the months. The significance of the term, Joseph may perhaps be explained in the light of what Mills says concerning the importance which the Samaritans attach to the recital of the blessing of Jacob to his son Joseph, "The blessings of my father have prevailed above the blessings of my progenitors unto the utmost bound of the everlasting hills: they shall be on the head of Joseph", etc., (Gen.XLIX. 26). "These everlasting hills", he says, "of course, are Mount Gerizim with its heights, and they being the children of Joseph receive from the mouth of the priest the assurance of the rich blessings". It seems justifiable therefore that as they assemble on Mount Gerizim for the Passover they should utilise this means of recalling their pious and favoured ancestor, possibly in the hope that the rich blessings conferred on him would be fulfilled in them. The terms Sheep, Oxen and Sacrifice are all obviously associated with the primary event of the Passover, the sacrifice, whilst the term, Rejoicing, is a reminder

2. Cf. Ex. vi. 5.
3. Cf. Ex. xii. 2
4. Three Months' Residence at Nablus, p. 258 that the Passover is one of the seasons of rejoicing.

At the outset of this discussion, an attempt was made to define the precise connotation of the term KATEF, and two distinct shades of meaning were discerned. These conflicting concepts may be said likewise to reflect the differing views that may be entertained regarding the origin and purpose of this unique method of rendering scripture verses. Are the KETAFIM intended as selections of Biblical phrases to be used as an integral part of the religious service, as part of the liturgy, or are they intended as a means of traversing the whole of the Pentateuch during each service and as such are intended as a form of scripture reading which is instructional rather than devotional, the choice of particular phrases and expressions being intended as a fleeting reminder to the worshipper of the wider context and teachings of the Law? It is possible that the KATEF as it is now found is an abbreviation of a far lengthier form of Scripture reading customary at a time when, as appears from the 1 account of Babba Rabba's enjoining of the reading of the law, such reading was the primary, if not the only, feature of the service, and which with the ever increasing growth of liturgical compositions would have to be curtailed if its essential form as a complete Pentateuch summary were to be maintained. Against this, however, it may be maintained that the KETAFIM can hardly be intended to be purely instructional for great use is made of liturgical refrains\(^1\), prayers and adorations, during the course of the reading, imparting to it a definite devotional character. Furthermore, it can be argued, that if the KETAFIM are an abbreviation of a more elaborate reading, in order to make way for liturgical pieces, it would be reasonable to expect that the more liturgical pieces the less the KATEF yet we observe the contrary. In the Evening Services where the liturgical content is small the KATEF is comparatively shorter, whereas in the Morning Services in which the liturgical compositions are more numerous the KATEF IS lengthier.

1. Cf. e.g. L.6 f.126, where 'So may the Lord heal all our wounds' is chanted after Gen. xx.17#. L.6.f.13 'So may the Lord be intreated of us and have mercy upon us etc.', after Gen. xxv.21. The expression 'Fulfil for us' before Gen. xxvi.3. The prayer 'My Lord fulfil for us this blessing after Gen. xxvii.27 ff. The frequent refrain, L.6.f.14 and elsewhere, 'O their God and their Lord have mercy upon us for their sakes' recited after mention of the patriarchs. The adoration 'Praised be the doer of signs and wonders', L.6.f.15 ff., after mention of the Plagues. L.6.f.20, 'O Lord heal us from all sickness', before Ex.xv. 26,. The introductory expression 'Blessed be He who said', before 'When He crieth unto me etc.' Ex.xxii.26 the frequent prayer for the peace of Moses, L.6.f.21 ff. Also the lengthy Doxology at the end of every Pent. KATEF.
Similarly, the Passover Sabbath Morning Service has a great accretion of 14th. and post 14th, century compositions not found in the Passover Morning Service, which is almost entirely Deuter in character, nevertheless the KATEF of Sabbath Morning has substantial additions to its KATEF.

Further evidence of the use of the term KATEF, to define chosen—rather than abbreviated—verses is furnished by the various special KETAFIM that are found in the various services in addition to the basic, Pentateuch KATEF. These additional KETAFIM string together all the Pentateuchal references to one particular topic, without the basic general matter which is found in the ordinary KATEF. These are, the KATEF of the 1Meritorious Ones in which numerous Biblical references to the patriarchs are combined; the KATEF of the 2Decalogue; the KATEF 3First, the KATEF

Sabbath and Unleavened Bread; the KATEF Noah; and finally the KATEF Blessings, a digest of all scripture verses containing blessings, in which, to allude once again to the Biblical passage quoted at the outset, the composers of the KATEF have indeed 'plucked' the choicest of Biblical expressions illustrating thereby the true significance of the KATEF as a synthesis of picked and chosen themes and phrases.

Antiphonal Readings,

In addition to the KATEF form of Biblical rendering, mention is made in virtually every service of 'The reading on the scripture ('scrolls'). This is usually followed by the directive, 'and at each section of it they chant antiphonally (רֹם). The precise form of this reading and antiphonal chanting is not evident from these rubrics as given in Cowley. Fortunately, however, some of the Mss. give these readings in full revealing an interesting

1. C.p. 249 line 25. Also found in the Service for the Termination of the Sabbath Ls. 6 f. 173, is KATEF. Unleavened Bread, Sea, Harvest.
2. C.p. 274 line 23 cf. translation op. cit. for rendering from Cr. 13.
3. C.p. 275 line 21, cf. translation op. cit. for rendering from Cr. 13. The recitation of this KATEF on the Seventh Day of Unleavened Bread is singularly appropriate as this is the day when a special procession is made up Mount Gerizim (Mills, ibid.) and the recitation of the KATEF would thus be a practical implementation of the verse 'Thou shalt set the blessing upon Mount Gerizim' (Deut. xi. 29).
and unusual style of scripture reading not unlike that used in hymns and liturgical chants of other creeds. To give but one example of this reading found in Ls.6 f.69 (Cf. C.P. 166 line 3 f.); the portion read is Ex.xii.43-51, the final phrase of which is 'The Lord did bring the children of Israel out of the land of Egypt by their hosts'. The reading begins at verse 43 and this last phrase is chanted at frequent intervals, i.e. the end of verses 43, 45, 47; verse 48 after the word 'and keep it'; the end of verses 49 and 50 which is then followed by verse 51 in its entirety. In Ls.6, the repeated phrase is written in red ink, indicating its antiphonal nature, after the first instance the scribe usually writes the first letters of each word only.

A further, more complicated type of antiphonal reading is found in the service for the Seventh Day of Unleavened Bread, C.P.273 line 18, in which the passage read is the Song of Moses, Ex.xii. 1-21. In this instance most of the verses are used in turn as refrains. As the opening words of the portion are given in the text, indicating that the ensuing verses are to follow, the whole has been inserted in the translation, as found in Cr.13, and the reader is directed thereto for a clearer picture of this most peculiar arrangement.²

1. The same is found in BM(G)843 f. 80 and L.5 f. 39b.
2. The Passover rubric of V.3 transcribed in the Hebrew Section, also appears to give directions for a similar type antiphonal reading.
LIV.

DIRECTIONS FOR CANTILLATION.

The Rev. John Mills, who in the last century paid a lengthy visit to the Samaritans, in Nablus, and made an exhaustive study of their ways and customs, describes the peculiar characteristics of the Samaritan music. He says, inter alia, that "they have seventy melodies, composed, according to the Samaritan tradition, by the seventy elders of Israel in the time of Moses. They are all set to certain portions of the ritual, and are introduced in their proper places on Sabbath days, and the festivals." Furthermore he makes the observation "I could not discover upon what principle this adaptation was made, or whether there was any principle at all in the matter".

In all probability the rendering of these melodies has some association with the oft-repeated, and otherwise inexplicable catillatory directives found in the rubrics, which often defy precise rendering.

Of these the most prominent are, the term previously mentioned יִּשָּׂע ' which is frequently used in ways other than that indicated above. Cowley renders

2. Cp. 156 line 20; p. 166 line 2 where the word is found also in the form יִּשָּׂע .
this expression as 'antiphon' whilst Robertson gives the rendering 'Then they read in turn (?).’ Also frequently found is rendered by Cowley as, 'a heavy (solemn) chant', and by Robertson as 'slowly; (heavily?).' In contrast to this is the term خفيف rendered by Cowley as, 'light (lyrical) chant, often', and by Robertson, 'quickly, lightly'. The composite expression تقوى وتحت is rendered in this translation simply as, 'antiphonally' is rendered by Robertson as, 'both high and low (voices?).' In addition to these there is the term الزفات and this term has likewise been rendered simply 'they chant' or 'the chant', Robertson however, frequently transliterates thus, 'the zaffat (chants?).'

THE PASSOVER CYCLE OF SERVICES.

In the Pentateuch the Passover festival is alluded to either as the Passover or the Feast of Unleavened Bread\(^4\) and although these titles seem, frequently, to be used indiscriminately, from Lev. xxiii.5 ff. they appear to have a precise connotation each one denoting a separate event. The 14th of Nisan, the day of the bringing of the paschal sacrifice is there defined as the, 'Lord's Passover', whilst the following day and the ensuing six days are termed the 'Feast of Unleavened Bread'.\(^1\) In Samaritan usage this differentiation is adhered\(^2\) to, consequently the first prayers of the Passover festival proper\(^3\), are termed the 'Prayers of the Feast of the Passover' whilst those of the subsequent days are termed the 'Prayers of the Feast of Unleavened Bread'. Of the former there are four services, The first of these takes place on the 14th Nisan prior\(^4\) to and during the slaughter and preparation of the sacrifice.

1. Cf. ibid. Introduction p. V for the views that the Biblical Passover represents the combination of two distinct earlier festivals.
3. As distinct from the prayers of the preparatory days, C. 93-156.
The second is the statutory festival service, presumably recited during the lengthy interregnum during the roasting of the lambs. The third is termed, 'The Prayers of the Feast of Passover in the Morning'. Ostensibly this refers to the morning of the 15th of Nisan, which strictly speaking is the first day of the Feast of Unleavened Bread. We learn, however, from various eye-witness accounts that this service actually began immediately after the eating of the sacrifice and continued until dawn which probably accounts for its inclusion as one of the services of Passover. Indication has previously been made of the importance of Mount Gerizim in the Passover celebration, where only the full sacrificial rite may be performed. This restriction and the pressure of external circumstances, through which they were at times denied access to the sacred spot, occasioned the need for an additional alternative order of service, to be recited on the Passover when they were unable to ascend the mount and perform the sacrifice. This service is known as 'The Prayers of the Feast of Passover in the MEDINAH' a term

1. C. p. 159
2. Cf. ibid. Introduction p. XIV note 1, L.2f.28, after the heading 'Prayers for the day of the Feast of Passover in the Morning on Mount Gerizim' has a rubric, 'After eating the sacrifice they stand behind the priest and begin the prayers proclaiming...'
3. Cf. ibid. Introduction p. XIX,XX.
4. C. p. 167. That the term MEDINAH is intended in this way seems evident from the rubric p. 167 line 1, which states that the ensuing service is intended for those occasions when there is no ascent of Mount Gerizim.
which apparently denotes any place other than Mount Gerizim. In addition to these four services there are a series of hymns, Cp. 180–201, which as stated in the rubric at the commencement and is corroborated by the various Mss., are intended for recitation at the festive table either on Mount Gerizim or in the MEDINAH.

Cowley has included these under the general heading of 'Prayers for the MEDINAH', this is erroneous and misleading. As Cowley himself indicates the MEDINAH Service concludes on p. 176 line 28. Evidently these are intended simply as Table Songs and not as a formal service. This contention is supported not only by the rubric on C.p.180 but also by the fact that the ensuing hymns lack the whole character of a normal service.

1. The hymns on pages 176-179, as C.p.176 note 3 indicates, are out of place. He was unable to assign them to their rightful place as they were misplaced in his Ms. L 5, but from EM(4)843 we find that they follow immediately after the Rubric on p. 172 line 2, before the hymn, 'O chosen of all the Hebrews' and consequently are an integral part of the MEDINAH service. In this translation the renderings of the Table Service hymns (C.pp.180–201) are headed 'Passover MEDINAH SERVICE II in order to indicate the distinction, without departing too far from the general character of this work as a 'companion' volume to Cowley's liturgy, although actually the hymns are not intended for the MEDINAH only.

A similar procedure has been adopted for the MEDINAH Service commencing on C.p.276 which is not thus indicated by Cowley.

2. It is most significant that some of the pieces referred to are entitled 'Songs' ( שׁנִונִים) a term not used elsewhere in the Passover Cycle.
There are none of the usual introductory prayers. 'At the gate of Thy mercies' etc., no KETAFIM or Biblical readings, no bringing forth of the Law and the attendant hymns 'This is the great Scripture' etc., nor are there the usual SEGUDOTH. These hymns are, therefore, probably intended as loosely akin to the Jewish Haggadah or Table 1 Hymns, a suggestion for which some corroboration can be found in the content of the hymns themselves. The hymn on C. p. 181 is entitled the 'Song concerning the Wonders' describing the plagues and wonders of the redemption, whilst on pp. 190 and 199 there are hymns regarding the foods on the table and the sacrifice.

The most important days of the Feast of Unleavened Bread are, the Sabbath, 2 occurring during that week, which marks the beginning of the fifty-day Omer period culminating in Pentecost, and the 3 Seventh Day, which for them is of importance as the first of the pilgrimage festivals, as upon it they make ascent of Mount Gerizim, and also as the anniversary of the crossing of the Red Sea. The service for this latter day differs from all the others in that it is integrated with the pilgrimage up the Mount and the visits to the various sacred sites upon it.

2. C. p. 224. In this the Samaritans differ from the Jews who begin the counting of the Omer on the morrow after the first day of Passover, which they regard as the 'morrow of the sabbath' alluded to in Dv. xxiii. 15.
3. C. p. 269 For the significance of this and the previous event cf. Gaster, ibid., pp. 168, 178; Mills, ibid., p. 258.
at which special scripture passages were recited. It is not surprising to find that in regard to this Seventh Day similar circumstances are encountered as previously explained regarding the Passover Prayers. Here too the need arose for an alternative form of service for those occasions upon which access to the mount was debarred. Cowley p. 276 line 21, indicates the end of the service and then appends further pieces which the introductory rubric implies are for those occasions when there is no ascent of the mount. These would appear to be nothing more than unrelated hymns, but from BM(G)855 we learn that they are actually part of a composite MEDINAH service, similar to, though shorter than, that for the Passover, C.p. 167. The above mentioned Ms. f. 51b bears the new heading, "Prayers for the Feast of Unleavened Bread when it is in the MEDINAH". This heading is followed by a rubric prescribing the usual introductory prayers and Pentateuch KATEF. That the ensuing hymns are part of an entirely separate service is also confirmed by the absence of them in various of the other 2 Mss., which give the service of the Seventh Day. Consequently, we find that Cowley's grouping of these hymns, pp. 277-283 under one general heading with the foregoing as 'Prayers of the Feast of Unleavened Bread on Mount Gerizim' is inaccurate.

In addition to the prayers for these important

2. Cr. 20; Cr.13; BM(G)837.
days of the feast of Unleavened Bread, there are prescribed prayers C.p. 206-223, for the rest of the seven days of the festival. These, however, do not form one entire composite service, repeated in toto, each day. Whilst the introductory prayers are the same, for all the days, these are followed by directions for the rendering of varying pieces according to the day of the week.

In addition to the foregoing services of the Passover Cycle, as contained in Cowley's text of the Liturgy, there is one other service found, in varying degrees of completeness, in some of the Mss. It is a service for the night of the termination of the Sabbath of Unleavened Bread. In Ls.6, it appears to be in its entirety, complete with the usual introductory pieces, a Pentateuch KATEF, a special KATEF and rubrics directing the bringing forth of the scroll and the rendering of the usual hymns. As reference to this service is made in at least one of the Mss. at Cowley's disposal, it is rather surprising that he has made no reference to it in his text.

THE ORDER OF SERVICE

The order of the services may be said, in broad outline, to be of two types, one a simple arrangement, exhibited by the Evening Services of the Cycle, and the other a more complex arrangement evident in the Morning Services. In the former the Pentateuch KATEF 1. I.9. L.7.
is rendered virtually as a separate entity apart from the hymns and the proceedings of the rest of the service. The service begins with the introductory prayer 'At the gate of Thy mercies' (C.p.3), 'For in the Name' (Deut. xxxii.3) and the sections of the Creation after which follows the KATEF, recited in its entirety. This is followed by the 'We will bless' (C.p.7-9) sequence, with the necessary festival addendum, and the conclusory 'God of Abraham Thee we will bless' (C.p.9). Then follows the ceremony of the bringing out of one or more of the sacred scrolls which is accompanied by the rendering of a 'Hymn of praise' (יהוה) a special KATEF and, appropriate Deftier pieces. 'Thou art the great scripture (C.p.55), 'This is the great scripture' (C.p.56) etc. This part of the service, with its attendant reading and hymns seems to form one composite unit roughly analogous to the Jewish Service.

1. From the hymn C.p.208 line23, it appears that it is the custom to chant this verse before the commencement of all Biblical readings, this would explain its frequent repetition in the rubric. It also appears to be the custom to chant 'three proclamations' and 'The Lord, a God full of compassion' (Ex.xxxiv.6) at the conclusion of each of the Five Books of Moses.

2. Cf. C.p.159 line 16.

3. Cf. C.p.159 line 23. This probably explains the term 'KATEF of the Circle' (e.g. C.p.159 line 24) meaning that the KATEF is recited whilst the scroll is amongst the congregation as distinct from the ordinary KATEF when the scroll is still in its usual place in the MUSBAH (Cf. Mills, ibid p.224) similar to the Jewish HEICHAL or ark. This seems to be confirmed by the fact that there follows immediately (e.g. C.p.160 line 1) the expression 'They depart from the Circle' apparently meaning the return of the scroll from the congregational portion of the synagogue to the MUSBAH.
for the Reading\(^1\) of the Law. The foregoing pieces are usually followed by antiphonal scripture reading, of the type described previously, and also the SEGUOTOTH.

This order of service forms the basis for the more complex arrangement of the Morning Services. Here the KATEF is not read as one complete whole, but in sections, sometimes, but not always, conforming to the divisions between the Books of Moses. These sections of KATEF are each followed by Deftor hymns. A remarkable symmetry can be observed in the arrangement of these alternating KATEF and Deftor renderings. They are arranged in a succession of cycles, one 2Durran, two Marqah, a 'Gloria' then the KATEF, repeatedly through the whole seven or eight sections, into which the Pentateuch KATEF, is divided, after which follows the sequence 'We will bless' etc., indicated previously. This arrangement is strictly adhered to in the Passover Morning Service; in the Passover MEDINAH Service, and the Sabbath of Unleavened Bread.

2. Cf. C.p.161 lines 4, 19, 22 and so on through the whole service. It appears to be customary when ending a section of the KATEF, prior to the rendering of the Deftor pieces to chant 'Praised be' (C.p.157). When, however, the end of the KATEF section coincides with the end of a Book of the Law then 'Moses commanded us a Law' (Deut. xxxiii.4) is chanted. This accounts for the varying expressions (e.g. C.p.161, line 18, 22; p.164 line 11, 19; p. 165 line 1, p. 224 line 9, 15), 'Then is said 'Praised be' and 'Then is said A Law; prior to the various Durran and Marqah pieces.'
however, it is somewhat amended. As indicated in the rubrics, C.p.167 pp. 224-225 line 10, it is followed until the end of Ex.xi., after which follow certain post-Defter pieces, the bringing forth of the scrolls and its attendant hymns and readings, after which the KATEF from Ex.xii.1 onwards, is concluded as previously. 2

The conclusion of the KATEF is then followed by a special ceremony accomanied by reading and hymns, for the bringing forth of the sacred scroll, presumably the scroll of Abisha, which is an object of great veneration to them. This is followed by further post-Defter hymns and SEGUDOTH. This departure from the basic pattern on the part of the MEDINAH and the Sabbath services is accompanied by another distinctive feature which has previously been alluded to in passing, the introduction of a great number of post-Defter compositions. It is remarkable to observe that whereas the two Evening Services

1. C.p.171 line 11; p.237 line 27
2. C.p.171 lines 23-24; p. 254 line 26-255 line 3 cf. translation for details of KATEF Readings and C.p.254 Note 3. In the Sabbath Morning Service the resumed KATEF reading is one continuous sequence, without the cycle of Durran and Marqah pieces alternating with sections of KATEF as previously. Furthermore in the Sabbath Morning Service the interregnum between the two ceremonies of bringing out the scrolls is filled with numerous 'hymns of praise' (ךֵּנָבָּם) whereas in the other services only one is recited. Montgomery, The Samaritans p. 30 states that the exhibition of the scrolls is an important part of the Sabbath Service, this may possibly have occasioned these extra compositions and the Morning Service of Passover, apart from the anonymous and undated 'Glorias', use only Defter pieces, from the MEDINAH service and onwards throughout the series, there is a great accretion of later materials.

This can only be explained, by the tentative suggestion, that, as/three Passover services coincided with the preparation and ritual of the sacrifice in one long vigil from before sunset till dawn, there was no opportunity for the expansion of the service by the addition of later material.

Whilst the basic order of service that has been described is apparent in most of the services, we must observe that there are two exceptions. These are, the first Evening Service and/Morning Service of the Seventh Day of Unleavened Bread. The former is a special service intended primarily as a forerunner to the slaughter of the sacrifice and as such it has none of the features of a normal service. It consists merely of the KATEF of the Meritorious Ones, two Defter pieces and the complete scripture reading Ex.xii.1-XV.21, relevant to the occasion. The prayers for the Seventh Day of Unleavened Bread likewise follow an independent order suited to their part in the pilgrimage to Mount Gerizim and its sacred sites as stated previously.

THE RELATION BETWEEN THE PASSOVER ORDER OF SERVICE AND THE 1ST SABBATH ORDER.

Comparison shows that there is a great similarity between the two basic types of services, outlined above, and those of the Sabbath\(^2\). The simpler Evening Service arrangement is similar to that of the Sabbath Noon Service in which too the KATEF is recited in one continuous sequence without intervening Deuter pieces. In both these services the KATEF is followed by the Prayer of Joshua (C.p. 4), the 'We will bless' - 'God of Abraham' sequence (C.p. 7-9), the Song of Moses a 'hymn of praise' and the SEGUDOTH. We find no reference however, to the bringing forth of the scroll in the Sabbath Noon Service or of a Parashah in the Passover Service. This latter may possibly be matched by the antiphonal reading which, as indicated previously, is a regular feature towards the end of all Passover services and is entitled 'The Reading on the Scripture (Scroll)'.

1. As outlined by Dr. J. Bowman in an Order of Service based upon the Jaffa and Nablus Mss. and correspondence with contemporary Samaritans.

2. Meaning the ordinary Sabbath, as distinct from the Sabbath of Unleavened Bread, and so throughout this Chapter.
There is an even more marked similarity between the Passover Morning Service and that of the Sabbath Morning Service. The alternating cycle of Defter pieces with sections of KATEF, noted above, is likewise found in the Sabbath Morning Order. A difference must, however, be noted, whereas in the Passover Order the arrangement is, one Durran, two Marqah, 'Gloria'¹, KATEF; in the Sabbath Morning the arrangement is, one Durran, one Amram Darrah², 'Gloria' KATEF. In both services the KATEF sequence is followed by, 'Blessed is our God', the Prayer of Joshua, 'We will bless'  Q God of Abraham' (C.p.7-9), Ex.xv., the Hymn of the Angels (C.p.9) 'In sincerity and truth' (C.p.12) a hymn of praise,³, 'One is the Lord, who is honoured' (C.p.36) a 'Gloria', the Prayer of Moses (C.p.48), the bringing forth of the scroll and its attendant readings and prayers, such as the KATEF of the Meritorious Ones, 'This is the great Book' (C.p.56), and the SEGUDOTH.

Whilst there is a definite similarity in the arrangement of the Passover and the Sabbath Services, and also in the liturgical pieces used in the latter part of the service, following the conclusion of the KATEF, no similarity can be found between the Defter pieces that precede the various sections of the KATEF in the earlier part of the service.

1. Otherwise referred to as 'A declaration of praise'.
2. On one occasion this appears to be followed by a further Durran piece.
3. In the Sabbath order the מִי לְהָעָה is identified as that of C.p.288, in the Passover series it is nowhere specified, being merely referred to as 'the customary one'. In the Sabbath of Unleavened Bread a number of such hymns are however, given in full.
Indeed, the only renderings in common, in the first parts of the Passover and Sabbath services, are the introductory 'I stand before Thee at the gate of Thy mercies' (C.p.3) and the Sections of the Creation.

THE SAMARITAN AND THE JEWISH PASSOVER SERVICES.

Passing reference has previously been made to certain similarities between the Samaritan and Jewish orders of service. It is obvious that it is of importance to establish the elements that these have in common as this would be strong evidence of their origination in an early period, when 'borrowing' was possible, if not actually before the original schism. It is to be regretted, therefore, that a great deal cannot be shown in this direction. The Jewish service has a wider field of Biblical literature to draw upon both as scripture readings and as liturgical renderings. In addition to the use of the Pentateuch in the annual cycle of the Reading of the Law, and its liturgical use, particularly the passages ¹Deut. vi. 4-9, xi. 13-21, Num. xv. 37-41 as the pivotal renderings of the daily

1. Cf. The Authorised Daily Prayer Book of the United Hebrew Congregation of the British Empire, p. 40. The opening verse 'Hear 0 Israel' is usually prescribed for recitation before the 'reading on the scroll' (Cf. C.p. 160 line 2; p. 166 line 3) a usage similar to that of the Jewish Service for the Reading of the Law mentioned previously.
morning and evening services, great use is also made of the later sacred writings unacknowledged by the Samaritans. Readings from the prophets, known as the Haftorah, supplement the Pentateuchal, Reading of the Law, and renderings from the Psalms, occupy a very prominent part in the liturgy, particularly the 1Hallel, Psalm xxxiii ff., which is recited as part of the Passover eve, Haggadah service, as well as on the morning of every festival. In addition to these scripture renderings Judaism has evolved the prayer formula known as a 'Benediction' (ברכה), which may be defined as a laudatory or petitional expression of varied length, commencing or concluding with the blessing 2'Blessed art Thou, O Lord our God, King of the Universe ...' Combinations of these Benedictions form the prelude and sequel to the above mentioned pivotal Pentateuch renderings as well as the important 3Amidah prayer. In none of these features is there any similarity between

2. Ibid. p. 4 and so throughout.
3. Ibid. p. 44 and for Passover cf. Service of the Synagogue, A, Davies p. 90. The opening words of this prayer, 'God of Abraham' etc., bears some similarity to the series of 'God of...' expression that are a feature of the KME and SHIBHU hymns, e.g. C.p.167, 239. In Jewish, however, this is limited to the patriarchs whilst the Samaritans use the expression of all the pious Biblical characters from Adam to Phinehas.
Samaritan and Jewish usage, nor is the KATEF either in style or purpose paralleled in Judaism. If anything the Rabbis, possibly in opposition to Samaritan usage, disapproved of the abbreviation of scripture verses, whilst the idea of abbreviated reading of the whole Pentateuch in one prayer-session is unknown except for the comparatively late usage of the vigil of the night of Pentecost and on the night prior to the seventh day of Tabernacles. The only real point of contact that may be cited, therefore, are, the regular use made in both Samaritan and Jewish usage of the scripture portion of Ex.xv., and the style of the Piyutim or Additional Hymns, recited in some Jewish congregations on the festivals, and which are of date comparable to the post-Deftter hymns of the Samaritans. The Piyutim, like many of the Samaritan hymns, are frequently acrostic, both of the alphabet and of the author's name, and they are couched in a specialised poetic language, with frequent use of repeated refrains. Those of the Passover festival, like the Samaritan, dwell at length upon the Exodus and Red Sea themes but it is difficult to point to any specific portions that could be justifiably adduced as evidence of 'borrowing' or of common origin.

Despite this negative result in the search for

1. Cf. ibid., p. 35 and for Passover ibid., p. 79 and as Reading of the Law on the Seventh Day p. 121 ff. common ground in the form and content of the prayers, one particular aspect is of some significance. Certain Haggadic or legendary ideas, alluded to in the hymns of the Passover cycle, have a definite link with those current in Jewish Midrashic sources and are, therefore, probably of comparatively ancient origin. The praises and the virtues of Moses that are frequently alluded to in the liturgy are strongly reminiscent of Jewish teaching. The enumeration and enlarged total of miracles of the Exodus, C.p. 197 line 13, is similar to that of the Passover Haggadah. The reference to the various parties amongst Israel at the Red Sea, C.p. 229 line 32 ff., is comparable to a similar Rabbinic Haggadah\(^1\) and the reference to the parting of the Red Sea into twelve paths, C.p. 230 line 10; 245 line 3, is identical with Rabbinic\(^3\) teaching. The passage, C.p. 232 line 7 ff., describing man as a microcosm also has its parallel in Jewish\(^4\) teaching.

4. Ginzberg ib. I. p. 49
likewise C.p.233 line 14 ff., which describes the two ways before man and affirms 'Your deeds will surely be written down' is reminiscent of the Rabbinic\(^1\) teaching, 'All thy deeds are written in a book'. The reference, C.p.244 line 27, to the affliction of the embryos when the 'pangs took hold on the inhabitants of Philistia' (Ex.xv.14) is in remarkable contrast to the Midrashic statement\(^2\) that even the embryos in the womb joined the melody when Israel sang the Song of Redemption, whilst the suggestion, C.p.247 line 11, that Moses and Israel sang the song in the form of responses is similar to that of the Rabbis\(^3\). The assertion, C.p.250 line 33, that the Temple on Mount Gerizim is built opposite the Temple 'on high' is similar to certain Rabbinic\(^4\) views, that the Temple at Jerusalem, corresponded to the celestial one. The idea that the world was 'founded for the Law' C.p.251 line 9, also has its parallel in Rabbinic\(^5\) teaching. The description of the dialogue between Moses and the Red Sea C.p. 258 line 10, which refused to part at his bidding, is similar in essence

1. Mishnah, Tractate Aboth, ii.1.
2. Ginzberg, ibid, III p. 34.
5. Midrash Rabbah i.4.
to Rabbinic legend.

In addition to these parallels with Rabbinic teaching there is also a possible similarity with a prophetic teaching. In C.p.209 line 11 there appears to be a reference to a future restoration and equalising of the lights of the heavenly luminaries, an idea which is expressed in Isaiah xxx.26 and which is reflected in the Jewish liturgy in the prayer for the restoration of the brilliance of the light of the moon, contained in the service for the Blessing of the New Moon.

THEOLOGICAL CONCEPTS REFLECTED IN THE LITURGY.

The Samaritan creed is succinctly summarised in the affirmation, 'My faith is in Thee Y H W H; and in Moses son of Amram, Thy servant; and in the Holy Law; and in Mount Gerizim, Beth-El; and in the Day of Vengeance and Recompense'. Lengthy, as well as numerous passing references, are made to one or other of these beliefs throughout the Liturgy of the Passover Cycle and no discussion of the Passover Liturgy of the Samaritans would be complete without a summary of the references made therein to these four fundamental teachings and doctrines.

LXXIV.

THE ONE GOD.

The unswerving Samaritan belief in the oneness of God is reflected both in their use of the scripture verse, 'Hear O Israel, the Lord Thy God, is one Lord' and in the constant refrain\(^1\), 'There is no God but One'. The wider attributes and virtues of God are enumerated at length and in great detail in the hymn\(^2\), composed by Abdallah b. Solomon the 14th century writer, for recitation after the prayers of the Seven Days of the Feast of Unleavened Bread, 'in the cool of the day'.

In the above hymn, God is lauded as merciful and gracious and exceedingly\(^3\) patient, greatest amongst the great, ruler of rulers, mighty\(^4\) and tremendous. His power is constant, He is the sovereign\(^5\) of sovereigns, master\(^6\) of masters, highest amongst the high, judge of judges, possessor of all things and most gracious\(^7\) amongst the gracious. He is also the wisest of the wise and most merciful amongst the merciful. He is the hearer of supplications, the knower of hidden things. He is sovereign of lowly\(^9\) and exalted, creator\(^10\) of all the world, conqueror of all battles and performer of all kinds of wonders. His name is,

Almighty God, all-seeing God, the deliverer of those that petition. He is knower of all revealed and hidden things, His name is Yahweh-Nissi. He is God in heaven above and on the earth beneath, there is none other besides Him\textsuperscript{1} from before the beginning. There was no beginning to His existence which endures even after the day of vengeance when His glory will be proclaimed in His greatness. In the words of the scripture, (Deut. xxxii.39.40), 'There is no god with me: I kill and I make alive; I wound and I heal, neither is there any that can deliver out of my hand. I live for ever'. Yahweh is His name, in His excellency on the sky is His habitation. He is the Eternal God, 'Underneath His arms is the world', Most High God is His name, all the world is His. He is one alone and there is no strange god with Him, no partner\textsuperscript{2}, friend or second. He has no likeness, form, image or self\textsuperscript{3}. He has no height, or intimate, He knows without heart, sees\textsuperscript{4} without eye, hears without ear and calls without mouth. He knows the inclination of all, whereas knowledge cannot assess Him. He is to be found in all things yet none can behold Him. He possesses all places yet no place can contain Him. All are subject to His Divine Might. His hand is stretched forth and His dominion is constant. His throne is heaven and earth and He grasps

all. His strength does not weary. He alone is unceasing. He is the Most High but falleth not, the most exalted are low before Him, all the mighty are humble before Him. All rulers become exhausted at His hands and kings are His servants. He is, I AM THAT I AM the doer\(^1\) of whatsoever He desires. He is the ruler that will never change. He does not favour nor take a bribe. He is the Living One, the Seer, hidden from the gaze of the eyes but revealed in the heart's meditations. He is present for those who seek Him, near to those that call. The God of hosts, the God of the spirits\(^2\). He is the sea\(^3\) of good and kindness. He is, "The Lord, a God, full of compassion and gracious, slow to anger and plenteous in mercy and truth". He forgives iniquity, sin, and transgression. He is the Saviour, He is ADONAI. His mercy is sought by the "secret (or, mystery) of His great Name which is holy".

In addition to these expressions almost all of which can be found elsewhere in the liturgy, various other epithets are applied to God, amongst them, the term the Mighty; King of the worlds; mightiest of the mighty, He hath no habitation in earth or in heaven; most upright; and, Rock of salvation.

It is of interest to note the use of the anthromorphic expression 'Creator who made all creation with a finger'. The general tendency of the Samaritans is to avoid anthropomorphisms and the use of this one is of particular significance in view of its similarity to the writing of the Tables of the Law by the finger of God, which Montgomery cites as one standing exception to their usual practice of avoiding such expressions.

Reference has been made previously to the greatness assigned to Moses in Samaritan and Jewish teaching. If anything the Samaritan belief in Moses transcends the Jewish. For the Samaritans the Pentateuch is the Bible and consequently Moses was the sole medium of God's expression, unlike the Jews who canonized the works of the Prophets and acknowledged the authenticity of their inspiration and teaching. For the Samaritans the Lawgiver is an object of faith, belief in him and his Law is a source of blessing. He is constantly referred to as 'our lord Moses', he is the chosen of the scribes. He is the chosen and most exalted of all flesh and all souls. He is the righteous apostle or messenger, the holy, righteous, perfect, faithful, great, exalted prophet — and prince — of the world and of all generations, the crown and diadem of the world, the teacher¹ of teachers. He is the mighty one² of the world, the doer the saviour³, the master⁴ of prayer, his name is associated⁵ with that of God. There is none⁶ before him and none after him. He was created⁷ from a primeval spark, he is the star⁸ of the house of Levi, the sun⁹ of the world and its light. He is acquainted with the mysteries¹⁰ of creation, and the days of vengeance. God knew¹¹ him face to face, and spoke to him mouth to mouth, the skin¹² of his face shone and was clothed with a horn of light. He is the faithful one of God's house the chosen¹³ of the meritorious and the righteous.

2. C.p. 228 line 10.
5. C.p. 161 line 15, Montgomery ibid. p. 226, 'His name alone may be associated with that of God'. Gaster, The Samaritans p. 70 quotes the Gematria יר' יי ג י תר which by numerical calculation i.e. 345 is equal to the name of Moses, for whose sake, according to the Samaritans, the world was created, and who was to live 120 years, the exact number mentioned in that verse.
Moses and the other righteous ones feature prominently in the liturgy, on account of the Samaritan doctrine of the ZEKUT, the Merit of the Fathers which is akin to, though more extensive than, the Jewish which is limited to the patriarchs, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. The Samaritan conception of the meritorious ones, for whose sake all manner of favours are sought, extends from Adam\(^1\) down to Aaron and his sons. Occasionally the patriarchs are specifically alluded to as 'The\(^2\) three that rest in the Cave of Machpelah' or simply 'For\(^3\) the sake of the three', but generally, Joseph and Moses accompany\(^4\) them as well as the other pious characters of the Pentateuch, who constitute the 'chain of merit'. They are the possessors\(^6\) of merit, the meritorious\(^7\) ones of the world, the masters\(^8\) of dignity, 'All prayers in whose name are accepted.'

1. C.p. 169 line 13, p. 231 line 23, p. 240 line 1, p. 241 line 10, p. 243 line 1, in which merit of the fathers is associated with deliverance on the day of vengeance. Cf. also p. 265 line 14, p. 247 line 30.
The pre-eminence of the Pentateuch in Samaritan doctrine has already been stressed; some of its great virtues are reflected in the liturgy. It is the holiest of all laws, books and writings. It is God's holy teaching, His exalted great and mighty scripture, the holiest of all epistles, the perfect Law, there is naught evil in it. For it the world was founded, in its merit too, favours are sought, it is a protecting sword bow and spear. In it reposes happiness and glory and the observance of its precepts is rewarded with a portion in the Garden of Eden. Its adherents proudly declare, 'Who has a scripture like our scripture' and they beseech the God of the righteous apostle to teach them according to the Law and pledge themselves to study His great Book all the days of their lives.

Particular reverence is shown to the scroll, written according to tradition, by the priest Abisha, it is the sacred scroll; it is likened to a mighty king around which Israel gather in glory. Moses is said to have received; although elsewhere we are told that it was written by Abisha the son of Phinehas the son of Eleazar in the thirteenth year of 'favour'. Before it prayers are recited evening and morning and it is accorded the greeting, 'Peace to thee, O scroll of Abisha'.

MOUNT GERIZIM.

The belief in the sanctity of Mount Gerizim is one of the vital differences between Samaritan and Jews. Its designation as the chosen mount of God upon which His Temple should be built, was their most favoured argument in their attempt to prove themselves the custodians of the true Biblical tradition and the real descendants of the ancient Hebrews. Belief in the sanctity of Mount Gerizim, as opposed to Jerusalem, was essential for their survival as a separate sect, so much so that this belief was elevated into an article of faith.

Passover, probably more than any other occasion during the year, is associated with this belief. Prior to the festival they take up their abode upon its slopes; there they slaughter and eat the sacrifice, and to it they again make pilgrimage on the Seventh Day of the Feast of Unleavened Bread. It is natural, therefore, that the Passover Liturgy should reflect, to a substantial degree, their beliefs in, and their reverence for, the 'holy mount'. In the prayers of the Seventh Day we find a hymn by the 19th century composer, Solomon b. Tabiah, devoted entirely to this theme. It enumerates thirteen of the names by which Gerizim is known explaining their significance and tracing their origins. Study of the rest of the liturgy shows, however, that these names are by no means exhaustive. We find that it is also alluded to as the holiest of hills; the gateway of favour; the chosen place; the place of the tribes; the chosen place of the dry land; the holy habitation; the goodly land; the mount of the SHEKINAH. We are told also that the divine 'favour' is spread over it and it is crowned with the cloud. It is the holiest place on earth to which God comes to make His name rest thereat. It is also the storehouse of heaven and mercies. Praises are due to God for having chosen them from all peoples in vouchsafing to them the knowledge of this place in which His awesomeness is revealed. We also learn from the liturgy that they turn to Gerizim in prayer, from wheresoever they may be, as the Jews turn to Jerusalem. It is the crowning place of kings. Mount Gerizim is also associated with their future hopes and aspirations, they look forward to the time when they will be restored to the days of their fathers, when the sanctuary will be revealed and erected as the haven of blessings. They pray also for the revelation of the sacred stones upon which the Law is engraved and which are reputed to be hidden on the sacred spot.

THE DAY OF VENGEANCE AND RECOMPENSE.

The eschatological ideas of the Samaritans centre round the Day of Vengeance and Recompense (תֵּבֵּשׁ תַּפָּא), which is otherwise known as the Last Day or the Great Day. It is the time which will follow the termination of the present Age of Disfavour, when Israel shall enjoy perpetual peace and felicity, while their enemies are suppressed. Although, as observed previously, the Passover liturgy reflects something of their future hopes, comparatively little mention is made of this mystical doctrine. We have noted that Moses was acquainted with the secrets of the Day of Vengeance, that the merit of the fathers delivers on that day and that the glory of God endures both on and after that event. To these may be added two other significant features of the Day that are found in the liturgy. The previously noted reference to the writing down of man's deeds, concludes, that these records are stored away in 'His storehouse till the Day.

of Vengeance and Recompense'. Good deeds will be rewarded by rest in the Garden of Eden whilst evil deeds will be rewarded with the burning fire. This passage seems akin to the later concept of the significance of the Day of Vengeance as a time of individual as well as of communal vindication. Elsewhere we find a further elaboration on the significance of the Day, when, in enumerating the great acts of God, mention is made of His sanctification of the 'Everlasting Hill' from amongst the mountains, 'That He will judge on the Day of Vengeance'. This is probably an allusion to the hope which they entertain for the ultimate repudiation of Jerusalem, and the Jewish sect which is centred round it.

The paucity of references to the Day of Vengeance is somewhat offset by the more frequent allusions to the associated Messianic idea of the Taheb and the anticipated restoration of the days of favour which shall follow the current PANUDA. The Taheb is to be the revealer of hidden or lost truths, the restorer of the glories of the age of Moses, He shall inaugurate the Millenium prior to the Day of Vengeance and assertions have been made that assign him the role of the saviour of the world. Some veiled references to these beliefs seem to be implied in various passages of the Passover liturgy. Thus on one occasion the prayer is made to God to turn His merciful eye to us, bringing the Taheb and the sanctuary whilst on another occasion a hymn describes the making of the Passover in the 'Days of Favour' upon Mount Gerizim when the Sanctuary will be seen, with the ark and all the sacred appurtenances restored. They look forward to that time with the hope that their dignity and glory will be enhanced and their number increased to tens of thousands. In that latter day they will be relived of all oppression and will eat of the heavenly Manna.

THE MANUSCRIPTS.

The manuscripts used in the collation of this work may be divided under two headings (i) Those consulted by Cowley in the preparation of his text of the Passover liturgy (ii) Those not available to Cowley. Of the former, all have been available in microfilm form only, consequently, with one exception, no further description of their general condition can be given beyond that offered by Cowley\(^1\). One of these, however, is from the collection of the Earl of Crawford, in the John Rylands Library at Manchester, for which a full and adequate description is furnished, in the Catalogue prepared by Prof. E. Robertson, and which will be substantially reproduced here in its appropriate place. Of those not available to Cowley two are in the possession of the University of Leeds, and can therefore be described in detail, whilst the remainder are from the British Museum Collection and have only been available in microfilm and consequently can only be described briefly. It may be assumed, however, that the general external condition of these Mss. conforms to that of those described by Cowley, since, as he states, these Samaritan liturgical Mss. are uniform in character.

LXXXIX.

Cowley describes the Mss. used by him as follows, "They are usually of stout oriental paper, about 8 x 6\textsuperscript{1/2}", written as a rule in a cursive hand, not in the formal character used in copies of the Pentateuch; and bound in native leather. The biblical passages, which form a large part of the liturgy, are written continuously, the hymns generally in double lines\textsuperscript{1} forming two columns\textsuperscript{1}. To this may be added that in most Mss., the headings\textsuperscript{2} of scripture verses, forming a prominent part of many of the services, are written in inverted triangular shape in two columns down the page.

1. Cowley further observes that in order to save space the hymns are printed in his work, continuously, but a single point is placed at the end of the first half-line and a double point at the end of the second half. These points are not to be regarded in any sense as stops. They simply indicate the arrangement of the text in the Ms., or in prose passages, perhaps pauses in chanting.

On paper of good quality, with watermark V.G.(?) in capital letters. The Codex is bound uniformly with the rest of the collection, and has two binder's fly leaves at each end. It comprises 58 leaves (The pagination gives 57 but a leaf has been omitted after 52). The text (including title) occupies all the pages except the last (58b). The present measurements of the pages are 3.2 in by 6 in. The size of the text column is 4.7 in by 4.1 in. There are 28 to 31 lines to a full page and about 32 letters to a line. The script is Samaritan miniscule in a beautiful hand. Arabic is used in the rubrics, in which red ink is largely used at the outset. Elsewhere a black (Indian) ink has been used. The Ms. has formed part of a larger collection originally, for the gatherings of 10 folios are numbered with Samaritan letter numbers, and the numbers, found at every 10th folio, are 32 to 35. There are catch words throughout.

The general condition of the Ms. is good and no damage has been done to the text. There are many corrections by the original hand using the margins. There are also others by another hand. Filiation (modern) is by pencilled numbers. One folio has been left accidentally unnumbered between 52 and 53.

It has been transcribed by Muslim (Mashlamah), Ibn Murjan, Ibn Ibrahim, the Danafite, in the year A.H. 1120 (A.D. 1708).
In London (British Museum).

The additions alluded to include services for the Sabbaths of the first month and a diagram in Arabic presumably a Calendar. Ff. 21b, 22 have a peculiar spacing arrangement, the scribe in writing has left spaces which form a circular design in the text. The folios described as earlier, appear to be by a different hand.

This Ms. has the distinctive feature that the Pentateuch KETAFIM are frequently abbreviated, the Arabic et seq., is found at various points followed by substantial omissions. The most prominent of these have been noted. Microfilm only.

Photostat copies of the Ms. prepared from the microfilm show that it is in fairly good condition apart from lacuna on ff.la,lb. The rubrics, mainly Hebrew, appear to be written in red ink and consequently are frequently illegible on the copy. Folio la. is numbered in Samaritan letter numbers, fourteen, and henceforth every tenth folio is numbered, the last number being twenty nine, on folio 151. This is doubly significant in that it indicates that a short volume, possibly prayers for the sabbaths of the first month, prior to Passover, preceded this one. It also shows some affinity of style with Cr.13, the work of this writer's son. C.p.263 note 3, indicates that the Ms. ends on f. 158 b.; there are, however, two further folios giving a KATEF, Unleavened Bread, Sea, Harvest, for the night of the termination of the Sabbath of Unleavened Bread. The KETAFIM throughout are given in full.

The additions contain an order of service for the termination of the Sabbath of the Feast of Unleavened Bread which C. does not reproduce. There are also arabic rubrics giving directions concerning eating and burning of the remnant of the paschal sacrifice. There are frequent underlinings of phrases containing the 'key' words in the KETAFIM. The KETAFIM are abbreviated similarly to, though not as frequently as L.5, Microfilm only.
At Paris (National Library).
P.18. = Ms. Samar. 18. Ff. 74. Incomplete. No scribe mentioned. For the Sabbath of Mazzoth. Ff. 7-59, 61-63 in a good hand like that of Tabia b. Isaac. Lacuna between Ff. 16 and 17. Ends on f. 63 b., with a catchword נַחֲנָה shewing that another service followed. Ff. 4-6, 64-74 additions by a late bad hand like that of L.7. The early part was specially collated for the vowel-signs, which are carefully marked. (C.).

The later hand referred to in C.p. 224 note 7, which has made the addition to the Gloria on f.7, appears to be that of the writer of the first six folios. There are occasional underlinings of passages containing 'key' words in the KETAFIM, sometimes even in the acrostic hymn 'O assembly' (C.p.162) which is interspersed in the KATEF. Microfilm only.

At the University of Leeds.
Ls.3. Written on stiff, rather glossy Oriental paper, bound in brown leather with flap and slight tooling. Fly-leaf at the beginning. Comprises 185 pages. Pages measure 8½"x6" with ample margins. There are 31 lines to a full page, each line about 25 letters to a line. Script is cursive. The rubrics are mainly Arabic. It is written in thick black ink throughout including the rubrics. From p. 174 ff. is by a later hand. Page 17 is numbered 34 with Samaritan letter numbers, and subsequently every twenty pages, likewise, the last being p. 157 numbered 41. This, and the fact that there is no title page, indicates that the volume is part of a larger work. There is no number on page 177, as might have been expected, but this is by the later hand. The Ms. is in good condition and the text is legible throughout. Page 28 has a piece of paper pasted on size 4.3" x 3.2" on which the text is written in keeping with the general context. The Ms. is for the Sabbath of the Feast of Unleavened Bread. On p. 163 this is followed by the KATEF for the termination of the Sabbath, followed by four additional hymns the last of which is in the later hand. On p. 36 one word has been improved by this same hand.

On p. 168 the date is given as 1184 H. (1770 A.D.) and the writer as Mufarrij ibn. Joshua. On p. 174 the date 1197 H (1783 A.D.) is given and the writer Solomon ibn Surur. The same writer is mentioned on p. 185 where the date given is 1200 H. (1786).

Ls. 6. Written on modern Oriental paper, without water mark, size of page 7½" x 5", number of lines to the page average 30 with approx. 31 letters to the line. Originally in Oriental flap binding. Semi-cursive script, written in faded black ink and extensive use of red ink in rubrics, responses, etc. The rubrics are mainly in Hebrew. There are 176 folios. The Ms. is not a unity, ff. 76-91 are from a separate older Ms., they are written on stiff, somewhat glossy paper like that of Ls.3 and are in a bolder hand, similar to the last pages of Ls.3. After F.80 one folio is missing. One of the older folios, F.82, has the Samaritan letter number 19. The old Ms. breaks off in the middle of a prayer which is continued in the same hand and paper as the rest of the book. After f. 100 there are five blank pages, on one of which there is written in English, "Presented by Jacob Shellibeh of Nablus, Samaria to Thomas Richardson, Glasgow, 30th April, 1872." followed by an arabic note. Folio 76, the first of the older portion of the Ms., has a piece of paper, size $3\frac{1}{2}'' \times 2\frac{1}{2}''$ pasted on, on which is written, in Arabic, that the following folios had been found in his father Amram's house, and he thought to include them for they were by the hand of the late Sheikh, Abdallah b. Yussef al-matarb.

The later portion of the Ms. contains the prayers for Passover, the Sabbath of the Feast of Unleavened Bread and a service for the termination of that Sabbath. The older portion contains the hymns for the Passover Table C.p. 180-200.
The frontispiece f.la gives the date 1262 H. (1848 A.D.) and this is likewise given on f. 28 where also the writer is stated to be Solomon b. Tabiah. The same date is given on f. 175 b. The older portion is c. 1100 H. (1688).

Stuck together to form covers to the whole Ms. were fragments from an even older Ms. for Zimuth La-Sukkoth. On the last page of the complete Ms. are notes in two different hands, the first dated 1256 H., the second 1259 H.

The main portion of the Ms. presents a reliable and helpful text in which KETAFIM and liturgical responses are given in full.

British Museum, Easter Collection,

BM(G)837 = Or. Ms. 837 FF. III.F. 65 states that it is written by Amin b. Jacob b. Zedaqah b. Joseph the Samaritan the Danafite. On f. 90 b. this is repeated though the third name is obscure. It is for the Seventh Day of the Feast of Unleavened Bread, the feast of Pentecost and Tabernacles. FF.1-68b coincide with C.p. 269-276 line 20, after which follows the Pentecost series. The rest of Cowley's service for the feast of Unleavened Bread is omitted, suggesting that this is a separate service. F.65 gives the date 1316 H (1900 A.D.) Date and scribe are confirmed on f. 112b. Written in clear legible hand, with rubrics and liturgical responses apparently in red ink. Microfilm only.
From f. 41b it appears to be written by Joseph b. Israel and the date to have been 1277 H. (1865 A.D.). First 29 folios contain prayers of Sabbaths of the first month. F. 29b, has a calendar of Passover from 1306-1380 H. F. 31b ff. prayers for Passover, including the MEDINAH service. The Sabbath of Unleavened Bread and the service for the termination thereof, which C. omits. Morning prayers for the seven days of the Feast of Unleavened Bread. From f. 190 onwards is indistinct and appears to contain some unrelated hymns one for the Day of Atonement. F. 79b and f. 80 are on one plate and appear to have been photographed twice. Writing in background can be discerned in microfilm apparently due to dampness.

Some of the rubrics appear to be directions concerning the Passover sacrifice. Like Ls. 6 this Ms. gives examples of antiphonal scripture readings in full. Microfilm only.

F. 99 b = C. p. 186 line 19, has אָזִי מֶשֶׁחְּא for אָזִי מֶשֶׁחְּא; similarly f. 102b = C. p. 189 line 30, has אָזִי מֶשֶׁחְּא for אָזִי מֶשֶׁחְּא a significant pointer to the Samaritan pronunciation Elwemג.

BM(G) 855 = Or. Ms. 855. Ff. 57, a later hand, probably Dr. Gaster has erroneously written 60f. as the total, on the last page. Written by Ismail b. Israel. Date obscure, evidently modern, probably 19th century.
XCVIII.
Contains prayers for the evening and the day of the Feast of Unleavened Bread. An important Ms. because on f.51b = C. p.276 line 22 it has a new heading indicating that the following is a MEDINAH service and giving directions for the usual KETAFIM and liturgical renderings at the beginning and end of the service (Cf. C. p. 281 line 25). On f. 41b there appears to be a hole in the Ms.

Microfilm only.

COWLEY'S TEXT.

Passing reference has been made previously to some of the shortcomings of Cowley's method of presentation of the Passover liturgy. An appreciation of the true character of the Samaritan mode of worship is impaired by the omission of the KETAFIM, an important instructional and devotional element of the services. Similarly, the omission of the antiphonal readings obscures a unique example of the liturgical use of Biblical passages. We have also found that what appears to be a series of Table Songs, or a Table Service, is erroneously combined under one heading with the Passover MEDINAH Service and that what appears to be an appendage to the service for the Seventh day of the Feast of Unleavened Bread, is actually part of a MEDINAH Service for that occasion, when it is not possible to make the customary ascent of Mount Gerizim. Likewise we have noted Cowley's omission of a service for the Termination of the Sabbath of the Feast of Unleavened Bread, an important event in the Samaritan Calendar, in so far as it marks the beginning of the period of the counting of the Omer. This omission is made good in the appendix of the present work, where a complete order of service is given according to Ls.6. We have also noted Cowley's inability to assign the hymns on pp. 176-179 to their rightful place in the MEDINAH Service; this has now been made possible with the assistance of BM(G)843. In this connection we must also observe that his order of service for the Sabbath of the Feast of Unleavened Bread is by no means universally accepted. His footnotes make occasional reference to additions or omissions in P.18, but they do not make manifest that P.18 also varies the order of some of the existing hymns and scripture readings. These, and other differences of arrangement are clearly illustrated in the Table of Services in the accompanying folder appended to this work.

Besides these criticisms of Cowley's method of presentation, certain observations concerning the text itself must also be made. Although the present work endeavours to present a translation, and not a critical text, the opportunity has been taken of investigating and presenting in the form of footnotes, all relevant variations between the Mss. Mere orthographic differences are not referred to as the scribes appear to be so inconsistent in their spellings that these are too numerous for presentation in a work of this kind and are irrelevant to the task of establishing a fair and accurate rendering of the liturgy. In the course of these investigations it has been observed that Cowley has omitted a number of actual variants, particularly from L.6, which for a portion at least, is the actual basis of his text. The most significant of these are as follows.

| C.p. 180 line 24 | כזקננ | L.6 | similarly Ls.6 |
| C.p. 182 line 8 | כזקננ | L.6 |
| C.p. 182 line 12 | כזקננ | L.6 |
| C.p. 182 line 16 | כזקננ | L.6 |
| C.p. 182 line 31 | כזקננ | L.6 |
| C.p. 182 line 32 | כזקננ | L.6 |
| C.p. 184 line 16 | כזקננ | L.6 |
| C.p. 185 line 1 | כזקננ | L.6 |
| C.p. 224 line 21 note 2 | כזקננ | L.6 |

In conclusion it must be emphasised that these and the other criticisms, expressed during the course of this introduction, must not be regarded as a detraction from the authenticity or the great value of the text that Prof. Cowley has so painstakingly and carefully prepared. The text, as presented, is an impressive compilation of... virtually all that is available of Samaritan Passover liturgical compositions and an invaluable basis for the assembling of a comprehensive order of the services, commemorating the festival, which for them is, "The pillar of the world".

PASSOVER EVENING SERVICE I.

THE PRAYERS OF THE FEAST OF PASSOVER.

IN THE NAME OF THE GREAT LORD.

The customary order of the blessed Passover follows that of the other customary festival orders. First the priest begins the prayers of the sacrifice 'between the evenings', then the priest begins and says,

And the congregation greet (on this festive occasion), the high priest and one another with rejoicing and gladness (saying) 'May God not cut off His feasts from Israel.'

l. 'And the Lord spoke unto Moses and Aaron in the land

1. The MSS. here give a complete reading of Ex. xii.1.-xv.21. The text conforms in the main to the Samaritan version the principal differences from the M.T. being;

(1) Ex. xii.17 which reads, "And ye shall observe the commandment."

(2) Ex. xii.40 which reads, "Now the sojournings of the Children of Israel and their fathers who dwelt in the land of Canaan and in the land of Egypt was four hundred and thirty years."

(3) Ex. xv.3 which reads, "The Lord is mighty in war". In Ex. xiv.10, after the words, 'And when Pharaoh drew nigh,' there is an interpolation of seven words from Ex. xii.12, meaning 'And against all the gods of Egypt I will execute judgement. I am the Lord'. The S.P. shows a break in the midst of the verse at this point, but there is no indication of this interpolation in the text.

After Ex.xv.21., there are quotations from, Ex. xviii.10-11; Num. xxxiii.3-4 and Deut. xvi.1-8. Twelve verses of the acrostic hymn 'Come in peace' are interspersed at various places in the middle of the Biblical reading (cf. C.p.158,note 4). The pauses for the hymn are in the same places as those in the reading for Evening Service II, the Hebrew text of which is given in the Appendix and the translation of which is in the appropriate place in the body of the work.
of Egypt' (Ex. xii.1) et cet.

And when they have finished this section they lower the sacrifice (into the oven).

'And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying: Sanctify unto Me all the first-born whatsoever openeth the womb .... there shall no leavened bread be eaten this day' and they proceed 'For ye go forth in the month of Abib' (Ex.xiii.1-4)

And they proceed, 'Six days thou shalt eat unleavened bread.' (Deut. xvi.8) et cet.

And they chant, 'This is that night of watching unto the Lord' (Ex. xii. 42) et seq., and three proclamations antiphonally.

Then there is said, 'The Lord, a god full of compassion and gracious, slow to anger and plenteous in mercy and truth' (Ex. xxxiv. 6.)

And if the Feast of Passover was on a Sabbath then they chant instead, 'This is that night' (Ex. xii.42), 'Thou shalt therefore keep this ordinance' (Ex. xiii.10) and the slaughtering of the sacrifice is at noon and the order is as proceeds. Before the setting of the sun they lift the sacrifice and they connect the Sabbath prayers with the customary(festival) order and 'Welcome' (C.p. 114) all of it. And when they begin it, then they turn and lower the sacrifice. And God knows best.

Prayers for the night of the feast of Passover.

They begin the prayers proclaiming and saying, 'At the gate of Thy mercies (C. p. 3.), 'For in the Name' (Deut. xxxii. 3) and 'The sections of the Creation', and then the elders begin the KATEF in this place:

"And they shall take of the blood and put it on two side posts and on the lintel, upon the houses, wherein they shall eat it. And they shall eat the flesh in that night, roast with fire, and unleavened bread; with bitter herbs they shall eat it. Eat not of it raw, nor sodden at all with water, but roast with fire; its head with its legs, and with the inwards thereof. And ye shall let nothing of it remain until the morning; but that which remaineth of it until the morning ye shall burn with fire. And thus shall ye eat it; with your loins girded, your shoes on your feet, and your staff in your hand; and ye shall eat it in haste: it is the Lord’s passover. For I will go through the land of Egypt in that night, and will smite all the firstborn in the land of Egypt, both man and beast; and they proceed and against all the gods of Egypt I will execute judgements: I am the Lord. (Ex.xii. 7-12)"

For whosoever eateth that which is leavened, that soul shall be cut off from the congregation of Israel, whether he be a sojourner or one that is born in the land. And they proceed Ye shall eat nothing leavened; in all your habitations shall ye eat unleavened bread (Ex. xii. 19-20).

And then is said

Great Glory to God,
Who came down at midnight
And slew the firstborn of the Egyptians
And delivered the firstborn of the Hebrews.

"Then Moses called for all the elders of Israel, and said unto them, Draw out and take you lambs according to your families, and kill the passover (Ex. xii.21). And the people bowed the head and worshipped. And the children of Israel went and did so, as the Lord had commanded Moses and Aaron so did they. (Ex. xii. 27-28).

And then is said
And it came to pass at midnight that the Lord smote all the first born in the land of Egypt, from the firstborn of Pharaoh that sat on his throne unto the firstborn of the captive that was in the dungeon; and all the first-born of cattle.

And Pharaoh rose up in the night, he, and all his servants, and all the Egyptians; and there was a great cry in Egypt; for there was not a house where there was not one dead. And he called for Moses and Aaron by night, and said, rise up, get ye forth from among my people, both ye and the children of Israel; and go, serve the Lord as ye have said. Take both your flocks and your herds, as ye have said and be gone; and bless me also. And the Egyptians were urgent upon the people, to send them out of the land in haste; for they said, We be all dead men. And the people took their dough before it was leavened, their kneading troughs being bound up in their clothes upon their shoulders. And the children of Israel did according to the word of Moses; and they asked of the Egyptians jewels of silver, and jewels of gold, and raiment. And they proceed. PASSOVER EVENING SERVICE II.

Thou overthrewest them that rise up against Thee: Thou sendest forth Thy wrath, it consumeth them as stubble. And with the blast of Thy nostrils the waters were piled up the floods stood upright as an heap, and the deeps were congealed in the heart of the sea.

The enemy said, I will pursue, I will overtake, I will divide the spoil; my lust shall be satisfied upon them; I will draw my sword, my hand shall destroy them. Thou didst blow with thy wind, the sea covered them: they sank as lead in the mighty waters. And they proceed. Who is like unto Thee, O Lord, among the gods? who is like Thee, glorious in holiness, fearful in praises, doing wonders. And one proclamation.

Thou stretchedst out Thy right hand, the earth swallowed them. Thou in Thy mercy hast led the people which Thou hast redeemed Thou hast guided them in Thy strength to Thy holy habitation. The peoples have heard, and they tremble. Pangs have taken hold on the inhabitants of Philistia. Then were the dukes of Edom amazed; the mighty men of Moab, trembling taketh hold upon them; all the inhabitants of Canaan are melted away, Terror and dread falleth upon them And they proceed. By the greatness of Thine arm they are as still as stone: Till Thy people pass over, O Lord, till the people pass over, which Thou hast purchased. And one proclamation

1. Moses commanded us a law, an inheritance for the assembly of Jacob (ib. 4). Happy art thou, 0 Israel, who is like unto thee, a people saved by the Lord, the shield of thy help, and that is the sword of the excellency! And thine enemies shall submit themselves unto thee; and, thou shalt tread upon their high places (ib. 29). And the Lord shewed him all the land (ib. xxxiv. l.). And the Lord said unto him, This is the land which I sware unto thy fathers unto Abraham, unto Isaac and unto Jacob (ib. 4). Remembered for good, for ever are the meritorious ones of the world, the possessors of merit, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, they that dwell in the cave of Machpelah, all prayers in whose name are accepted, for their memory, 0 their God.

"And Joshua, the son of Nun was full of the spirit of wisdom, for Moses had laid his hands upon him and the children of Israel hearkened unto him, and did as the Lord commanded Moses (ib. 9). The peace of the Lord be upon the prophet, the righteous, the perfect, the pure, the faithful Moses. The great prophet of the world, the law-giver, of the world, the messenger of God, the teacher of life, the one who was clad in a ray of light, the faithful one of the house of God; peace be upon him for ever.

The most gracious amongst the gracious, the righteous and upright. In His greatness, He appointed various festivals for Israel; their glory is exceedingly great. Amongst them is this Feast of Passover, upon which He comforteth us. Upon it we offer sacrifices as it saith in the Law, by the hand of the faithful prophet, the choicest of the sons of Eber.

That is Moses, whose name is renowned, who taught us in the Law, 'And the Lord God planted a garden eastward in Eden, and there He put the man whom He had formed' (Gen. ii. 8).

This verse marks the beginning of the KATEF, which is given in full in the Ms. and, unlike the Evening KATEF above, occurs in sections, separated from one another by liturgical pieces. This first section is basically the same as that of Evening Service II, L.6.f.12-13; the variants only are given here. Any divergences between the Ms. are noted; apart from these it may be assumed that the various Ms. collated, agree.

3. This verse contains three obscure terms, military ensigns, standards. The same term is used, C.p.170 line 12, with עֵינָה, meaning to enrich. The second term is taken as a derivative of מְדִינָה, strong; and the third as a derivative of uncovered or revealed with prefixed. Jastrow's rendering of the first term, 'military ensign' does, however, suggest that an alternative rendering of the verse is possible in which the last term is regarded as a derivative of עֵינָה, a banner; the verse would then read, 'These were his ensign; his strength and his merit were spread forth upon his banners'. The term is found on C.p.165 line 3 apparently meaning, a large host or assembly. It may therefore be taken to mean 'his treasure, strength and merit were spread upon his hosts' i.e. his descendants.

And the sons of Rachel, Joseph (ib.24). These are the generations of Jacob, Joseph. And Joseph brought (Gen. xxxvii.2). Now Israel loved Joseph (ib.3). And Joseph dreamed (ib.5). And Israel said unto Joseph (ib.13). And Joseph went (ib.17). And it came to pass when Joseph was come that they stript Joseph (ib.23). And they drew and lifted up Joseph and sold Joseph. And they brought Joseph (ib.28) And behold Joseph was not (ib.29). And they took Joseph's coat (ib.31). Joseph is without doubt torn in pieces (Gen. xxxvii.33). And the Midianites sold Joseph (ib.36). Saying this came out first (Gen.xxxviii.28). And Joseph was brought down to Egypt (Gen.xxxix.1). And the Lord was with Joseph (ib.2). And Joseph found (ib.4). That the Lord blessed the Egyptian's house for Joseph's sake (ib.5). And he left all that he had in Joseph's hand... and Joseph was comely and well favoured ... His master's wife cast her eyes upon Joseph (ib.6-7). And it came to pass as she spake to Joseph (ib.10). That Joseph went into the house (ib.11). And Joseph's master took (ib.20), But the Lord was with Joseph (ib.21). To Joseph's hand (ib.22). Because the Lord was with him and that which he did the Lord made it to prosper (ib.23). - The place where Joseph (ib.xl.3). And the captain of the guard charged Joseph (ib.xl.4). And Joseph came in unto them (ib.6) And Joseph said unto them (ib.8). And the chief butler told his dream to Joseph (ib.9). And Joseph said unto him (ib.12). After the former manner (ib.13). But have me in thy remembrance when it shall be well with thee, and shew kindness, I pray thee, unto me, and make mention of me unto Pharaoh (ib.14). And he said unto Joseph (ib.16). And Joseph answered (ib.18). As Joseph interpreted to them. Yet did not the butler remember Joseph ( ib.23). I do remember (Gen.xli.9). Then Pharaoh sent and called Joseph ( ib.xli.14). And Pharaoh said unto Joseph (ib.15). And Joseph answered (ib.16). And Pharaoh spake unto Joseph (ib.xli.17). And Joseph said unto Pharaoh (ib.25) And for that the dream was doubled unto Pharaoh twice, it is because the thing is established by God, and God will shortly bring it to pass (ib.32). Can we find such a one as this, a man in whom the spirit of God is? And Pharaoh said unto Joseph (ib.38-39).

And Pharaoh said unto Joseph (ib.41). And put it upon Joseph's hand (ib.42). And Pharaoh said unto Joseph (ib.44). And Pharaoh called Joseph's name... And Joseph went out (ib.45). And Joseph was thirty years old... And Joseph went out (ib.46). And Joseph laid up (ib.48). And unto Joseph were born (ib.50). And Joseph called (ib.51). To come, according as Joseph had said (ib.54). Go unto Joseph (ib.55). And Joseph opened (ib.56). And all the countries came into Egypt to Joseph for to buy corn (ib.57). And Joseph's brethren went down (Gen.xlii.3). But Benjamin, Joseph's brother (Gen. xlii.4). And Joseph was the governor over the land; he it was that sold to all the people of the land; and Joseph's brethren came (Gen.xlii.6).

Joseph's brethren came (Gen.xlii.6). And Joseph saw (ib.7). And Joseph knew (ib.8). And Joseph remembered (ib.9). And Joseph said unto them (ib.14). And Joseph said unto them (ib.18). And they knew not that Joseph understood (ib.23). Then Joseph commanded (ib.25). Joseph (ib.36) Take also your brother and arise, and go again unto the man: And God Almighty give you mercy before the man (Gen.xliii.13-14). And they stood before Joseph. And when Joseph saw (ib.15-16). And the man did as Joseph bade: and the man brought the men into Joseph's house. And the men were afraid, because they were brought into thee (ib. 27). And he wrote upon the tables the words of the covenant, (ib.28). Six days shall work be done, but on the seventh day there shall be to you an holy day, a sabbath of solemn rest to the Lord. . . 1 Ye shall kindle no fire throughout your habitations upon the sabbath day (Ex. xxxv. 2-3). And he put them on the shoulder pieces of the ephod, to be stones of memorial for the children of Israel; as the Lord commanded Moses (Ex. xxxix. 7).

The peace of the Lord be upon the prophet, the righteous, perfect, pure, faithful Moses. And they made the Urim and Thumim; as the Lord commanded Moses (Not in M.T.)
The peace of the Lord upon the prophet et seq. And they made the robe (Ex. xxxix. 22) to minister in; as the Lord commanded Moses (ib.26). The peace of the Lord upon the prophet et seq. Thus was finished (ib.32) Its clasps, its boards (ib.33). And Moses saw all the work, and, behold, they had done it as the Lord had commanded, even so had they done it; and Moses blessed them (ib.43).
O Lord bestow upon us of the blessing of the prophet, the righteous, perfect, pure, faithful Moses. On the first day of the first month (Ex. xl. 2). And it came to pass in the first month (ib.17). And he put the covering of the tent above upon it; as the Lord commanded Moses (ib.19).
The peace of the Lord upon the prophet et seq. And he took and put the testimony . . . and screened the ark of the testimony; as the Lord commanded Moses (ib.20-21).

PASSOVER MORNING SERVICE.

The peace of the Lord upon the prophet, et seq. And he put the table . . . And he set the bread in order upon it before the Lord; as the Lord commanded Moses (ib. 22-23).

The peace of the Lord upon the prophet et seq. And he put the candlestick . . . And he lighted the lamps before the Lord; as the Lord commanded Moses (ib. 24-25).

The peace of the Lord upon the prophet et seq. And he put the altar . . . And he burnt thereon incense; as the Lord commanded Moses (ib. 26-27).

The peace of the Lord upon the prophet et seq. And he put the screen . . . and offered upon it the burnt offering and the meal offering; as the Lord commanded Moses (ib. 28-29).

The peace of the Lord upon the prophet et seq. And he set the laver (ib. 30) And when they came near unto the Altar, they washed; as the Lord commanded Moses (ib. 32).

The peace of the Lord upon the prophet et seq. And he reared up the court round about the tabernacle and the altar and set up the screen of the gate of the court.

So Moses finished the work. Then the cloud covered the tent of meeting, and the glory of the Lord filled the tabernacle. And Moses was not able to enter into the tent of meeting, because the cloud abode thereon, and the glory of the Lord (Ex. xl. 33-35). For the cloud of the Lord, . . . throughout all their journeys (ib. 38).
Then is said, 'Moses commanded us a law ...' (Deut. xxxiii. 4) and three proclamations and 'Praised be' and Durran, 'God is great' (C. p. 40) and Marqah 'Thou art Creator' (C. p. 22) and 'The ancient God' (C. p. 23) and a 'Gloria'.

The Might, who remembered His covenant with the meritorious ones of the world and delivered their children from Egypt by making miracles to come to pass on this feast of Passover, by the hand of the chosen of all souls - That is Moses, whose Lord knew him and sent him to deliver Israel. 'On the morrow after the Passover, the children of Israel went out with an high hand.'

'God is great et seq. and 'For in the Name' (Deut. xxxii. 3) and the elders begin the KATEF.

L.6.f.55 line 3 adds at the beginning,

'And the priest shall burn the memorial thereof (Lev. xi. 2)
And when thou offerest an oblation of a meal offering baked in the oven, it shall be unleavened cakes of fine flour . . .

or unleavened wafers . . . it shall be unleavened (ib. 495)
And the priest shall take up from the meal offering the memorial thereof (ib. 9). And every oblation of thy meal offering shalt thou season with salt; neither shalt thou suffer the salt of the covenant of thy God to be lacking from thy meal offering; with all thine oblations thou shalt offer salt (ib. 13). And the priest shall burn the memorial of it. (ib. 16). All the fat is the Lord's.
It shall be a perpetual statute throughout your generations in all your dwellings, that ye shall eat neither fat nor blood (Lev. iii. 16-17).

L.6.f.55 line 12 adds,

And he shall take his handful of it as the memorial thereof, (ib. 12). Command Aaron and his sons saying, This is the law of the burnt offering, the burnt offering shall be on the hearth upon the altar all night unto the morning. (ib. vi. 9 (2)). And the priest shall burn wood on it every morning; and he shall lay the burnt offering in order upon it, and shall burn thereon the fat of the peace offerings. Fire shall be kept burning upon the altar continually; it shall not go out (ib. 12-13 (5-6)).
And he shall burn it upon the altar a fire offering, for a sweet savour, as the memorial thereof unto the Lord . . .
without leaven (ib. 15-16 (8-9)). Then he shall offer with the sacrifice of thanksgiving unleavened cakes . . . and unleavened wafers (Lev. vii. 12). And the basket of unleavened bread (Lev. viii. 2). And out of the basket of unleavened bread (ib.26).

L.6.f.55 line 22 adds,

And burnt it upon the altar, besides the burnt offering of the morning (ib.ix.17).

L.6.f.55 line 27 adds,

And eat it without leaven (ib.x.12)

L.6.f.55 line 29 adds,

Ye shall therefore keep my statutes, and my judgements; which if a man do, he shall live in them; I am the Lord (Lev. xviii.5.). Ye shall be holy: for I the Lord your God am holy. Ye shall fear every man his mother and his father, and ye shall keep My sabbaths: I am the Lord your God (Lev. xix. 2-3).

L.6.f. 55b line 4 adds,

Ye shall keep my sabbaths, and reverence my sanctuary: I am the Lord (ib.30).

L.6.f.55b line 11 adds,

Which ye shall proclaim to be holy convocations, even these are My feasts. Six days shall work be done: but on the seventh day is a sabbath of solemn rest, an holy convocation; ye shall do no manner of work; it is a sabbath unto the Lord in all your dwellings. And these are the set feasts of the Lord, even holy convocations, which ye shall proclaim in their appointed season.
(In the first month) on the fourteenth day of the month at even is the Lord's passover. And on the fifteenth day of the same month is the feast of unleavened bread unto the Lord: seven days ye shall eat unleavened bread. (In the first day) ye shall have an holy convocation ... and in the seventh day is an holy convocation: ye shall do no servile work (Lev.xxiii.2-8). L.6.f.55b line 24 adds, That it may be to the bread for a memorial, even an offering made by fire unto the Lord. Every sabbath day he shall set it in order before the Lord continually; it is on the behalf of the children of Israel an everlasting covenant (ib.xxiv.7-8). Ye shall keep my sabbaths, and reverence my sanctuary: I am the Lord (Lev.xix.30). L.6.f.56 line 6 adds, And I will remember the land (ib.xxvi.42). C.p.164 line 19. Then is said, 'Moses commanded us a law' (Deut.xxxiii.4) et seq. and three proclamations and, 'The Lord, a God full of compassion and gracious' (Ex. xxxiv.6). Then is said, Durran, 'Defenders...' (C.p.42) and Margah, 'O living God' (C.p.24) and 'The One God' (C.p.25) and there is said a 'Gloria'.

PASSOVER MORNING SERVICE.

The Might, who redeemed our fathers from Egypt with glorious miracles and set apart for us holy festivals which are exceedingly glorious. Amongst them is this feast of Passover upon which we are comforted and upon which we offer sacrifices upon this, the 'One of the mountains'.

And we will eat them roasted by fire as He said in His holy writ, 'There thou shalt sacrifice the passover at even, at the going down of the sun, at the season that thou comest forth out of Egypt'.

'God is great' et seq. and 'For in the Name' (Deut. xxxii,3) et seq. and the elders begin the KATEF.

L.6.f.59 line 10, adds,

1. In the presence of Aaron their father (Num.iii.4).

And Eleazar the son of Aaron the priest shall be prince of the princes of the Levites (ib.32). And the charge of Eleazar the son of Aaron the priest shall be the oil for the light, and the sweet incense, and the continual meal offering, and the anointing oil (ib.iv.16). But if the man have no kinsman to whom restitution may be made for the guilt, the restitution for guilt which is made unto the Lord, shall be the priests (ib.v.8). For it is a meal offering of jealousy, a meal offering of memorial, bringing iniquity to remembrance (ib.15). The offering of memorial ... which is the meal offering of jealousy. (ib.18). And the priest shall remove from the meal offering the memorial thereof (ib.26). And a basket of unleavened bread, cakes of fine flour mingled with oil, and unleavened wafers (ib.vi.15). With the basket of unleavened bread (ib.17). One unleavened cake. . . and one unleavened wafer (ib.19).

This is the law of the Nazarite who voweth, and of his oblation unto the Lord for his separation, beside that which he is able to get: according to his vow which he voweth, so he must do after the law of his separation (ib.21). And the Lord spake unto Moses saying, Speak unto Aaron and his sons, saying (ib. 22-23).

L.6.f.59b line 1 adds,

They shall eat it with unleavened bread and bitter herbs (ib.ix.11). At the commandment of the Lord they encamped, and at the commandments of the Lord they journeyed; they kept the charge of the Lord, at the commandment of the Lord by the hand of Moses (ib.23). The peace of the Lord be upon the prophet, the righteous, perfect, pure, faithful Moses. And the sons of Aaron, the priests, shall blow with the trumpets; and they shall be to you for a statute for ever throughout your generations (ib.x.8).

L.6.f.59b line 13 adds,

And the ark of the covenant of the Lord (ib.33)

L.6.f.59b line 17 adds,

We remember the fish, which we did eat in Egypt (ib.xi.5).

1. as in S.P. in place of יְנִּיָּה in M.T.
Nevertheless the ark of the covenant of the Lord (ib.xiv.44). And will make an offering by fire unto the Lord, a burnt offering, or a sacrifice to accomplish a vow, or as a free will offering, (ib.xv. 3). And they found a man gathering sticks upon the sabbath day (ib.32). And remember all the commandments of the Lord . . That ye may remember, and do all my commandments, and be holy unto your God. I am the Lord your God, which brought you out of the land of Egypt, to be your God:

I am the Lord your God (Num. xv. 39-41). God is to be praised; there is no God but One. In the morning, the Lord will shew, (Num. xvi. 5). And it shall be that the man whom the Lord doth choose, he shall be holy; (ib.7). And they beat them out for a covering of the altar. To be a memorial unto the children of Israel to the end that no stranger, which is not of the seed of Aaron, come near (Num. xvi. 39-40; Heb. xvii. 4-5). And behold, the cloud covered it (ib. 42; Heb. 7). The plague was stayed (ib. 48: Heb. 13). And the plague was stayed (ib. 50: Heb. 15). Have I given thee, and thy sons and thy daughters with thee, as a due for ever: it is a covenant of salt for ever before the Lord unto thee and to thy seed with thee. . I am thy portion and thine inheritance among the children of Israel. (Num. xviii. 19-20).
In the first month (ib. xx. 1). And Moses said, O Lord God, Thou hast begun to shew Thy servant Thy greatness and Thy strong hand: for what god is there in heaven or in earth that can do according to Thy works and according to Thy mighty acts? (cf. Deut. iii. 24, Sam. addition).

And when we cried unto the Lord, He heard our voice, and sent an angel and brought us forth (Num. xx. 16). And Israel vowed a vow unto the Lord, ... And the Lord hearkened (ib. xxii. 2-3). And against thee; pray unto the Lord ... And Moses prayed for the people (ib. 7).

This day will I begin to put the dread of Thee and the fear of Thee upon the peoples that are under the whole heaven, who shall hear the report of Thee, and shall tremble, and be in anguish because of Thee. (cf. Deut. xi. 25, Sam. addition). And he saw Israel dwelling according to their tribes; and the spirit of God came upon him (Num. xxiv. 2).

How goodly are thy tents, O Jacob, thy tabernacles. O Israel! (ib. 5).

1So the plague was stayed from the children of Israel (Num. xxv. 8) Phinehas, the son of Eleazar, the son of Aaron the priest (ib. 11).

Behold, I give unto him my covenant of peace: (ib. 12).
PASSOVER MORNING SERVICE.

L.6.f.60 line 25 adds,

Let the Lord, the God of the spirits of all flesh, appoint a man (Num. xxvii. 16). And set him before Eleazar the priest (ib. 19). And before Eleazar the priest and set him before Eleazar the priest... And he laid his hands upon him, and gave him a charge, as the Lord spake by the hand of Moses (ib. 21-23). And he said unto him, Thine eyes have seen all that the Lord hath done unto these two kings; so shall the Lord do unto all the kingdoms whither thou goest over. Ye shall not fear them: for the Lord your God, He it is that fighteth for you (cf. Deut. iii. 21-22 Sam. addition).

L.6.f.60b line 5 adds,

As the meal offering of the morning, and as the drink offering thereof thou shalt offer it, an offering made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the Lord. And on the sabbath day two he lambs of the first year without blemish, and two tenth parts of an ephah of fine flour for a meal offering mingled with oil, and the drink offering thereof; this is the burnt offering of every sabbath beside the continual burnt offering, and the drink offering thereof (Num.xxviii.8-10) (In the first month)... And on the fifteenth day of this month shall be a feast: seven days shall unleavened bread be eaten. (1In the first day)... (ib. 16-18). These ye shall offer unto the Lord in your set feasts (ib. xxix.39).)

1. In Evening KATEF.
And Phinehas the son of Eleazar the priest (ib.xxxi.6).
And Moses and Eleazar the priest did (ib. 31). And Moses gave the tribute, which was the Lord's heave offering, unto Eleazar the priest, as the Lord commanded Moses (ib.41).
The peace of the Lord be upon the prophet, the righteous the perfect, the pure, the faithful Moses.

C. p. 164 line 29.

And there is said
As your fathers were redeemed,
So may you be redeemed from your oppressors,

(C. p. 26) and a 'Gloria',

1. L.5 'In the mountain of Sinai'.
The Might of those who possess the name Israel in this great host with the clouds of favour He hovereth over them and they praise, proclaiming and saying to God, 'Mighty!', who looketh down upon them in His greatness. For a hundred years may you come to this boundary, sacrifice and eat and burn the remainder thereof,

And every year of your lives may you offer your sacrifices and may He fulfil, 'And I will pass over you and there shall be no plague be upon you'.

'God is great' et seq. and, 'For in the Name' (Deut. xxxii.3) and the elders begin the KATEF.

L.6.f.63b line 5 adds,

For the Lord thy God hath blessed thee in all the work of thy hand . . . The Lord thy God hath been with thee; thou hast lacked nothing (Deut. ii.7) A thousand thanks to Thee for Thy kindness: And I commanded Joshua at that time, saying, Thine eyes have seen . . . that the Lord . . . hath done unto these two kings; so shall the Lord do . . . for the Lord (ib. iii. 21-22) And I besought the Lord (ib. 23).

1. Or, 'With the clouds of favour the Most High hovereth'.
2. Or, 'Most High who looketh down in His greatness'.
3. The ensuing is Section VII of the Morning KATEF, corresponding to the Evening KATEF, L.6.f. 22-23. Variations only are given here.
L.6.f.63b line 11 adds,

For what great nation is there that hath a god so nigh unto them, as the Lord our God is whencesoever we call upon him? And what great nation is there, that hath statutes and judgements so righteous as all this law... But make them known unto thy children and thy children's children: the day that thou stoodest before the Lord, thy God in Horeb (ib. iv. 7-10). And He declared unto you, His covenant (ib.13). And brought you forth out of the iron furnace (ib.20). Take heed unto yourselves lest ye forget the covenant of the Lord your God... For the Lord thy God is a devouring fire, a jealous God (ib.23-24).

L.6.f.63b line 26 adds,

The Lord our God made a covenant with us in Horeb. The Lord made not this covenant with our fathers but with us, even us, who are all of us here alive this day. The Lord spake with you face to face in the mount out of the midst of the fire.

L.6.f.64.

(I stood between the Lord and you at that time, to shew you the word of the Lord: for ye were afraid because of the fire, and went not up into the mount;) saying, I am the Lord, thy God (Deut. v. 2-6).

L.6.f.64 line 14 adds,

That the Lord thy God, He is God; the faithful God, which keepeth covenant and mercy with them that love Him (ib. vii. 9). That the Lord thy God shall keep with thee...
the covenant and the mercy which He swore unto thy fathers: And He will love thee, and bless thee, and multiply thee (ib.12-13).

L.6.f.64 line 20 adds,
Remember well what the Lord thy God did unto Pharaoh, and unto all Egypt (ib.18).

L.6.f.64 line 22 adds,
And thou shalt remember all the way (ib. viii.2).

L.6.f.64b line 2 adds,
Remember, forget thou not (ib.ix.7). When I was gone up into the mount to receive the tables of stone, even the tables of the covenant (ib.9). And it came to pass at the end of forty days and forty nights, that the Lord gave me the two . . . . tables of the covenant (ib.11). The two tables of the covenant were in my two hands (ib.15)

L.6.f.64b line 15 adds,
At that time the Lord separated the tribe of Levi, to bear the ark of the covenant of the Lord (ib.x.8).

L.6.f.64b line 27 omits,
'To keep all His commandments which I command thee this day to do that which is right in the eyes of the Lord thy God (Deut. xii.18(19). Evening KATEF, L.6.f.23)

L.6.f.64b line 27 adds,
For thou art a holy people unto the Lord thy God (Deut. xiv. 2). And thou shalt remember that thou wast a bondman in the land of Egypt (ib.xv.15).

1. L.5.omits.
And there is said,
May you celebrate this day of festivals again,
Celebrating with blessings,
With glory, goodness and kindnesses,
By the command of the Most Glorious.

And they chant, — 'And thou shalt turn in the morning, and go unto thy tents. Six days thou shalt eat unleavened bread et seq. (Deut. xvi. 7-8).

And three proclamations, antiphonally, and after it the chants antiphonally,

'And did the signs in the sight of the people.' etc.
(Ex. iv. 30).

Then is said, three proclamations, antiphonally, to a lively tune, and afterwards2 'O assembly' (C. p.162), antiphonally, to a lively tune,

2 'O assembly of Israel, sing' etc.

Then they chant, 'And thou shalt turn in the morning' et seq. (Deut. xvi. 7) and three proclamations, antiphonally, and afterwards they begin the KATEF.

1. L.6.f.65 f. follows with thirty-one headings the same as those, recited at this juncture in the Evening Service (cf. C.p.159 line 8) and quoted previously in full from L.6.f.23b.

2. The same hymn, that was interspersed previously between the reading, is now recited again on its own, in toto, following the same procedure as the Evening Service in the recitation of the hymn 'Welcome O festival'
(cf. C.p.159 line 11).
And thou shalt remember that thou wast a bondman in Egypt; (Deut. xvi. 12). And thou shalt be altogether joyful. Three times in a year shall all thy males appear before the Lord thy God in the place which He hath chosen for Himself; in the feast of unleavened bread (ib. 15-16).

For the Lord thy God is with thee which brought thee up out of the land of Egypt (Deut. xx.1). For the Lord your God is He that goeth with you, to fight for you against your enemies, to save you (ib.4). And the priests the sons of Levi shall come near; for them the Lord thy God hath chosen to minister unto Him and to bless in the name of the Lord (ib.xx.5). Forgive O Lord, Thy people Israel, whom thou hast redeemed (ib.8). That He may bless thee (Deut. xxiii.20;(21)). Remember what the Lord thy God did unto Miriam by the way (Deut. xxiv.9). And bless thee; and it shall be righteousness unto thee before the Lord thy God (ib.13). And thou shalt remember that thou wast a bondman in the land of Egypt (ib.22) Remember what He did unto thee (ib.xxv.17) Thou shalt blot out the remembrance (ib.19).

These are the words of the covenant, which the Lord commanded Moses to make with the children of Israel in the land of Moab, beside the covenant which He made with them in Horeb (Deut. xxix.1: Heb: xxviii. 69). Keep therefore the words of this covenant (ib.9: Heb.8). That thou shouldst enter into the covenant of the Lord thy God, and into His oath, which the Lord thy God maketh with thee this day:

For He is thy life, and the length of thy days: that thou mayest dwell in the land which the Lord sware unto thy fathers, to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob'. (Deut. xxx. 20 Evening KATEF f. 25b).

And Moses wrote this law, and delivered it unto the priests the sons of Levi, which bare the ark of the covenant of the Lord (ib. xxxi.9).

This song shall testify (ib. xxxi.21).

L.5 retains. L.5 omits, in this section, a passage of the KATEF found in L.6 f. 67b - 68 consisting of six quotations from Deut. xxxi. 12-26, i.e. in addition to the two quotations from that passage given here in the text, 'Assemble the people', the men and the women and the little ones, and thy stranger (Deut. xxxi.12) And the Lord appeared in the Tent in a pillar of cloud, and the pillar of cloud stood over the door of the Tent (ib.15) Now therefore write ye this song (ib.19).
PASSOVER MORNING SERVICE.

L.6.f.68 line 4 adds,

The Levites which bare the ark of the covenant of the Lord saying, Take this book of the law and put it by the side of the ark of the covenant of the Lord your God (ib.25-26).

L.6.f.68 line 7 adds,

Remember the days of old (ib. xxxii. 7).

L.6.f.68 line 8 adds,

The Lord alone did lead him, and there was no strange god with him (ib.12).

L.6.f.68 line 14 adds,

For they have observed Thy word and keep Thy covenant. They shall teach Jacob Thy judgements and Israel Thy law: (ib.9-10). Satisfied with favour and full with the blessings of the Lord: (ib.23).

L.6.f.68b. has the following conclusory Doxology at the end of the Morning KATEF in addition to that at the end of the Evening KATEF L.6.f.26.

We will bless Him, there is none like unto Him. We will praise Him who is merciful. We will worship before Him who hath pity, and we will fear the name of Him who is the victorious one. We will tremble from fear of Him and His greatness, and we will stand in fear of His awesome power. We will submit before His all-pervading might. We will believe in Him and His faith and in Moses His prophet and his writings. We will trust in His Unity and keep His Sabbaths, festivals, decrees and commandments and bow down to Him for His deeds and give thanks to Him for His mercy and for His kindness. We will glorify the name of Him who is great and we will exalt Him who is exalted and we will act sincerely to Him who is the victorious One, and we will testify that He is one and there is none like Him for ever. A perfect Law, blessed be the Lord who gave it and glorified be the prophet who received it from His holy habitation. Blessed be God, there is none like Him, glory be to Him. Blessed be our God for ever and blessed be His name for ever. There is none like unto God, O Jeshurun (Deut. xxxiii.26).

C.p.165 line 21.

Then is said, three proclamations and, 'The Lord, a God full of compassion and gracious (Ex.xxxiv.6.) to a solemn chant, and 'Blessed is our God' and 'The Lord is God' (C.p.4) to a lively tune and, 'We will bless' (C.p.7) and the addendum.

The prayers of the feast of the blessed Passover, when there is no ascent of Mount Gerizim, Beth-El, the elders assemble in the Synagogue, they begin the prayers 'Blessed is our God' et seq. and 'At the gate of Thy mercies' (C.p.3) et seq., and 'For in the name' (Deut. xxxii.3) and the sections of the Creation, and the KATEF as explained in the customary order, which precedes. They say at 'He planted' (Gen. ii.8) the MANAT which is mentioned before, Durran and Marqah, and at each pause (in the KATEF reading?) Durran and Marqah, and they are explained in the customary order, and as mentioned, at each pause a 'Gloria' and they say in the KATEF up to 'And to Aaron' (Ex. xii.I). Then is said, 'The Lord is a God' (C.p.4) to a solemn chant, as is the procedure for the Sabbaths of the Festival. Then is said KIME composed by, the elder, the priest, Ghazal son of the late priest Izhak, the Levite, may the Lord forgive, etc.

All the days of the heavens above the earth mayest Thou be blessed and be magnified. Yet as the days of fathers and children mayest Thou be praised and exalted. All the days of the generations and their successions endurest for ever. Yet again we will praise Thee and extol Thee every night and day. For Thou art our God, eternal, abiding, God also of our fathers, the lords of the covenant. All the days we will say, 'Blessed be our God for ever'.

Another also
God of Adam and Noah deliver you from all judgement, grant you favour, and may you be blessed therein.

God of our father Abraham, in His kindness have mercy upon you and give you the strength of a Unicorn and make you prosper whithersoever you go.

God of his son, the sacrifice, may He verily bless your toil, give you peace and rest and support you with His favour.

God of the man who was perfect; may He deliver you from all affliction and remember for you the covenant, and may you sleep in safety.

God of the lord of merit, may He bless the work of your hands and may He prolong the days of your life and may you have dominion over the goodly land.

God of the righteous apostle, may He look upon you in His mercy and in His pity may He cleave to you and guide you according to the Law.

God of him that was the root of the priesthood, may He purify you and sanctify you and heal you from all evil and may the chosen one be in your midst.
God of his faithful son, may He increase your number and destroy all adversaries before you and purify you from every wound, affliction and oppression.

C.p.168 line 1.

God of the 'officer' of the Levites, may He make you as numerous as the stars and make all your deeds good and add unto you a thousandfold.

God of him that took the spear in his hand, may He direct all manner of good to you and renew the covenant of peace with you, (that was made with him) concerning whom it was said, 'And he arose out of the midst'.

God of Joshua and Caleb, may He destroy every adversary before you, and may you inherit the land flowing with milk and may He make your ways as the way of Enoch.

By these I will beseech God, that He heal you from all sickness and bring your endeavours to completion, and may you tread the path of truth.

And may all the families of the earth in the four corners thereof, be blessed in you, and may all these blessings come upon you and overtake you.

For if we hope not for Thee in our troubles, O, our Lord, who will ease our weariness. In the shadow of Thy roof we have come, and we do our penitence. Deliver us from the hands of our enemies and prevail over those that prevail over us. Forgive our sins and atone for our transgressions. Have pity upon us and be gracious unto us and pity our dead. May the Feast be blessed for our assembly, from young until old, and our wives.

C.p.171 line 1.

Even so may He preserve all your lives, our brethren and may you be every year in gladness and rejoicing. We will conclude this hymn and utter with our lips, 'Blessed art Thou in Thy kindness'; in Thy mercy grant our requests. Thy name is blessed in our mouths and in the mouths of all our congregation. In Thy great book we will study all

Our master, this high priest, who found favour in the eyes of the Eternal, and wore the breastplate and was anointed with anointing oil and was honoured and wore the crown of the upright high priest, our master Eleazar, may God help his seed, amongst us and may his spirit endure. Say indeed to his exalted seed, precede, and come in peace, 0 perfect priest and sprinkle the blood as in former times. May God be gracious unto him, and guard him and may we see from him someone that will serve Him, and minister in His sanctuary upon the chosen place. So too may He preserve the life of this congregation that is gathered here, from the progeny of Eber, the people of the upright God, that hearken to the Word. 0 my Lord, the light of my eyes, my provider, forgive me the shortcomings of my tongue, for I am Ismail of the generation of the sons of 2 Ramih.

5. C. line 23, BM(G)843
O! the memory of the wonders which Moses and Aaron did in Egypt, their \( ^1 \) will never be performed again. This is a great sign for all who acknowledge the commandments. A rod he turned to a serpent before the stubborn Pharaoh but they denied and said, 'Who made him the anointed one?' who raises the dead with supplications \( ^2 \), but lo he was righteous, a greater one hath not \( ^3 \) been created. He answered in kind, the one who blasphemed the holy things (signs) such as the wonder of the son of Amram which will never be forgotten. He turned the creature back, one seeking to enlighten the other who was like a blind man groping. \( ^4 \)

The magicians of Egypt were confounded before Moses, they honoured his name, they exalted and magnified him, \( ^5 \) The land was full of blood and the Egyptians were unable \( ^6 \) to drink of the water, neither could they eat any fruit for if one desired to eat a piece of fruit of the tree, blood would be found in it for it became full of blood, so too was it with the stones. Blessed be He who wrought this in all righteousness, may His dominion be exalted.
Good after evil, Israel beheld, whilst Egypt beheld the evil upon themselves, when the wonder of the frogs came upon them of which all places were filled. Concerning it, the magicians made known to Pharaoh, behold these are the wonders which are to come upon us as ordained by the stars in their coming in and going out, as the wonder of the blood. Thus Moses was exalted and (the truth of) his prophecy there became revealed. "Glory over me, for when" and it shall be revealed for all to see, and he said, "Tomorrow" and thus he did, whilst they listened, he made known that the Lord is most peaceful.

Aaron shall take the rod and smite the dust of the earth so that lice shall be upon all flesh, even upon all the cattle. This was the wonder of which each one of the magicians said, "It is the finger of God", the righteous and upright One, this is the deed of the Lord - not of man - He hath power over water and earth. This was well said, to be considered and observed by all who are wise and understanding.

When the Lord had finished with the lowly elements He made darkness with the higher elements. The wonder of the mixture of obnoxious beasts amongst which there were large kinds; there was no unclean fowl that did not come in strength and all the houses of the Egyptians were full of them. The land was destroyed, the mountains and valleys too, so that their sight was impaired. 'What should they eat?' they asked Moses and Aaron, 'Go sacrifice to your God, the ruler of rulers and pray to Him on our behalf.'

Goodness and rejoicing were for Israel, because of the events which compelled Pharaoh to say, 'The Lord your God, His name is great'. So too his saying 'I will exalt the God of the Hebrews' when it was told to the Egyptians the hand of the Lord in wrath, shall be upon your cattle and all your animals shall die in the field or in the house. This was perfect wisdom. They passed through with boils which wasted the Egyptians and of them none could stand before Moses whereas all Israel were at peace in Goshen for the Lord separated them and their place.

How great and exalted was the miracle of the hail, for with it, and in the midst of it, a great fire came down upon them that denied this wonder, but those that feared (the Lord) survived. Because of it Pharaoh confessed, 'The Lord alone, He is righteous and to His goodness there is no limit, whereas I and my people are wicked and every wicked one will be destroyed. Pray, and I will send you out and you will not continue to tarry, for all Egypt will be destroyed by the hail.'

PASSOVER MEDINAH SERVICE II.

The Lord led an east wind, all day and night, till it carried the locust and it rested in his borders, and it came up, exceedingly heavy upon the entire land of Egypt and it covered it consumed all the herbs, the green things and fruit. The Egyptians said, 'This is death! Moses, pray!' And he brought darkness upon darkness for there was 'a thick darkness'; for three days they saw no light.

The pillar of cloud 2encircled the place of the infidel when Moses was told to say 'Keep ...'

He that did evil to you, in the time to come you shall remember. "Thou shalt never again see my face" the pure one answered him "Thou hast spoken well. I will no more" for the adversary who comes upon you watches attentively and will smite every firstborn amongst man and cattle and you will say unto me 'Get thee out, and all thy people' and then we will take up the 'kneading trough' that you shall know that judgement will not depart from God.

The Lord did judgement in Egypt, and its gods, so that none found any escape in all the land, but all the children of Israel went forth fugitive and slaughtered for the passover with rejoicing. They ate sacrifices and the remainder they burned. This 3you shall do constantly and get blessings and will attain forgiveness.

The Passover will make in faithfulness, in the days of favour, upon Mount Gerizim in which is the habitation of the glory of the Lord, God (and) Master. We will see the sanctuary of the holy place and the ark. The table and the candlestick, and its lamps will give light. The altar, too, and upon it we will offer of oxen and sheep.
We will eat the Passover in joyful haste and we will bless the name of the Lord who giveth us this and we will seek His mercy for He is merciful and gracious.

We cry out for Thy kindness. Oh, Lord hear!
and turn the mourning of Thy people in Thy abundant kindness, into rejoicing. Turn from Thy fierce wrath. Oh, establish Thy mercies that the Passover may be performed perfectly with all its statutes. 2 I AM THAT I AM. Lord of existence, answer the supplication of Thy servants and atone for guilt.

Oh nearest One, draw near our spirit (to Thee), remove our adversaries, our oppressions and our distress. If Thou wilt not hear our voice who will hear us? When Thou seest us upon this festival, make us to rejoice.

Far be it in Thy mercies to take us away because of our deeds, for we know of our evil deeds. We turn to Thy kindness because of our abundant sins. Oh, merciful, gracious God, forgive our transgressions, for the sake of Moses who brought us forth from Egypt.

See our afflictions and restore Thy favour upon Thy servants, Israel, Thy 'sojourner' and Thy 'needy' one whose name Thou hast called Thy 'firstborn' and 'Thy son'. Remove his distress and turn from Thy fierce anger.

Repent upon the evil to him and reveal to him Thy Tabernacle, upon the top of Mount Gerizim the habitation of 'Thy right arm' that he may make the Passover and offer Thy sacrifices upon this feast of Unleavened Bread.

For the sake of Thy faithful one relieve the distress of Thy people and look down from Thy habitation.

Rejoice upon this night and be obervant of it, for upon it your ancestor went out from the house of bondage. All were in peace - whilst the firstborn were smitten - and they ate the Passover upon unleavened bread and bitter herbs, for they that entered into Egypt as 'seventy souls' went out six hundred thousand footmen after serving the Egyptians with rigour. The Lord, mighty amongst the mighty, blessed them. So may He bless you in revealed and hidden things and may you see the sanctuary established upon the holiest of the mountains.

The Passover has mysteries which the intelligent ones, whose hearts are full of knowledge, know. They rise early to pray, whilst it is yet night, and rest not on their beds. They patently fear Him and have imbibed understanding. They know the secret which God hath bidden in the observance of the Passover, for in it there are things for which they hope. The dignity of prophecy can be estimated (or, is established) by the release (of Israel) and the unleavened breads which are made for the Passover, for the decreed eight days, as revealed, 'No stranger shall eat of it' as God commanded. Therefore let us say with one accord, before God.

THE MANÀT OF THE SABBATH.

The first and the seventh (day), both alike, are holy convocations of Yeshurun upon which they rejoice; this festival of the Passover they celebrate in the House of God, turning in the morning and going to their dwellings. Unto the Lord they make the festival of Unleavened Bread. A festival to the Lord with pure souls. With sincerity we will say with one accord before God.

May you celebrate this day again, 0 people who encamp in prayer. For a hundred years may you perform this statute with lovingkindness and goodness, both sons and fathers.

In the past, the future and the present. From Adam till Moses is the commencement. From Moses and the time of favour until now, and the perfection of the world at the last.

Abraham's standing (before God) is set forth to us in the gospel of Moses the saviour. "Behold a smoking furnace and a flaming torch that passed between these pieces" (Gen. xv.17).

Then he decreed the first of the commandments, that which He commanded first with that He saved, "And the Lord said to Moses and Aaron in the land of Egypt".

In Egypt He made it a commandment, when arranging the statutes of His law, "And thus shall ye eat it; with your loins girded."

Girdled in the truth (trust?) of Him that is no idol for He passed in the midst of the night over the houses of the children of Israel in Egypt when He plagued the Egyptians.

Out of the great affliction, for salvation is near. Observe the month of Abib and make a Passover unto the Lord your God, and offer (sacrifice). May the Lord relieve you and bless you for salvation is near.

The Lord called the name of the month of Abib, in the Hebrew tongue, Abib, for it is the month of newness, on it the Lord gave (i.e. made) the world and populated it.

Father of all the months, on it the Lord brought forth His people, the children of Shem, by the hand of the chosen of all men, and upon it the sacrifice of the Lord was brought.

PASSOVER MEDINAH SERVICE II.

'Seven days shalt thou eat unleavened bread'. Hear him that is of understanding heart, his heart is near to the Almighty, this festival is encompassed with secrets of the set feast of the month of Abib.

Upon it He slew the firstborn of Egypt, the rebellious infidels, and delivered the firstborn of the Hebrews 'For upon it thou wentest forth from Egypt'.

Fulfil the command(s?) of your Lord – woe is him that forsakes them – ordained (upon) the sons of the righteous, 'They shall not appear before me empty (handed)'.

It is fitting, and good and proper, that we should magnify this honoured name, there is none else besides Him alone, who said, 'Six days shalt thou labour'.

Through the Law which is magnified, (and) its commandments which have been settled, He that is magnified in greatness, said, 'And on the seventh day thou shalt rest.'

It makes you discern the goodly way, for the sabbath is your crown, for all this He has done for your sake, 'And the festival of Pentecost shall thou make'.

He that will not withhold from the truth, so that the light of his countenance shall shine, should keep this thing, of the teachings, 'And the feast of ingathering at the turn of the year'.

If you will keep it, He will kindle your light, He will grace you, and be your protector and upon the chosen mount, your mountain, 'All thy males will be seen'.

First is the redemption from your oppression, the second the harvest of your land and the third the ingathering of your plants, when 'None will covet thy land'.

Upon them we hope for all goodly things, the first, second, third and seventh, He commanded you in the exalted writ, 'And thou shalt not offer the blood of thy sacrifice with leavened bread'. The wise and intelligent, will choose that which he shall slaughter (of) the sheep and oxen. Hear this precious saying, 'And thou shalt not leave over till the morning'.

May it (he?) be exalted, in all glory, from Him that hath no partner with Him. In His scripture He commanded His people 'Thou shalt not seethe the kid in its mother's milk'.

May you celebrate this day again, Oh Samaritans, who are gathered in this place, respond with sincere thoughts and say, proclaiming and saying,

'There is no God, but One.'
EVENING PRAYERS
OF THE SEVEN DAYS OF THE FEAST OF UNLEAVENED BREAD.

C.p.203

In the name of the Lord we will begin and hope for Him and cleave to Him.

Prayers of the seven days of the feast of Unleavened Bread, in the evening. They begin the prayers proclaiming and saying, 'For in the Name' (Deut. xxxii.3) and the sections of the Creation and 'The Lord is God' (C.p.4).

'We will bless' (C.p.7) and then is added 'Six days', and if the fifty days have begun there is added during it

'Blessed be He who said Seven sabbaths...' (Lev. xxiii.15) and, 'Then sang' (Ex. xv.1) and 'We will extol the wrt' and two verses of 'We will stand, all of us' (C.p.9) the MANAT and 'O Great One' (C.p. 84) and a hymn of praise, the customary one, and there is mentioned in it, according to the season, and Durran 'Blessed is' (C.p.47) and 'For in the Name' (Deut. xxxii.3) and 'Magnified..' (C.p. 48) and after this the KATEF as previously on the first night and if the fifty days have begun the beginning of the KATEF is, 'While the earth remaineth, seedtime and harvest' (Gen; vii.22). If the fifty days have not begun the KATEF begins, 'I lift up my hand to the God' (Gen. xiv.22?) substituting the extra piece the Sea and Harvest in the KATEF as previously directed at the beginning of the KATEF, and they finish the KATEF at 'As he is able according to the blessing of the Lord thy God which He hath given thee.' (Deut. xvi.17). Then is said, 'Praised be' to a solemn chant. Then is said, as the scripture is brought out from without the 'circle' of the congregation responsively 'For in the Name' (Deut. xxxii.3) and 'Hear O Israel' and the remainder is as usual. In the SEGUDOTH is added 'Six days'... But if the fifty days have begun then there is added 'Blessed be He who said, Seven Sabbaths...' (Lev. xxiii.15) et seq. and after it 'Six days...' et seq. and 'The Lord, a God full of compassion and gracious' (Ex. xxxiv.6) and the high priest makes mention according to the occasion and there is said from 'O Assembly' (C.p.162) verse ALEPH and the verse of the MANĀT and verse THAU.

Then they chant 'Six days' and three proclamations antiphonally and 'Thou wilt always be worshipped' (C.p.83) and may the prayers end with blessing. AMEN.

'Glorias' composed by my Lord, the elder, the priest, distinguished of his time, my father, Amram, the mercy, etc.

THE MANĀT OF THE FIRST DAY

In His greatness may He increase your glory, grant you relief from disfavour, increase you and make you fruitful in the world and prosper you in all deeds. May He favour you in these days upon which the Lord released you from the hands of Pharaoh and his harsh people by the hand of the prophet in whom is your hope, the chosen of all men.

That is the prophet Moses, who made you elect with his Book, and of the crowning commandments he decreed therein is, 'This month shall be unto you the beginning of months'.
EVENING PRAYERS

THE MANAT OF THE SECOND DAY

The Might who made this month first, beginning of all months, and exalted it, for upon it was the creation of all the world and all in earth and heaven were made. The redemption (also) of His people Israel from Egypt after eating the Passover sacrifice with rejoicing, by the hand of our Lord Moses the chosen one, His servant, His faithful one and His man, (i.e. 'man of God').

And as He bid them and ordained upon them with His commandments concerning the taking of sacrifices for a fire-offering, a sweet savour, 'As the Lord commanded Moses and Aaron so they did'.

THE MANAT OF THE THIRD DAY

In His greatness may He favour you in those days and cause you always to be in rejoicing with songs. May He also establish you like your ancestors and prevail over those that prevail over you. May you make your festivals with rejoicing to the vexation of your rebellious enemies, for the sake of the prophet whom the Lord gave the holiest of all books.

That is Moses who made known to you the festivals, in truth, and brought you from Egypt to the Holy Land and said, 'For with a strong hand the Lord brought thee forth from Egypt'.

EVENING PRAYERS

THE MANÁT OF THE FOURTH DAY

In His greatness may He not confound your performing the sacrifice in 'the place', continually in rejoicing and gladness. No one will covet your land, you will be protected from all, and your enemies will be reduced. In His mercies may He grant you peace and may those that hate your Law be weakened for the sake of him whom none has arisen nor will arise, and by whose hand His people were released from Egypt.

That is Moses by whose hand He delivered you and his word comforts your hearts. 'The Lord shall fight for you, and ye shall hold your peace'.

THE MANÁT OF THE FIFTH DAY

In His greatness may He reward your faithfulness and honour your cleaving to His faith. May He cause naught of your faith to diminish and may He support you with His goodness and kindness. May He make possible your meeting in His place and find neither falsehood nor guilt amongst you for the sake of the prophet in whom you believe, by whose hand your fathers were redeemed.

That is Moses because of whom your Lord showed you mercy and with his rod he split the waters of the sea for you. 'And they believed in the Lord and in Moses His servant.'

1. C. line 15, in EM(G)843 omits.
THE MANÀT OF FRIDAY.

In His greatness may He restore your place and may His justice not be denied you. With His goodness may He increase your glory and may you be secure and have no dread. May He release you from the oppression of your adversaries and may they never return to take impost from you, for the sake of the prophet who received the holiest of all your books, like whom not one is found amongst the prophets.

That is Moses by whose hand He redeemed you from Egypt and he said concerning your holy Temple, 'O Lord which Thy hands have established. The Lord shall reign for ever and ever'.

ALSO ON IT

In His greatness may He purify your heart and circumcise its foreskin from all desolation. May the making of the sacrifice increase your regard and may you be redeemed from the might of the adversary. His statutes in your true scripture, perform and study in truth, and you will be favoured in your festivals and He will remove your desolation, and gather all your scattered ones, for the sake of the prophet who quenched for you the heat (i.e., of God’s wrath) with his prayer and by whose hand Israel was redeemed.

C.p.205 line 1.

That is Moses who acquainted you with the commandments and statutes, in its observance may the Garden of Eden be your resting place and may you have therein redemption from the fire and may He who said, ‘Six days thou shalt eat unleavened bread, and on the seventh day shall be a festival unto the Lord thy God, thou shalt do no servile work thereon’ heal all your sickness.

God is great.

May the name of the composer of this hymn ever (lit. again) be remembered in His mercy; perhaps a goodly proclamation will be heard; His Lord may grant a place in the Garden of Eden to him that was Amram, known as the priest, before the holiest of all peoples. I, his son, Solomon, that have sung of him, am bereaved. I will beseech my Lord, for the sake of the meritorious ones and the chosen prophet, to forgive him all sin, transgression and guilt. May He bring me together with him in His mercy, in glory and rejuvination. May we see him there, in (the merit of) the prayers of the chosen of all the world.

MORNING PRAYERS
FOR THE SEVEN DAYS OF THE FEAST OF UNLEAVENED BREAD.

They begin the prayers, proclaiming and saying, and at the beginning of each day of them they say, 'At the gate of Thy mercies' (C.p.3) and, 'For in the Name' (Deut. xxxii.3) and the sections of the Creation and, 'Blessed is our God' and 'The Lord is God' (C.p.4) to a lively tune and, 'We will bless' (C.p.7) the customary one and the addendum thereto, 'Blessed be He that said 'Seven Sabbaths' and 'Six days' et seq. in addition to God of Abraham (C.p.9) and, 'Then sang' (Ex. xxxv.). Then is said, 'Praised be our God', 'The Lord a God full of compassion and gracious' (Ex. xxxiv.6), forgive Thy people, Israel that worship at Mount Gerizim' et seq. and 'We stand, all of us, (C.p.9) all of it and 'With sincerity' (C.p.12) all of it, or from the MANĀT of it according to the occasion, and a 'Hymn of praise' the customary one and 'Blessed is' (C.p.47). Then is said, every day two verses of Marqah, the MANĀT, and 'God, Merciful One' (C.p.29) and a 'Gloria', the MANĀT also as are set out before you every day with its MANĀT by the help of God, exalted is He, etc.

THE MANĀT OF THE FIRST DAY

'Creator of the world, God, is to be worshipped,' etc. (C.p.16). Thou art our God and the God of our fathers' etc. (C.p.17). Then after that 'God Merciful One' (C.p.29) which has occurred previously in the prayer of the sacrifice and after that a 'Gloria' composed by my father Amram which occurs previously, God have mercy upon him, Amen.
MORNING PRAYERS
FOR THE SEVEN DAYS OF THE FEAST OF UNLEAVENED BREAD.

Upon it also a 'Gloria' composed by my lord and teacher, the priest, Pinhas, the Lord prolong, etc.

He that createth the light by the ordinance of His wisdom and from it was formed the chosen of creatures. On one day He created him and raised him up in his greatness and after that 'There was evening and there was morning'. He set apart these days for His congregation and upon them granted deliverance and remembrance and glory. He commanded them to celebrate in them upon the mountain of His inheritance with rejoicing, glory and gladness. The bread of affliction should be their food, for seven days remembrance should be made.

For your good O upright people, observe your truthful law and fulfil His commandments which He bound upon you, as He said, 'Observe the feast of unleavened bread'. 'God is great' et seq. Upon it also a Gloria, composed by the sheikh, Abraham AL-ABA the mercy of God etc.

The Mighty who created the heaven and earth in ancient time and prepared out of the darkness a shining light upon the lowly, from on high. This was the light from which was constituted the faithful chosen prophet.

That is Moses the prophet of all generations, by whose hand, He commanded in the holiest of all laws, 'Six days shalt thou eat unleavened bread and on the seventh day shall be a festival unto the Lord.'

"God is great" et seq. and the remaining one will be shown if God wills it, in the MANAT of Friday.

THE MANAT OF THE SECOND DAY

"Thou art our God and God of our fathers, etc. (C.p.18)

C.p.207 line 1.

And as for the Sabbath day, they stop here and after finishing the reading of these three verses, this 'Gloria' is said,

The Might, who created our father Adam and gave him dominion over the order of the creatures and made him dwell in the Garden of Eden to tend it and protect it. He arranged his descent from seed to seed until our lord Moses came, the sun of the world and its light.

The prophet who wore the crown of his Lord and He sent him (in His) mercies to Israel that they might stand and hear the voice of the God of all gods and read in the books of the Law.

The response is 'For I will publish in the name of the Lord' (Deut. xxxii.3) all of it.

And after it they read the appropriate NUBA and after completing the reading of the NUBA they read 'A Law' (Deut. xxx.4) and I AM THAT I AM et seq. and then is said this song all of it to a known tune.

'The Sabbath is like a state' etc. (C.p. 69).

The response to it is by the high priest. They sing 'Oh' etc. (ib).
FOR THE SEVEN DAYS OF THE FEAST OF UNLEAVENED BREAD.

The MANAT of the second day follows (i.e. corresponds to) the MANAT of the second Sabbath.

'Let us praise the Master of the Universe' etc. (C.p.19).

Then they recite, 'God, Merciful One' (C.p.29) and then is said a 'Gloria' composed by Abraham b. Jacob the Danfi, the Lord have mercy upon him;

In His greatness He formed the firmament from the waters, on the second day and called it heaven - a division between water and water. He declared the seven days of the Feast of Unleavened Bread and commanded us to celebrate at Mount Gerizim, the holy habitation, by the hand of the perfect prophet the light of whose face shone.

That is Moses the Prophet of all generations who received the holiest of all laws, and declared the seven days of the feast of Unleavened Bread (as) a remembrance of the deliverance of the devoted ones.

God is great: Upon it also a 'Gloria', composed by my father, the priest, Amram, (most) distinguished of his time, the Lord have mercy upon him.

And it is necessary on every day to begin first with the 'Look upon us' before the MANĀT, that is Verse Aleph, and immediately after it, (the MANĀT?) Verse Thau and after 'My Lord for the sake of the three perfect ones' (C.p.15).

The MANĀT of the first day; Aleph, Beth, Gimel, Daled, Heh, Waw.

The MANĀT of the second day; Zayin, Heth, Teth, Yod, Kafer.

The MANĀT of the third day; Lamed, Mem, Nun, Samih.

The MANĀT of the fourth day; 'Ayim, Peh, Zadi.

The MANĀT of the fifth day; Kaf, Resh, Shin, Thau.

'My Lord for the sake of the three perfect ones' etc. (C.p.15).

Praised be our God, The Lord, a God full of compassion and gracious, slow to anger, (Ex. xxxiv.6).
And after it they say antiphonally 'They rested'.

And there is said from 'O assembly' (C.p.162) verse, Aleph; and the verse of the MANAT, and verse Thau; and the chant 'Six days' and three proclamations antiphonally and 'Thou wilt be eternally worshipped' (C.p.83) and afterwards there is said this reading to the tune of 'O Good One' (C.p.85?) and it is composed by my lord, that refreshes my heart and innermost being, the most distinguished of his time, the high priest, my father Amram. God, etc.

C.p.212, line 1.

1 The remnant of Thy servants seek Thy charity, Gifts of grace and kindness from Thy abundant goodness.
Thou art merciful in Thy judgements and merciful in Thy penalties.
What have we, O Lord, but Thy mercies and pity
According to our abilities, not according to Thy mighty power,
As is Thy (habitual) kindness with us, increase Thy gifts to us.
We will raise our hands beseeching Thy pity
When Thou lookest, see us, as is Thy faithfulness.
Thou hast bestowed upon us all good in the ordinance of Thy wisdom, in the creation of our bodies from amongst the various kinds of Thy creatures. Thou hast endowed our tongues for the praise of Thy unity. We will beseech Thee to favour us in the observance of Thy Law.

Open our eyes to know the secrets of Thy precious that is favourable to Thy Divinity. Purify our inclinations and sanctify us with Thy holiness.

Remember the meritorious ones, our ancestors with whom Thou didst make Thy covenant. Fulfil for us, 'Return our hearts (feelings) of love and fear of Thee. Grace us the humble ones, we will beseech and implore Thee Make known to us Thy ways and quench for us Thy wrath.

Remove from us, Oh 1Mighty One, Thy wrath and plague that we may find favour in Thine eyes and Thy covenant will

FOR THE SEVEN DAYS OF THE FEAST OF UNLEAVENED BREAD.

Remember the land of our inheritance and the place of Thy holiness. In memory of Adam, our father whom Thou didst bless with Thy blessing and him to whom Thou didst say in Thy goodness, 'And I will establish My covenant with thee' and that Thou didst choose when Thou didst say, 'Get thee out from thy land and thy birthplace' and him that said to his son when he sent him forth, 'Almighty God bless thee' and him to whom Thou didst say in Thy lovingkindness 'Return to the land of thy fathers and to thy birthplace' and him that said to the chief of the butlers, "Would that thou wouldst remember me' and him to whom Thou didst say concerning his brother, 'Behold also, he goeth forth to meet thee' and he said to him, 'Draw near to the altar and make thy sin offering and thy burnt offering' and in (memory of) the priesthood of Eleazar and Ithamar and him that appeased Thy jealousy, repent from Thy burning anger, O Lord and destroy not Thy people and Thine inheritance. Bestow upon us of Thy charity, charity from Thy pity. Then the worshippers make intercession at length, saying, Giver of gifts, praise be to Thee for Thy greatness; O Lord continually.

C.p.213, line 1.

An amplification of the supplication was composed by Abdallah the son of Solomon the priest, ancestor of the scribe, the favour of God be upon him. And it is said in the cool of the day after all the prayers.

I stood, O Lord, at the gate (lit. entrance) of Thy mercies and spread forth my two hands and besought Thee and said my prayers and implored Thee, 'Pity my poverty, forgive my sin and relent concerning my evil for Thou art merciful and gracious and exceedingly patient, greatest among the great, ruler of rulers. Mighty and tremendous Thy power is constant, sovereign of sovereigns, master of masters, highest amongst the high. Judge of Judges, possessor of all things, most gracious amongst the gracious, Wisest of the wise, most merciful amongst the merciful. O hearer of cries, O, knower of hidden things. O, sovereign of lowly and exalted, O creator of all the world. O, conqueror of all battles, O, performer of all kinds of wonders. O, Thou whose name is Almighty God, (all-)

In the day of vengeance His glory will be proclaimed in His greatness. 'See now that I, even I, am He and there is no god with Me: I kill and I make alive; I wound and I heal: neither is there any that can deliver out of my hand'. 'I live for ever' (Deut. xxxii.39) The Lord is His name and in His excellency on the sky is His habitation. Eternal God, underneath His arms is the world. Most High God is His name, all the world is His. He is one alone and there is no strange god with Him, no partner, nor friend, nor second. No likeness nor form, nor image, no self, nor light, nor intimate (?) He knoweth without heart, seeth without eye, heareth without ear, calleth without mouth. All hidden things are revealed to him and nought is withheld from him. He knoweth the inclination of all, whereas knowledge cannot assess him. He is to be found in all things, and yet he that looketh shall not behold Him. He possesseth all places and yet no place can contain Him. He hath power over all things, conqueror that is inconquerable for all are subject to His might (or divinity). His hand is stretched forth and his dominion constant. Most High that falleth not. Mighty One that ceaseth not. The most exalted are low before him. All the mighty ones are humble before him. All rulers become exhausted at His hands and all kings are His servants. Before Him we will bow down to the ground and worship, pray and prostrate, supplicate and say in a loud voice, 'I AM THAT I AM, Oh possessor of heaven and earth, Oh doer of whatsoever He desireth, Oh ruler that will never change, Oh He that favoureth not nor taketh a bribe, Oh living One (?) Oh Him that is present for those who seek Him, Oh Him that is near to those who call, Oh God of hosts and God of the spirits, Oh hearer of cries, Oh answerer of supplications, Oh abundant in mercies, Oh sea of good and kindness, Oh He who closeth not the gates of His mercies nor stoppeth up the fountain of lovingkindness. Oh He whose glory is ascribed to His greatness. The Lord a God full of compassion and gracious, pity me and be gracious unto me and do righteousness unto me in Thy righteousness, and have mercy upon me in Thy mercies and kindnesses. iniquity, guilt and sin, forgive my transgressions, forgive my sins, atone my iniquity and my guilt for they are exceedingly great. My tongue is too weary to relate them, my eye rains red blood at the time when I remember them, my heart melts, my strength is crushed, my soul is distressed, my spirit troubled, woe is me, what have I chosen unto myself. I have cast my soul into flaming fire that will not be extinguished. The sword of my

I AM THAT I AM, O Thou that wast and will be, be with me as Thou wast with my meritorious ancestors, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, peace be upon them. Prosper my toil in the merit of the pious Joseph. Save me because of the prayers of our master Moses, Thy servant, and the faithful One, of Thy house. O Saviour, save me (on) the day of vengeance, because of his prayer. O my Lord, bring me beneath the shadow of his roof. O Lord God, make me of those that support his law, that grasp the banner of the gate of his faith. Help me in observing his law and vouchsafe unto me of his blessing together with the blessing of the ministers of Thy holy sanctuary, Aaron, Eleazar, Ithamar and Phineas the holy annointed priests. AMEN, I AM THAT I AM. My Lord, receive my supplication and prosper my toil. Look down from Thy holy habitation upon me and look with Thy eye of mercy and lovingkindness unto me. My Lord, hear my cries. My Lord, pity my poverty. My Lord answer to my wretchedness. My Lord be entreated by my misery. My Lord, satisfy my wants. My Lord strengthen me against fear. My Lord prosper my way. My Lord, make Thy love abide in my heart and make my love (or: the love of me?) abide in the hearts of all the world, grant (me) favour in their eyes. My Lord grant me

Behold Thy servant with a benign look, and grant him forgiveness. Be gracious unto me, in repentance, and redeem me from the care (distress?) of my sins. Giver, enduring, near One, by whose Covenant I have risen to petition (at) Luz, to which our father, Israel, the perfect one came and erected a pillar there and hewed out an altar therefrom. He called it a name and prophesied as in His treasured writ, 'And he built there an altar, and called the place El-beth-el' (ib.7).

Make the dew of Thy mercies rest upon us O my Lord and grant us peace in Thy pity, for Thou art Almighty God, great and fruitful, great, everlasting God. Advise us, that we walk not contrary and that the truth be not withheld from us. Bless us with the blessings of Jacob the Hebrew, the perfect one, who had the dream, blessings of the heavens on high and rouse up the blessings of the deep that lieth under (Gen. xlix.25) that is hidden. 'Blessings of the breast and of the womb' (ib) that we be fruitful. Blessings of the meritorious ones of the world prevailed above the blessings of my progenitors unto the utmost bound of the everlasting hills' (ib. 26).
FOR THE SEVEN DAYS OF THE FEAST OF UNLEAVENED BREAD.

Have mercy upon Israel in Thy mercies for they are Thy people and Thine inheritance. Restore Thy favour to his people and establish them upon the truth of Thy law. May the ranks of their enemies be silent as a stone and may deliverance and relief come at Thy victory. Subdue all those that threaten to cut him off and hasten to reveal Thy favour. Reveal Thy sanctuary and set it up in the place in which Thy spirit rests. For the sake of the prayers of Moses and his covenant, who prayed to Thy greatness on their behalf, 'Bring them in, and plant them in the mountain of Thine inheritance, in the place for Thy dwelling (Ex. xv.17).

Thy glory and Thy greatness will be sanctified, we will bow the head and subordinate ourselves in Thy service. Thy mercies and kindness, Thy insignificant, needy, servant does beg. May his entreaty and supplication be met and send not desolation upon me. May Thy might weaken (subdue) the enemy and consecrate them to Thy service upon this Thy holy mountain which Thou hast chosen for Thy worship. In which Thy angels foregather and which is the gate of Thy glorious habitation, 'Which Thou hast made, O Lord, the Sanctuary, O Lord, which Thy hands have established (ib.17).

FOR THE SEVEN DAYS OF THE FEAST OF UNLEAVENED BREAD.

At Thy sanctuary which Thou hast established, O Great One they beseech and sing praises. Remember Thy mountain, the goodly mountain, chosen of all habitations. Restore Thy favour upon it, and we will make sacrifices upon its altar. On our festival days we will come to it rejoicing and glad and offer the sacrifices on it in glory to the vexation of presumptuous ones and we will do as Thy Majesty hath commanded in the holiest of all teachings, 'And thou shalt build there an altar to the Lord Thy God, an altar of stones.' (Deut. xxvii.5. Sam. 10th commandment?)

How dreadful is Thy place, O Lord, in which Thy greatness resteth, opposite it we will turn in prayer to Thee and upon it we will stand to implore Thee. In its holiness have mercy upon me and be gracious unto me and forgive me in Thy abundant might. Make known to me Thy way of truth and lead me in Thy paths and bless me with the blessings of this Thy mountain which Thou hast taken as Thy portion. Thine altar we will build complete thereon, as Thou hast commanded us in Thy doctrine, 'Thou shalt build the altar of the Lord thy God of whole stones (Deut. xxvii.6).

We will praise Thee, and we will exalt Thee. We will stand with sincerity by Thine altar and offer upon it perfect burnt offerings - as Thy 'only one' commanded - Concerning it seven testimonies (indications) are mentioned; in the tables 2 engraved by God, 'That mountain beyond Jordan' it is explained; Upon it Kings are anointed. 'Behind the way of the going down of the sun' (Deut. x1.30) and the shine for which the repentant hope. This place is the land of Canaan, the progeny of Levi and Joseph hope for it (or, dwell in it). They, (the Canaanites) dwell in the plain; this mountain is 'over against Gilgal' of the meritorious beside the oaks of Moreh, opposite Sichem (Deut.x1.30).

FOR THE SEVEN DAYS OF THE FEAST OF UNLEAVENED BREAD.

For in Thy remembrance is my light, my perfection, and my glory is the mention of Thy name. That I may find righteousness before the greatness of Thy Eternity, I will open my mouth with the remembrance of Thy name, so that I may attain (the fulfilment of) Thine own saying, 'In the place where my name is mentioned, there will I come unto thee and bless thee.' (Ex. xx. 24).

Thy servant will bring his praises before Thee and express his wish. My Lord, in Thy goodness, improve my heart, and make me secure from the enemy and his trespasses that I may lie down without trembling within me, in this Thy house and its confines (?) Burnt offerings and peace offerings we will slaughter therein and with all supplications we will stand at it. At its altar we will pray, sing and array ourselves - to the vexation of all who trespass upon it - for it (is deserving of) glory and His angels abide therein, therefore, Thou didst say concerning it, "Neither shalt thou go up by steps unto mine altar that thy nakedness be not discovered thereon" (Ex. xx. 26).

Because of the righteousness of these Thy names, your servant worships (lit. prostrates) with them, put us (away) from all mortal oppression, and cast the dread of Thee upon our enemies. Then will we attain those days of Thy favour and Thou wilt bear us upon the wings of Thy pity. We will offer Thee from the sheep and goats in the place which is Thy portion. We will proclaim words of blessing and at the entrance of the Tent of Meeting prostrate ourselves before Thee. We will express Thy names and explain the secrets and accept upon ourselves obedience to Thy word, 'That Thou shalt set the blessing upon Mount Gerizim and the curse upon mount Ebal' (Deut. xi.29).

May the voice of my petition of Thee, Oh Ancient One, bring me, Thy servant, that for which I beg, to be purified of all iniquity and guilt and to approach Thy place in rejoicing, Mount Gerizim, the gate of heaven, in which Thy angels foregather (and) God appears, as was proclaimed by His chosen and holy one. O Lord, establish it with the renewal of the covenant and we will celebrate at it with gladness and rejoicing and bring down, free-will offerings and heave offerings to the vale of His sanctuary as Thou didst command O Lord, 'Unto His Habitation shall ye seek'. (Deut. xii.5).

Pity, forgiveness and mercy afford Thy people that sojourn in Thy habitation. Least amongst all the peoples of the world, they cleave to Thy holy mountain. Grant us release from all presumptuousness and help us to convey Thy heave-offerings before Thee in the most exalted of all places according to Thy covenant which Thou hast made with us by the hand of Moses, the chosen one, 'Take heed to thyself that thou offer not thy burnt offerings in every

Signs of His might, their number was ten, now we will relate and commence to recall (them) with this hymn.

First the rod which was turned to serpent and after it blood and frogs were given. Lice and a mixture of obnoxious beasts, cattle, and boils, hail and fire intermingled, with it was a plague upon Egypt.

An east wind was sent, and it carried the locust in its power, upon Egypt and it rested in its border, and after it, thick darkness and the death of the firstborn of the animals overtook them.

A people's memory was blotted out and they sank in the Red Sea, whilst another people went out in peace and the sea split before and was dry land for them.

C.p.228, line 1. 'Another MAHKRUG'

God of the 'prince of God' and the father of the assembly of nations, whose dignities were revealed, when the zealous God said to him,
'I am the Almighty God, walk before me and be perfect'.

God of Sarah's son, that is Isaac who was saved, who was bound back upon the altar and was released by God,
He was honoured in the world and excelled in blessings, and from him there arose two peoples.

God of him that slept in the place and dreamt a dream,
And he saw, and behold a ladder standing, and upon it angels went up and down and when he awoke he feared God and said, 'This is none other than the House of God;
and this is the gate of heaven.'

God of him that left his garment, and was delivered, and fled from immorality and sought the way of truth.
Because of his deeds he was made known and wore the garments of sovereignty and interpreted the two dreams.
God of the exalted man, the mightiest of all the world, the crown of the species of man who was sent to Israel as a saviour, and with signs saved them. That is the great prophet Moses, the prophet of all the worlds.
God of Aaron the priest whom He anointed with holy oil and he wore the breastplate with the Ephod and cloak, the diadem and its thread, the mitre, a crown, with the Urim and the Thumim.

God of Eleazar and Ithamar, and Phineas who stabbed those who committed adultery and was zealous for his Lord and as a reward the priesthood was accorded him, for him and his seed after him, established for ever and ever.

By the merit of these I will seek my Lord, that He may open before thee the gates of His mercies and cause to descend upon you His blessing. May He give you the best of His gifts and grant you His salvation and give you respite from all afflictions.

And may your people be with you (in this) that He may bless your food and your bread. May He also command His blessing in your store-houses and fulfil His word, which He explained in His book, 'The Lord will open for thee His goodly storehouse, the heavens'.

AMEN, I AM THAT I AM.

O, Assembly which is here united, the people of the Lord and His congregation. Devote your mind and give ear to the hearing of this recitation in which secrets are explained to the intelligent whose heart is full of wisdom.

It is incumbent upon me, in my speech, that I call upon the name of the Lord and repeatedly sing His praises and magnify His greatness. Yea, I will sanctify His name and ask for His charity; may He give me the ability for this.

I beseech Him and may He grant me my requests, for upon Him is my trust and to Him continually do I cleave. For His salvation I hope, for He is the sword of my might, my strength and my song is the Lord.

He was given a drop of fire from the time 3 that God said, 'Let there be light'. On the sixth day the image was prepared for him and the world was brought good tidings by him, from thence he also was called and for his sake was the world begun.

This was the man, the exalted, the mighty one, like whom there is none amongst all flesh, this is the prince the doer, the saviour whose name is Moses, the select of all souls.

This was the one who from the bush, upon the top of the mount Sinai, the Lord, the possessor, called him, Oh Moses, Oh Moses, and spoke from the midst of the fire, mouth to mouth, without intermediary and remembered His covenant.

He bound (i.e. compelled) him to be the chosen of the meritorious ones and sent him to redeem Israel from the hand of the wicked Pharaoh. He revealed by his hand, wonders, and performed by him miracles and fearful signs like which has not been seen.

There has not been performed in the world like them, excepting these alone. Eleven they were in number, they passed through Egypt. One after the other they spread, no one was like the other, they were purely a tiding and a revenge.

For the Hebrews they were tidings when they were redeemed from bondage whilst for the Egyptians they were oppression and distress. And they did not acknowledge (it) until their firstborn died so that there remained of them not one alive in the world.

When the destroyer was sent upon them at midnight, amongst them there was a great cry whilst Israel were in their places, eating their sacrifices, rendering thanks to their God, when Pharaoh and his people arose at night.

This plague that passed over upon him was sent by the mighty One. To Moses and Aaron He said, 'Arise go out all of you and all that is yours take out with you and serve your God as

You are delivered; hasten to go out, and return not to me'.

Then all Israel arose with rejoicing and carried their dough upon their shoulders. On the morrow of the Passover they went out from Egypt with an exalted hand.

And with never-ending glory, with unchanging peace, they came to the Red Sea and upon its shores they encamped.

The thing was told to Pharaoh, behold Israel have passed into the wilderness but can find there no resting place —

And behold they have become entangled in the wilderness, the right way is unknown to them. And when he heard this, he changed his mind and returned to his wickedness and said to himself, 'Why

And he opened his mouth and said to the assembly of his people, 'strengthen yourselves, all of you, and arise and harness the chariots so that we may speedily overtake Israel and return them to servitude as before.'

Then all his men arose, and his chariots and horsemen, his chosen officers his army and all his host, all were appointed at his word and they journeyed after Israel and overtook them camping by the sea.

When Israel lifted up their eyes, they saw their enemies pursuing after them, their hearts were afraid and their limbs trembled and they lifted up their voices to the 'exalted habitation'. They cried out to their Lord but they were divided into three parties (lit. portions), every party of them made a reckoning amongst themselves — but Moses spoke and answered them, "Listen to these words" —

A portion gathered together and were clothed with a great fear of their adversaries and they sought how they could escape from them. Moses answered them, 'do not be afraid, stand and see the salvation of the Lord.'

Another portion gathered together and considered amongst themselves how they could return to the service of their enemies. But Moses answered them, 'Your eyes will no more see their image'.

Yet another portion strengthened themselves and cleaved to God and rightly prepared themselves for war with their enemies. But Moses answered and said to them, 'The Lord will fight for you, and watch over you from the exalted habitation'.

Then the voice proceeded from the hidden world to the son of Amram the messenger, 'My servant, why do you cry out to Me, tell the people that they should journey in peace; lift up your rod and stretch out your hand over the sea and open with it the gate of deliverance.

And when permission was given, with this command, from the Lord God to Moses the son of Amram, he turned the rod on high and stretched his hand over the sea and lo, great fear and dread -

Clothed the sea because of this holy man, and its waters parted and became congealed and twelve ways opened up therein and the people went therein and there was cloud and darkness and He illumined all the night until it ended.

And all the Egyptians jeopardised themselves and passed through after them and when they were in the sea the waters prevailed and returned over them and they descended like a stone into the depths before them, so that the sea closed in over them and none of them came out. But all Israel went out in peace and lifted up their eyes and saw their adversaries dead upon the sea shore.

They feared the Lord and opened their mouths and praised the Lord, the men with Moses and Aaron first and after them Miriam and the women, all saying in a loud voice, 'Who is like unto Thee amongst the mighty O Lord'.

May the Lord do similar for you with your adversaries and look down upon you in His mercies and give you release from the oppression of the 'disfavour' for the sake of the possessors of merit and the interpreter of dreams.

The seventh day of the Feast of Unleavened Bread, how good it is amongst the festivals. It is the second of the festivals that are appointed, as holy convocations, (or, 'that are mentioned in the holy scripture'). Upon it is a holy convocation to the Lord at which no stranger may draw near. Upon it is a 1feast (pilgrimage?) at Mount Gerizim and upon the 'everlasting hill' they gather together. Upon it the ancestors were released from Pharaoh and went up victorious. Upon it too they came to the Red Sea and the waters dried up for them. 2It was crowned with the eating of the unleavened bread, concerning which the Lord commanded in His scripture. How goodly is the making of unleavened bread according to the commandment upon this festival, as the Lord commanded. For it begins with the sacrifice of the Passover 3and it concludes with a festival to the Lord when He conquered them (Egypt) when Israel turned back. After it (is a commandment) to count fifty days in goodness, when the secret of the unleavened bread on the seven days is revealed and its greatness related. It is the time upon which the angels proceeded to Lot who was amongst the esteemed and honoured of Sodom and he made for them a feast and baked unleavened bread and they ate before they lay down. them, the other hosts cried out as the clouds of wrath descended upon them. It is fitting for us to praise the name of God who did kindnesses for his loved ones, delivered their sons from Egypt and did these deeds for them. So may He do for you all manner of good and kindnesses. May He redeem your captives Oh sons of the chiefs (patriarchs?). May He prevail over those that prevail over you destroying your enemies before you.
May your fear(of Him) be steadfast and may He make you to dwell in safety alone. May He reveal the 'favour' in your days upon the holiest of worshipping places. Even thus may He protect all your lives those that are here gathered together. I will beseech your kindness (i.e. consideration) Oh wise, understanding and intelligent ones, take not (to task) your ministrator, who is your servant's servant, for he lacks intelligence, his words and language are heavy, so that he concludes the hymn with pious words
'May you celebrate this day again for a hundred years, fathers and children.'

Unleavened Bread falls upon the Sabbath (as) aforementioned day, holy Sabbath and holy Festival and both of them are precious. Upon the one we are rested from all toil and upon the other is a festival at His holy mountain. One is the king of all days and the other is clothed with a crown of His crown. The one is a holy store and the other He provided from His store. One is the gate of blessings and upon the other the blessings are said. One the tree of life and the other food of its fruit. One the root of holiness, the other its sanctity is a part of it. One the light of the lamp and the other cometh from (or, surrounded by?) its flame. One like a garden whosoever passes smells (its fragrance) the other like an orchard sprouting buds, they delight whosoever buy of it. One like the citizen the other like the stranger for the one comes and goes, once a year it passes through, whilst the other will never be moved and will not depart from its place. Each week it comes and who can annul its glory. At the time that it comes to the Israelite he finds comfort for his soul. One is for Israel a jubilee, on the other was wrought for Israel his deliverance, as water descends upon the vegetation watering all its parts. One a deliverance from weariness and the other from captivity.

OF THE SABBATH OF THE FEAST OF UNLEAVENED BREAD

May God, the helper, be my help — He required no help in His work and creation — , He who chose His people Israel and sanctified and blessed it with many blessings in His holy Law. With five blessings He magnified them, by the hand of prophets and priests who mention His Law. In each book a blessing is contained within it, 'And this is what their father spoke to them and he blessed them each one according to his blessing, he blessed them'. "The Lord God of your fathers make you a thousand times so many more as ye are", and bless you with His blessing.

'And Aaron lifted up his hands over the people and blessed them' with seven words, as the blessing in His sanctuary at Mount Gerizim'. "And Moses and Aaron came and they ministered, and they went forth and they blessed the people and the glory of the Lord appeared in His goodness. And all the people saw and they shouted and fell down in prayer. 'The Lord bless thee and keep thee The Lord make His face to shine upon thee and be gracious unto thee, in His grace. 'The Lord turn His countenance to thee and grant thee peace', in His mercy. And this blessing, the fifth, is the last, 'Look down from Thy holy habitation from the heavens and bless thy people Israel',

'Blessed shall be the fruit of thy body and the fruit of thy ground, and the fruit of thy cattle' - His gift - 'Blessed be thy basket and thy store', may the Lord increase it. Blessed shalt thou be when thou comest in, and blessed shalt thou be when thou goest out in His peace. 'The Lord shall command the blessing upon thee in thy storehouses and in all that thou settest thine hand unto', in His blessing. 'The Lord shall open unto thee His good treasure, the heaven' in His goodness. 'To give the rain of thy land in its season and to bless all the work of thine hands', in His greatness. This verse is by the late, humble, uncle, MURJAN, the mercy etc.

May this Sabbath of the Feast of Unleavened Bread be blessed for you for on this day the Lord granted you release from the hands of your enemies. May you make it with rejoicing you and your children, for a hundred years in glory and may you be secure in your places. May He restore you to tens of thousands and destroy your enemies. May He lead them into troubles and drive them out before you for the sake of the possessors of merit and Joseph your fathers, and for the sake of the chosen of creatures and the anointed ones your priests and the Holy One who said in the holy Law 'And I will pass over you'.

I have finished everything for (about?) Him and I conclude my words before you. May you celebrate again all your sabbaths and festivals, every New Moon and and statute, year of Release and Jubilee and all who are gathered at the repast you and all your congregation, for a hundred years, even as at this sabbath, throughout your days. May rejoicing and blessing increase within your homes. May 'disfavour' be ended and in favour may He come near to you. May His favour look down there, and may the holy vessels be in your habitations. Then Moses and Israel his people sang to the honoured Upright One,

I will bow down before Him, worship and serve (Him); we will praise Him that is perpetually alone (or, 'in His might').

With praises, as it is fitting that we should do for He is eternally glorious.

Seeing, yet unseen, and no eyes can behold Him.

He is I AM THAT I AM and there is none partner with Him.

He hath no place, nor boundary nor end, and no place can contain Him.

With His wisdom He created the heavens and the earth and arranged the creatures that were established.

We will fear Him, we will magnify Him and we will glorify Him, we will bow down and we will exalt Him.

He led them to the Red Sea with rejoicing and gladness, and before them were the pillars of cloud and fire and the son of Amram and his brother. He divided the sea for them and its waters were heaped upon either side and they passed through it on this day and went out thence in peace. The Egyptians pursued and came after them in the midst of the sea, how wise they thought they were, but the sea closed upon them and the earth swallowed them. Then the peoples marvelled, they trembled and feared and they dreaded the haste of His vengeance. 'And they believed in the Lord and in Moses his servant', upon him may there be perfect peace, they praised with great songs and said with loud voice, 'There is none like unto Him', 'The Lord is mighty in war, the Lord is His Name', Blessed be His name.

I will relate the praises of the Doer of signs and wonders to whom are intended wealth of praise and prayers for He performeth all kinds of wonders. To God who upon it ordained a festival at this most holy place. To the victor of all battles et seq.

By the altar of praises we will stand and proclaim in the name of the Lord. We will bend the knee and worship and pray in the name of the meritorious ones of the world. In the name of him to whom it was said, 'Fear not, and he believed in the Lord'. And in the name of him that dwelt in Gerar and the Lord appeared to him. And in the name of him who met Him at Penuel and he saw angels from on high. And in the name of him who would not near to (what causes) untimely birth and whose merit was great. In whose heart He has planted the tree of knowledge and it sprouted and budded and brought forth buds and bloomed wisdom and he plucked and ate of its fruit. And he drank from the fountain of merit and bathed in the sea of purity. He dwelt in the sanctuary of repentance and wore the garments of fear. There sprouted in the field of his thoughts the seed of praise and song. He raised and sprouted within his ark and harvested his crop and stored it in the storehouse of the mouth and the heart until he should sell to all that seek to buy. He waters the garden of the heart with the waters of the wisdom of the Law. This is a little of the interpretation of his glorious attributes which transcend number. May you celebrate this day again for a hundred years, you who are here assembled, by the Holy One, the faithful God, who reigneth above and below, He is the great, and awesome mighty God.

Upon the sole of the foot I stand and purify my heart and body, and make known to those that stand here as well as those of the past and the future, how the people settled after they came forth from the sea, at ease, in peace, glory and rejoicing, by the hand of the prophet of the world of whom it has been said, "Most faithful in all My house". Only with the inward mind and with intelligent thought can we perceive with goodly vision this settling that it was with understandable truth. They had an exceedingly great dwelling, such as I would that mine eye had seen. When they sang the portion of 'Then sang' (Ex.xv.) and the clouds of (Divine) favour shielded over them. Moses the elders of the people standing with sincerity and behind the elders the congregation of Israel the assembly of the Hebrews. And Moses the prophet sang the song with raised voice, portion by portion. And when he finished each portion, he was silent and the congregation of elders would answer 'Sing ye' to the Lord', all powerful, exalted God, deliverer and full of pity. 'For the proud nation', horse and rider, He cast into the sea' and all Israel responded, 'My strength and my song' - after the tidings which they had received - with fine song. Thus did Miriam say to the women, 'Say to the Lord who knoweth both the revealed and hidden things' and this the women said, with her, with timbrels and dances. Each portion concerning this return which was aforementioned.

How good is this goodly return and how honey-sweet its commemoration upon my heart. Blessed are our fathers and what they heard of mighty things. Blessed are they and what they saw of wondrous wonders.

So may you, 0 people, see the (Divine) favour upon the holy hills and may you be relieved of all oppression and (May He) give you rejoicing.¹

OF THE SABBATH OF THE FEAST OF UNLEAVENED BREAD.

First by an ordinance forever (ib.14). Seven days shall ye eat unleavened bread; (ib.15). At even, ye shall eat unleavened bread (ib.18). Ye shall eat nothing leavened; in all your habitations shall ye eat unleavened bread (ib.20). The Lord will pass over the door, and will not suffer the destroyer to come into your houses to smite you (ib.23). That ye shall keep this service in this month (ib.25). Unleavened cakes (ib.39). And ye came out in the month Abib (Ex.xiii.4). That thou shalt keep this service in this month (ib.5). Six days thou shalt eat unleavened bread and in the seventh day shall be a feast to the Lord (ib.6). Unleavened bread shall be eaten. (ib.7). Thou shalt therefore keep this ordinance in its season from year to year (Ex.xiii.10). The Lord shall fight for you, and ye shall hold your peace (ib.xiv.14). My strength and song, and he is become my salvation; this is my God, and I will praise; my father's God, and I will exalt him. The Lord is mighty in war: the Lord is His name (ib.xv.2-3). Blessed is His name. I will put none of the diseases upon thee which I have put upon the Egyptians: for I am the Lord that healeth thee (ib.26). O Lord God heal us from all sickness. This is that which the Lord hath spoken ... a solemn rest, a holy sabbath unto the Lord (ib.xvi.23).

OF THE SABBATH OF THE FEAST OF UNLEAVENED BREAD.

For today is a sabbath unto the Lord. But on the seventh day is the Sabbath. And it came to pass on the seventh day (ib.25027). See, for that the Lord hath given you the sabbath ... abide ye every man in his place, let no man go out of his place on the seventh day. So the people rested on the seventh day (ib 29-30). Keep the sabbath day (Ex.xx.8).

But the seventh day is a sabbath (ib.10). And rested the seventh day: wherefore the Lord blessed the sabbath day, and hallowed it (ib.11). Six days thou shalt do thy work, and on the seventh day thou shalt rest: (Ex. xxiii.12). Thou shalt keep the feast of unleavened bread: thou shalt eat unleavened bread seven days...at the time appointed in the month Abib (ib. 15). And ye shall serve the Lord your God, and He shall bless thy bread, and thy water: and I will take sickness away from the midst of thee (ib.25).

And will discomfit all the people to whom thou shalt come, and I will make all thine enemies turn their backs unto thee (ib.27). And unleavened bread, and cakes unleavened, and wafers unleavened (Ex. xxix.2). And out of the basket of unleavened bread (ib.23). Verily ye shall keep My sabbaths: for it is between me and you throughout your generations; that ye may know that I am the Lord which sanctify you. 3Ye shall keep the sabbath therefore; for

Therefore, I expound to you what you shall hear of my words (concerning) these days, heed my discourse about these things, only that you may know, what you are about.
You must know and understand. The first thing of which I will speak (is) about what you should pray. When the Lord sought that the creation of the world should take place, He rode heaven upon heaven and the void and emptiness. He removed the firmament and after this all came that to Him do hearken. They testify of the Creator's might, that there is none but He, 'And God said, Let there be light and there was light' and He saw it.

Our Lord revealed (i.e. created) to be from that which high priest and the goodly mountain, Mount Gerizim, where is the writing.

I have spoken my words concerning the elements of the world, and about the time when hidden things were revealed. But at the beginning of what I speak I speak in error. Who can aspire unto the prayer of the son of Jochebed and Amram. The one prophet, like him, none will arise or hath arisen. The prophet (who) comprehended the secret things of the creation and the day of vengeance. The holy prophet whose figure was clothed with the image (of God?). The righteous, faithful, prophet, the chosen one of the sons of men. The prophet that came with wonders, the mention of them is made previously. The prophet that went to Pharaoh and came forth safely. The prophet who went with his people upon dry land in the midst of the sea. The prophet to whom God spoke mouth to mouth, not in a dream. This prophet, his name is Moses, proclaim 'peace upon him'.

As our Lord chose one apostle, I aver, so is the high priest upon whose head anointing oil was poured. He it was that was clothed with cloak, Ephod and breastplate, The Urim and Thumim also were upon his heart so that he could tell about that which is hidden more than any priest and judge between blood and blood and teach this truth. He stood also between the dead and the living; and all burning was delayed. He came also into the sanctuary l. C. line 26, B(N)843.

that this is the gate, before it we will spread the hand (in prayer). And we will pass through the house of our Lord, at its gate, and will eat of the choicest of the produce of the 'everlasting hill' and may there be a great blessing upon every festival, And we say, that if he was one prophet and one priest so too will this be honoured for it is the one among the mountains. Abraham, your father, was guided to it, and he built there an altar and arranged the wood and bound Isaac and he was saved by Him that came down upon him.

These three, ARCHONIM, prophet, priest and place of worship, and there remains the great scripture which His greatness sent by the hand of Moses the great Master, on the day of the standing (at Mount Sinai). The scripture for the sake of which the world was founded and which the highest prince received. Where is there a great scripture like that which was brought down from heaven? Where is there a prophet like him that received it? Moses who stood, fasting for a hundred and sixty days, praying in the name of the honoured God. Who can abide in this dwelling? Who has done what He has done? Who is like our Lord amongst the gods? We will give thanks to Him as it is fitting to do. Who hath a prophet like unto our prophet from whose words to learn? May you be encompassed by a great blessing, at this mount where the ark of the covenant of the Lord and His priest journey before you and you after them, ministering to the sanctuary of Moses, receiving the blessing of Aaron, from every side may you be delivered and glorified. And this great assembly, to which you come from your places, in your lifetime may this good thing, indeed be. Hasten to do it and relate of it to the last generation that come to this place and observe the ancient services and beseech the Lord at the 'Gate of Heaven', so that the Lord may repent Him of His fierce anger and grant you mercy and may you be remembered for good and may this deed be a memorial for you.

Upon this place, on the appointed day, you shall go to the cave of the field of Machpelah which is the best of resting places. The company that rest therein, their merit shines forth, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, with whom He made His covenant, May you be graced when you go to their (grave) sides, for their covenant is bequeathed to you of all their descendants, and for your sake it was uttered. In your lifetime (may He) grant us a portion amongst them, and (then) we will not eradicate Thy memory. For their sakes, the Lord bless thee and keep thee, and cut not off their covenant from thee. May you go and return in peace and pray by (the graveside of?) Joseph the fruitful bough.

You will see wonders in every place. May I be justified by the fulfilment (lit. righteousness) of this thing that I have said before you and of it may nought be omitted (lit. left out). May the proclaimer of the Law be glorified, who proclaimed the Ten Words: And God spake all these words, saying, I am the Lord thy God, which have brought thee out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of bondage. Thou shalt have none other gods before me. Thou shalt not make unto thee a graven image, nor the likeness of any form that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the water under the earth: Thou shalt not bow down thyself unto them, nor serve them: for I the Lord thy God am a jealous God, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children unto the third and fourth generation of them that hate me; And shewing mercy unto thousands of them that love me and keep My commandments. God in vain; for the Lord will not hold him guiltless that taketh His name in vain. Keep the Sabbath day (Ex.xx1-8). But the seventh day is a sabbath. And rested the seventh day: wherefore the Lord blessed the sabbath day, and hallowed it. Honour thy father and thy mother; that thy days may be long upon the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee. Thou shalt do no murder. Thou shalt not commit adultery. Thou shalt not steal. Thou shalt not bear false witness. Thou shalt not covet thy neighbour's house...nor anything that is thy neighbour's (ib.10-17). And it shall come to pass when the Lord thy God hath brought thee...And it shall be when ye are passed over Jordan, that ye shall set up these stones, which I command you this day, in mount Gerizim. And there shalt thou build an altar unto the Lord thy God, an altar of stones: (Sam. Tenth Commandment. Cf. Deut. xxviii 4-6). The honoured Lord is one and there is none beside him in the heavens above or in the earth beneath: yet besides Him. Blessed be the Lord our God who hath the honoured and upright Name. Praised be He, We will circumcise our hearts and the hearts of our seed and we will fear him and love and seek after and keep the Ten Words of the covenant which He spoke in Horeb from the midst of the fire on the day of the assembly. The Lord is a merciful and gracious God. Forgive us, O Lord, and to the fathers in lovingkindness, of all that we have sinned and erred and transgressed before thee. O Lord, 'I AM THAT I AM'.
Remember Thy servants Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, O Lord for their sakes and for the sake of Thy servant Moses, turn not to (regard not) our stubbornness, our wickedness or our sins. We are the wicked and sinful before Thy greatness, but Thou, O Lord, art a merciful and gracious God. Go, I pray Thee, O Lord in our midst, for we are a stiff-necked people, and pardon our iniquity, and our sin, and take us for Thine inheritance. O merciful Lord in Thy great name, deliver us from all falsehood and save us from every abomination, purify our souls from all our impurities and sanctify our bodies from all uncleanness; forgive us and our fathers, O Lord in Thy lovingkindness for all that we have sinned and erred and transgressed before Thee. O Lord we will circumcise our hearts.

and we will return to Thee with all our hearts and all our soul, and we will love Thee with all our heart, with all our soul and with all our might. That it may be good with us we will implore Thy loving-kindness, and Thou wilt surely confer upon us Thy mercy and loving-kindness to the full that we may keep Thy charge, Thy statutes, Thy commandments and Thy judgements all the days.
Praised be God, there is no God but one, the Lord God is one.

OF THE SABBATH OF THE FEAST OF UNLEAVENED BREAD.

And God blessed the seventh day and hallowed it: because that in it He rested from all His work which God had created and made (Gen. ii.3).
Praised be God, there is no God but one.

But God will surely visit you, and bring you up out of this land unto the land which He sware to Abraham, to Isaac and to Jacob (Gen. L.24.). And God remembered His covenant with Abraham, with Isaac, and with Jacob (Ex. ii.24). Moreover He said, I am the God of thy father, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob (Ex. iii.6). O their God and their Lord have mercy upon us for their sakes and hear the voice of our cry in memory of their covenant. Praised be God, there is no God but one.

The Lord, the God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob...The Lord, the God of Abraham, of Isaac and of Jacob hath appeared unto me. (Ex. iii.15-16). That they may believe that the Lord the God of their fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob, hath appeared unto thee (Ex. iv.5). O their God et seq. L.6.f.130 b.

L.6.f.136b adds,

And he took the book of the covenant...and said, Behold the blood of the covenant...Then went up Moses, and Aaron, Nadab, and Abihu (Ex. xxiv.7-9).

L.6.f.136b adds,

That they take for me an offering: of every man whose heart maketh him willing ye shall take my offering. And this is the offering. (Ex.xxv.2-3).

L.6.f.136b adds,

According to all that I shewed thee in the mount the pattern of the tabernacle, and the pattern of all the furniture thereof, even so shall ye make it (Ib.9). And the veil shall divide unto you between the holy place and the most holy (Ex.xxvi.33). And thou shalt make an altar to burn incense upon: (Ex.xxx.1). And he shall burn thereof sweet incense every morning, when he dresseth the lamps, he shall burn incense upon it. And when Aaron lighteth the lamps at even, he shall burn it.

(Ex.xxx.7-8).

And Aaron shall bear their names before the Lord, upon his two shoulders for a memorial (Ex.xxviii.12).
And the stones shall be according to the names of the children of Israel (ib.21).

And thou shalt sanctify the breast of the wave offering and the shoulder of the heave offering, which is waved, and which is heaved up of the ram of the consecration even of that which is for Aaron, and of that which is for his sons: And it shall be for Aaron and his sons as a due for ever from the children of Israel:
for it is an heave offering and it shall be an heave offering from the children of Israel from the sacrifices of their peace offerings, even their heave offering unto of the Lord (Ex.xxix.27-28). And thou shalt take the anointing oil, and of the blood that is upon the altar and sprinkle it upon Aaron, and upon his garments, and upon his sons, and upon the garments of his sons with him; and he shall be hallowed and his garments and his sons and his sons' garments with him. (Sam. addition. Cf. Ex.xxix.21).
And the holy garments of Aaron shall be for his sons after him, to be anointed therein, and to be consecrated in them.
(Ib.29).
A shekel is twenty gerahs...the offering to the Lord. Every one that passeth over unto them that are numbered, from twenty years old and upward, shall give the offering of the Lord, ... When they give the offering unto the Lord, That it may be a memorial for the children of Israel before the Lord, to make atonement for your souls (Ex.xxx.i3-16).

Take ye from among you an offering unto the Lord: whosoever is of a willing heart let him bring it, an offering of the Lord; (Ex.xxxv.5). They brought the Lord's offering (ib.21). Everyone that did offer an offering of silver and brass brought the Lord's offering (ib.24). And they received of Moses all the offering (Ex.xxxvi.3), saying let neither man nor woman make any more work for the offering of the sanctuary (ib.6).

And they made the plate ... to fasten it upon the mitre above, as the Lord commanded Moses. (Ex. xxxix.30-31).

of all the house of Israel, throughout all their journeys. (Ib. 38).

L.6.f.139b, adds,

And of it he shall offer one out of each oblation for an heave offering unto the Lord; (Lev. vii.14). He shall not leave any of it until the morning (ib.15). And the right shoulder shall ye give unto the priest for an heave offering (ib.32). For the wave breast and the heave shoulder (ib.34).

And Moses spake unto Aaron and unto Eleazar and unto Ithamar, .... and eat it without leaven ... for so I am commanded. And the wave breast and the heave shoulder. The heave shoulder and the wave breast. (Ib. x.12-15).

L.6.f.140 adds,

And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying, speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them; ye shall do no servile work therein. But ye shall offer an offering made by fire unto the Lord seven days: (Lev. xxiii.1-8). And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying, Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them. When ye be come into the land which I give unto you, and shall reap the harvest thereof, then ye shall bring a sheaf of the first fruits of your harvest unto the priest; And he shall wave the sheaf before the Lord, to be accepted for you:on the morrow after the sabbath the priest shall wave it.
PRAYERS OF THE SABBATH OF THE FEAST OF UNLEAVENED BREAD

And in the day when ye wave the sheaf ye shall offer a lamb without blemish of the first year for a burnt offering unto the Lord. And the meal offering thereof shall be two tenth parts of an ephah of fine flour mingled with oil, an offering made by fire for a sweet savour: and the drink offering thereof shall be of wine, the fourth part of an hin. And ye shall eat neither bread, nor parched corn, nor green ears, until this selfsame day until ye have brought the oblation of your God: it is a statute for ever throughout your generations in all your dwellings. (ib. 9-14).

L.6.f.140 b. adds,

Now these are the generations of Aaron and Moses in the day that the Lord spake with Moses in mount Sinai. And these are the names of the sons of Aaron, Nadab the firstborn, and Abihu, Eleazar and Ithamar. (Num.iii.1-2).

L.6.f.141 adds,

This is holy for the priest, together with the wave breast and heave shoulder: and after that the Nazarite may drink wine. (Num. vi.20).

L.6.f.141 b. adds,

Then it shall be, that, when ye eat of the bread of the land, ye shall offer up an heave offering unto the Lord. Ye shall offer up a cake of the first of your dough for an heave offering: as ye do the heave offering of the threshing floor so shall ye heave it. Of the first of your dough ye shall give unto the Lord an heave offering throughout your generations (Num.xv.19-21).

Speak unto Eleazar the son of Aaron the priest (Num.xvi.37; Heb. xvii.2). And Eleazar the priest took (ib.39:Heb.4).

Behold, I have given thee the charge of mine heave offerings even all the hallowed things of the children of Israel. (Num. xviii.8). And this is thine; the heave offering of their gift, (ib.11). All the heave offerings of the holy things, which the children of Israel offer unto the Lord, have I given thee, and thy sons (ib.19).

L.6.f.142 adds,

For the tithe of the children of Israel which they offer as an heave offering unto the Lord, I have given to the Levites for an inheritance: therefore I have said unto them, Among the children of Israel they shall have no inheritance (ib.24). Thus speak unto the Levites, and say unto them, When ye take of the children of Israel the tithes which I have given you from them for your inheritance, then ye shall offer up an heave offering of it for the Lord, a tithe of the tithe. And your heave offering shall be reckoned unto you, as though it were the corn of the threshing floor, and as the fulness of the winepress. Thus ye also shall offer an heave offering unto the Lord of all your tithes, which ye receive of the children of Israel; and ye shall give thereof the Lord's heave offering to Aaron the priest. Out of all your gifts ye shall offer every heave offering of the Lord, of all the best thereof, even the hallowed part thereof out of it. Therefore thou shalt say unto them, When ye heave the best thereof from it... (ib. 26-30). And the holy things of the children of Israel (ib. 32). And ye shall give her unto Eleazar the priest... And Eleazar the priest shall take... (Num. xix. 3-4). Take Aaron and Eleazar his son,... And put them upon Eleazar his son: (Num. xx. 25-26). And put them upon Eleazar his son... and Moses and Eleazar came down from the mount. (ib. 28).

L. 6.f. 142 b adds,

So the plague was stayed from the children of Israel (ib. 8) Phinehas, the son of Eleazar, the son of Aaron the priest.... And the Lord spake unto Moses and unto Eleazar the son of Aaron the priest (Num. xxvi. 1) And Moses and Eleazar the priest spake (ib. 3) These are they that were numbered by Moses and Eleazar the priest (ib. 63). And they stood before Moses, and before Eleazar the priest (ib. xxvii. 2). And they brought.... unto Moses and Eleazar the priest... And Moses, and Eleazar the priest... went forth... (ib. 12-13). And he said to Eleazar the priest (Sam. addition). And Eleazar the priest said (Num. xxxi. 21). Thou and Eleazar the priest (ib. 26). And give it unto Eleazar the priest, for an heave offering of the Lord (ib. 29).
Began Moses to declare this law (Deut. 1.5).

Behold I have set the land before you (ib.8).

Then is said three proclamations, a section antiphonally, then the sacred scripture is brought forth and with it three (other) scriptures, then is said, 'Then sang' (Ex.xv) to a solemn chant, when they reach 'And I will praise him' (ib.v.2) they say antiphonally 'The Lord is mighty' (ib. 3 as S.P.) with great acclamation, and four sections, and they say the above sections 'Pharaoh's chariots' (Ib.4) and when they begin what is set out below, (they say?) 'And in the greatness of thine excellency' (ib.7), the priests turn with the scriptures to the congregation and they kiss the scriptures, beginning with the eldest and concluding with the youngest. Then they say to the priests 'For a hundred years in your lives'. And they say a section above and a section below, until they reach 'Till Thy people pass over, O Lord' (ib.16) (when) the priests turn to the altar and conclude 'Then sang' (Ex.xv.) Then the eldest of the priests says first the praises (?) and afterwards the completion (?) and the response is 'God is great' et seq. Then is said 'You are the great scripture' (C.p.55) all of it. Then 'Holy One' (C.p.11) and 'Oh Great One' (C.p. 84) et seq., and 'Oh holy, shining scripture'.

All of it

Then is said a DEKHOR, composed by, the late, pious, Abdallah b. Solomon, the Lord have mercy upon him.

The Lord did wonders and the things seen, He distinguished this day by that which is performed on it, at the eating of the sacrifice. By it you are likened to the stars amongst the order of families.

Thou didst pass in their midst and didst abide in their presence and the hand of this enemy was unable to inflict mortal wound upon you. Thou didst that which thou didst desire according to the inspiration. O upright are His deeds, upon this day thou didst become a holy people and assumed this crown of holiness so that before Thy eyes the established covenant shall be fulfilled.

The truth will be confirmed and the truth you will be told in your soul's ears. Keep the month of Abib and observe and do that which thy Lord commanded thee, 'and thou shalt go and thou shalt turn.'

After eating the sacrifice roasted in fire rejoice with heart and soul and make offering and thou shalt worship.

And thou shalt eat and be satisfied and after it (the Passover) departs comes this holy day, the crown of the days of creation.

On the morrow of the Passover they went out completely before the eyes of all Egypt after that which the death had caused to them.

c.p.256 line 1.

And on the morrow of this day they begin the counting. Counting fifty days after the bringing of the Omer of the wave offering.

May Sabbath and Festival be blessed for you who are here in prayer and may you be graced upon Sabbaths and Festivals. And may you see the sanctuary standing upon the holiest of hills for the sake of the prophet Moses the chosen of all creatures.

Even so may He protect all your lives, who are here come together. For a hundred years may you make this sabbath of the festival of Passover and be at rest and in peace.

Be calm⁴ and speak not and discern⁵ rightly between Egypt and Israel and err not in thy judging⁶.

The sea became calm when⁷ it heard the words of Moses and his ⁸ speech and Moses lifted his rod on high and smote it in the name of his Lord.

And he opened through ways⁹ (paths) through which Israel passed on dry¹⁰ land singing¹¹ praises to God.

Moses entered and Pharaoh entered and both of them were encompassed by the sea as different as lead and tin, between night and morning.

Moses was clothed in honour whilst Pharaoh was clothed in evil: One people was saved whilst the others was slain.

The peace of the Lord be upon Moses, head of the world and its crown, who received two tablets and the Law, His Book.

Even so may He do for you with those who prevail over you and save you from disfavour and increase your glory.

And may He make this Sabbath, which is the sabbath of His festival of the firstborn, blessed and a blessing for you and upon those that are assembled here?

May He relieve your weariness and grant you deliverance, increase your numbers and may you multiply, and be fruitful. Amen.

I AM THAT I AM, O sea of mercies and pity, have mercy upon the author of this hymn and cause him to dwell in the garden of Paradise.

Conclude your prayers and say with purity of tongue, all of you with one accord, 'O Lord God when Thou seest,'

THE SEVEN SEGUDOTH

The SEGUDOTH are proclaimed at this point, when there is said the DEKHOR 'The Lord did wonders' (C.p.255), the first is the SEGUDOTH of 'O Lord God when Thou seest in the abundant greatness of Thy kindness' et seq. But if 'O Congregation' (C.p.256) is said, the first SEGUDAH is 'My strength and my song' (Ex. xv.2) and the second (SEGUDAH) 'O Lord God' and the third, 'The set feasts' (Lev. xxiii.2) and 'The Lord bless thee' (Num. vi. 24?) and the remainder is as set out.

The First, O Lord God when Thou lookest in Thy great abundant kindness, remember for us the prayer of our master Moses, Thy prophet who said before Thy Majesty, 'Turn from Thy fierce .... to whom Thou didst swear by Thine own self (Ex.xxxii.12-13).

The Second, 'The set feasts of the Lord which you shall proclaim' (Lev. xxiii. 2) ... in Thy mercies.

The Third, 'The Lord bless thee and keep thee... the peace.' (Num. vi. 24).

The Fourth, O Lord God when Thou lookest in Thy great abundant lovingkindness, my Lord, for the sake of the prophet, the righteous, faithful Moses, Thy servant, and the priests, the servants of Thy holy sanctuary, Aaron, Eleazar, Ithamar and Phineas and in memory of the righteous ones, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, for their sakes, 'Pardon, I pray Thee, the iniquity of this people'... all the earth' (Num. xiv. 19-21).

The Fifth, 'On the morrow after the Passover the children of Israel went out ... the Lord did judgements' (Num. xxxiii. 3). 'The Lord God of your fathers, make you a thousand times so many more as you are, and bless you as He hath promised you'. (Deut. i. 11).

What do you require from me, I will accept your command. I will cause you to hear a new speech such as is not found. If this hymn makes you wonder, cry not out, respond and say, 'It is upright doctrine' and take not up against me. Happy is he that remembers his God constantly, doing righteousness, he is righteous and upright, his pride is heavenwards.' Come we will magnify Him, His greatness and His strong hand. But he that prays without it (i.e. remembering God) petitions but does not succeed. When he remembers to purify the heart and finds the burning fire. The tongue shall glorify, the eye shall be opened. Open your eyes and see what is prepared/to be found. Each one shall compose his face from weeping over error. It shall be pleasant for you continually to arise and count the spoil dividing it between the inhabitants of the place.

It is for your good, Oh Israel that you should observe the Feast of Unleavened Bread and say, all of you with one accord, with sincerity, 'Oh assembly of Israel sing'.

Sing to God with exalted voice that delivered His people from Egypt in peace and saved them from the wicked Pharaoh, between Mïq'dol and the sea.

The sea lay waiting for its prey, over Israel He hovered but for Egypt there was plague, there He pursued the arrogant people.

The Egyptians pursued until they came to the sea, but from thence who came forth? Whereas Israel went forth and praised, hearkening to the word of God the Lord.

The congregation of the wicked Pharaoh came into the sea with anger and oppression, but those who came through the sea on dry land were the holy congregation of Moses.

Behold this wonder (distinction) between the two nations that were passing through the sea, one sank whilst the other came up with song. He distinguished between the two peoples of His creation.

The kingdom of Pharaoh ceased and the kingdom of Israel began. The days of favour commenced -

Thou didst behold the merit of the righteous ones.
He saw and chose the right time for His people; the enemy were in great vexation and fell by the sea shore, then sang Moses and Israel.

Sing O Israel (upon) the Feast of Unleavened Bread. Glorify and give thanks to your Lord and say, 'Oh assembly of Israel sing'

Oh exalted people, sing to the God who redeemed your ancestors from Egypt with exaltation. He saved them through the sons of Amram, between Migdol and the sea.

The sea hovered and the (Divine) favour watched over Israel, whilst the Egyptians (suffered) wrath and vexation, there He pursued the arrogant people.

Pharaoh and all his hosts pursued into the sea, but who came out of it? Whereas Moses and his people went forth and rejoiced, hearkening to the words of the Lord

The congregation of the wicked Pharaoh came into the sea with anger and oppression; but those who went through the sea on dry land were the holy congregation of Moses. All the Egyptians were crushed, whereas the people of the Hebrews were shown pity and they passed through the sea. Thus He distinguished between the two peoples of His creation.

The congregation of the Egyptians were oppressed and their kingdom ceased and the kingdom of Israel began.

Exaltations to our Lord sing to Him that is upright who seeth revealed and hidden things and knoweth that which is concealed. The hidden things He bringeth forth to furnish for you the necessities of life.

Whilst we sit at the food pot you should offer a free-will offering from a sincere heart, for by offering the incense of His praise, salvation is hastened by Him that is mighty and powerful. As His words and deed when He remembered and recognised that which had been done to their forefathers, bringing out the prisoner from the furnace through His servant and the son of His house who when He spoke to him hid his face so as not to see the bush, his skin shone and gave light. From the bush he was sent to the adversary, to remove Pharaoh's oppression. He became great, so that 'My (God's) name should be related throughout all the earth' by His deeds with the one we have mentioned.

God of the holy Phinehas of holy lineage (descent) who was drawn near (to the priesthood) in the lifetime of his father and 'wore the sacred garments.' In his zeal he accomplished what God declared when He turned away His wrath and withheld the plague from His people. 'He turned away my wrath, when he was zealous' said the conqueror of all conquerors. 'And it shall be to him and his seed' this treasure will not be captured (?) it will be handed down from one to another, each one of them chosen and acclaimed. Concerning this there arose a tradition commencing and spreading an inheritance that is remembered by him that wears the 'garments'. Our heads are exalted thereby. THE PRAYERS OF THE NIGHT OF THE FEAST OF UNLEAVENED BREAD AT EVENING.

In the Name of the Lord we begin:

The Prayers of the night of the Feast of Unleavened Bread at evening: they begin the prayers, proclaiming and saying, "At the gate of Thy mercies" (C.p. 3) and the sections of the Creation and the KATEF, Sabbath, Unleaven, Harvest, and Sea, and on every book (of the Pentateuch) there are three proclamations, and after the (completion of?) Law is said, "A law" (Deut. xxxiii. 4).

And "Praised be" in solemn chant and, "Blessed is our God" and, "The Lord is God" (C.p. 4) in lyrical chant and, "We will bless" (C.p. 7) and the addendum,

"The Festivals of the Lord" (Lev. xxii. 2) et seq. "The Lord bless thee" (Num. vii. 24) et seq. Blessed be He who said, "Seven Sabbaths" (Lev. xxiii. 15) et seq. "Six days thou shalt eat unleavened bread" et seq. (Deut. xvi. 8).

Then is said "God of Abraham, Thee we will bless" (C.p. 9) and "Then sang" (Ex. xv. 1) and one scroll is brought out and "We will go" (C.p. 49) is said outside the 'circle', and from "We will all take our stand" (C.p. 9) the MANAH and, "Holy One" (C.p. 11) and "O, Great One" (C.p. 84); antiphonally, "For in the Name" (Deut. xxxii. 3) and "Hear, O Israel" (Deut. vi. 4). And they read on the book the section which has been mentioned previously in the KATEF and, "Thou art He that blesseth the world at the gate of Thy mercies" et seq. (C.p.67) and three SEGUDOTH.
The First, "The Festivals of the Lord" (Lev.xxiii.2) et seq., and Blessed be He who said, "Seven Sabbaths" (Lev. xxiii.15) et seq.
The Second, "The Lord bless thee and keep thee" (Num. vi.24) et seq.
The Third, "Six days thou shalt eat unleavened bread" (Deut. xvi.8) et seq.

Then there is said, "The Lord a God, full of compassion and gracious" (Ex.xxxiv.6) and "The Lord receive your prayer" (C.p.276) and "O, assembly" (C.p.162) all of it, and there is said, a poem, composed by our master Abisha, the favour of the Lord be upon him, Amen. The High Priest said it behind the screen.

May you celebrate this day again for a hundred years, 0 congregation of our brethren, who are foragathered here, and those also who have not come unto us. May the Lord renew all our seasons (or, delights?) and restore our souls upon the mount of the Divine Presence, on the morrow before our God. Then the High priest says "Blessed is our God" in mercies" (C.p.3) and "For in the Name" (Deut. xxxii.3) and the sections of the Creation and after it "Praised

May God not suffer Israel's ceremony to lapse,

1. The order of the service of the day of the blessed Feast of Unleavened Bread on Mount Gerizim. All the people together with the elders assemble at the door of the Synagogue, an hour before dawn. They bring forth the books and they stand at the stone. The High Priest begins the service saying, "Praised be", three times and, "For in the Name", (Deut. xxxii.3) at seq.

For our benefit, we will seek Thy kindness. Thy goodness, mercies and kindnesses give fully to us that we may keep Thy charge, Thy statutes, Thy commandments and Thy judgments all the days. Praised be God, there is no God but One. The Lord our God, the Lord is One.

2. And Jacob came to Shalem, a city of Shechem," etc. (Gen. xxxiii.18).

The elders begin the KATEF and there is added in it, Unleavened Bread, Sea, Harvest, and Sabbath, and they say the KATEF from, "And He planted" (Gen. ii.8) till, "And now O, Israel," (Deut. iv.1). When they reach that point they proceed during it, reading section by section till they come to the Olive Tree. "And when thou goes forth to war" (Deut. xxii.10) (the second passage). Stone "and it shall come to pass, if thou shalt hearken diligently," (Deut. (xxviii.1). They sit down there and they read until they reach it. They depart at the beginning of "The Lord shall open", (ib.12) and they proceed to the halting place (known as) "And it shall come to pass when all these things are come" (ib.xxx.1). They stop there until they reach that passage. They proceed until Makkada and they finish the Law. Then is said, "A Law", (Deut. xxxiii.4) et seq., and then "We will bless Him," and "Praised be," in solemn chant, and Durran, "All-powerful, Exalted, hear our voice." (C.p.43) and Marcoh, "God, Most High God" (C.p.25) and, "O, merciful King" (C.p.26). And a 'Gloria'.

Penitence healeth, and the penitent will be favoured in that they observe that which our master Moses revealed to them (in) the chosen of books. Of them are these days upon which we celebrate at this one among the mountains. The goodly ones of the congregation declare sincerely, purifying hearts and thoughts, uttering proclamations and saying, et seq.

1. Montgomery, The Samaritans p. 40, states that on this day they make pilgrimage to Gerizim reading through the book of Deuteronomy on the way and at the village of Makkada, where they finally halt.
Then 'At the gate of Thy mercies' (C.p.3) et seq., and 'For in the Name' (Deut. xxxii.3) et seq., and the sections of the Creation' to a solemn chant. The congregation proceeds to 'Blessed is our God' until the stopping place known as BRIH ELOHENU, then they stop and finish it. Then is said 'Praised be our God, there is no God but One' thrice, and 'For in the Name' (Deut. xxxii.3) and 'For our benefit' et seq., and the short KATEF known to the elders as far as 'In the day when they were created' (Gen.v.2?). Then is said, 'Praised be' to a solemn chant, and 'Blessed is our God'.

C.p.271 line 1,

Then is said 'The Lord is God' to a solemn chant, and they process in it as far as the Fig Grove. They stop there and finish it and begin 'We will bless' (C.p.7) they proceed in this a verse behind and a verse before, the addendum is added in it, as much as is deemed suitable, and they finish it at the door of the chief's house and they greet one another with 'May your days be a hundred years all of you'. They begin 'We stand all of us' (C.p.9). They journey in it as far as the stones (known as) the ABANIM. They take off their shoes and advance to them and prostrate themselves. They kiss the Twelve Stones, and stand to the south of them. They conclude 'We stand, all of us' and say 'Praised be God, there is no God but One' thrice, and 'For in the Name' (Deut. xxxii.3) et seq.,

Most Goodly of the good, accept of our repentance and restore Thy favour nigh unto us.

O Lord our God, for our fathers and Moses our prophet, this day, fulfil for us, 'The Lord bless thee and keep thee'.

The glory of the Lord our God, we will seek (that it) may appear unto us this day, and may His glory fill all the earth.

To the Lord our God we will sing and fall upon our face and pray upon this Feast of Unleavened Bread, may the Lord receive us.

Moses our prophet, the Lord said by his hand unto us, 'Three festivals thou shalt celebrate to me in the year', may the Lord receive us.

We will seek from the Lord that He look down from His holy habitation, from the heavens, and bless us.

Forgive us O Lord as Thou didst say unto Moses, 'I have forgiven, as thy word, but as I live'.

Answer our requests, for Abraham, Isaac and Jacob as Thou didst say, 'For the Lord thy God is a merciful God, He will not forsake thee, neither destroy thee'.

Gr.13, f.17.

And God divided the light from the darkness.

And God called the light Day, and the darkness He called Night. And there was evening and there was morning, one day. And God said, Let there be a firmament in the midst of the waters... And God called the firmament Heaven.

And there was evening and there was morning, a second day. And God said, Let the waters... be gathered.... And God said, Let the earth put forth grass..... And there was evening and there was morning, a third day. And God said, Let these be lights... And God made the two lights... And there was evening and there was morning, a fourth day.

And there was evening and there was morning, a fifth day.
And God said, Let the earth bring forth... And God created additions given here in the text as found in Cr.13. It will be seen that these additions dwell upon the appropriate themes, Sea, Omer, Pentecost, and the associated themes of the Divine glory and the 'clouds of the Lord'. Besides these incidental additions during the KATEF, the following passages are recited in toto in their appropriate places, Lev. xxiii, 15-22; Num. xxviii,16-25; Deut. xii 5-7, 11-14, 17-18. As in all the other services Deut. xvi.1-8 is given in full followed by special headings, Cf. C.p. 273 lines 5-7.

The prayers
Of the feast of unleavened bread on Mount Gerizim.

Cr.13 f.29 adds,

'And in the morning then ye shall see the glory of the Lord' (Ex. xvi.7)

'And, behold, the glory of the Lord appeared in the cloud' (Ex. xvi. 10).

Cr.13, f.29b. adds,

'And the feast of harvest' (Ex.xxxiii.16).

Cr.13, f.30 adds,

'And the glory of the Lord abode upon Mount Sinai and the cloud covered it six days' (Ex. xxiv.16).

'And the appearance of the glory of the Lord was like devouring fire on the top of the mount in the eyes of the children of Israel' (Ib.17).

Cr.13 f. 31b adds,

'And thou shalt observe the feast of weeks, even of the firstfruits of wheat harvest' (Ex. xxxiv.22).

Cr.13 f.33 adds,

'And when ye reap the harvest of your land, thou shalt not wholly reap the corners of thy field, neither shalt thou gather the gleanings of thy harvest' (Lev.xix.9).

Cr.13 f.35 adds,

'And on the day that the tabernacle was reared up the cloud covered the tabernacle, even the tent of the testimony: and at even it was upon the tabernacle as it were the appearance of fire, until morning. So it was alway: the cloud...(Num. ix. 15-16).

Ex. xv. verse 1.

"Then sang Moses and the children of Israel this song unto the Lord, and spake, saying ..."

W. 2-3.

The Lord is my strength and my song, And he is become my salvation. This is my God, and I will praise Him; my father's God and I will exalt Him. The Lord is mighty (S.P.) in war: the Lord is His name.

Blessed be His name.

V. 1 ... I will sing unto the Lord, for He hath triumphed gloriously. The horse and his rider hath He thrown into the sea.

Vv. 2-3 The Lord is my strength - (as ibid) - His name.

V. 3 The Lord is mighty - (as Ibid.) - His name.

V. 6. Thy right hand, O Lord, is glorious in power, Thy right hand, O Lord, dasheth in pieces the enemy.

Vv. 4-5. Pharaoh's chariots and his host hath He cast into the sea: And his chosen captains are sunk in the Red Sea. The deeps cover them: They went down into the depths like a stone.

1. Here follows an antiphonal reading of the Song of Moses. (Ex.xv) the translation is from Cr.13, f. 43b, the same is found in BM(G)837, but it is not given in BM(G)855.
V.6. Thy right hand, O Lord — (as ibid) — the enemy.

V.11. Who is like unto Thee, O Lord, among the gods? Who is like Thee, glorious in holiness, Fearful in praises, doing wonders?

V.7. And in the greatness of Thine excellency Thou overthowest them that rise up against Thee: Thou sendest forth Thy wrath, it consumeth them as stubble.

V.11. Who is like unto Thee — (as ibid.) — doing wonders?

V.6. And with the blast of Thy nostrils the waters were piled up. The floods stood upright as an heap; the deeps were congealed in the heart of the sea.

V.11. Who is like unto Thee etc. (as ibid).

VV.9-10. The enemy said, I will pursue, I will overtake, I will divide the spoil; My lust shall be satisfied upon them; I will draw my sword, my hand shall destroy them. Thou didst blow with Thy wind, the sea covered them: They sank as lead in the mighty waters.

V.11. Who is like unto Thee etc. (as ibid.)

V.16. ...By the greatness of Thine arm they are still as a stone; Till Thy people pass over, O Lord, Till the people pass over which Thou hast purchased.

VV.12-14 Thou stretchedest out Thy right hand, the earth swallowed them. Thou in Thy mercy hast led the people which Thou hast redeemed.
THE PRAYERS
OF THE FEAST OF UNLEAVENED BREAD ON MOUNT GERIZIM.

Thou hast guided them in Thy strength to Thy holy habitation.

The peoples have heared, they trembled. Pangs have taken hold on the inhabitants of Philistia.

V.16  ... By the greatness, etc. (as ibid).

V.15-16 Then were the dukes of Edom amazed; The mighty men of Moab, trembling taketh hold upon them:
All the inhabitants of Canaan are melted away.
Terror and dread falleth upon them....

V.16  .... By the greatness etc. (as ibid).

VV.17-18  ...O Lord which Thy hands have established the Lord shall reign for ever and ever.

V.17. Thou shalt bring them in, and plant them in the mountain of Thine inheritance, the place, O Lord, which Thou hast made for Thee to dwell in, The sanctuary...

V.17-18  ...O Lord which Thy hands etc. (as ibid).

V.21.  ...Sing ye to the Lord, for He hath triumphed gloriously; The horse and his rider hath He thrown into the sea.

V.20-21. And Miriam the prophetess, the sister of Aaron, took a timbrel in her hand; and all the women out after her with timbrels and with dances. And Miriam answered them.....

V.21.  ...Sing ye to the Lord, etc. (as ibid).
Then is said, 'Thou art He who created the world —

The gateway of Thy mercies' (C.p. 27-8) and three

The First, 'And Abraham called the name' etc., (Gen. xxii.14).

The Second, 'The set feasts of the Lord, et seq.,
Blessed be He who said 'Seven sabbaths' et seq. (Lev. xxiii 2 and 15?).

The Third Six days shalt thou eat unleavened bread (Deut. xvi.8). Then is said 'The Lord, a God full of compassion and gracious' (Ex.xxxiv.6) and 'The Lord accept your prayers' (C.p. 276) according to the usual order, and they say after them', 'May it be (celebrated) for a hundred years in the days of all of you', 'May He receive (the celebration) of it for a hundred years' (C.p.156).
Then the high priest begins 'Then sang' (Ex. xv) to the tune of 'God is great' (C.p.40). then they proceed in it until the Altar of Seth. They approach the altar at 'Till Thy people pass over' (Ex.xv,16) and when it is finished they halt there and all say, 'Praised be God, there is no God but One', thrice, and 'For in the Name'

and 'For our benefit' (C.p. 270) et seq. and there is said, 'Praised be God, there is no God but One, the Lord our God the Lord is One'.

Then is said, the KATEF of the Meritorious Ones\(^1\) with (as) an antiphonal chant on each section, 'The Lord, a God full of compassion and gracious' (Ex. xxxiv.6) Oh their God, et seq., and the last is said to a solemn chant. Then is said, 'This is the great scripture' (C.p.51)

Then they say antiphonally, 'Turn from Thy fierce wrath' (Ex. xxxii.12) and 'For in the Name' (Deut. xxxii.3) and 'Hear O Israel' (Deut. vi.4) and afterwards all of them say with sincere heart, 'God will see, the Lord will see, as it is said to this day, In the mount of the Lord it shall be provided'.

Five times there is said, 'Praised be our God, the Lord, a God full of compassion and gracious, slow to anger, and plenteous in mercy and truth' (Ex.xxxiv.6).

And they say to one another 'May He receive (the celebration) of it for a hundred years' (C.p.156). Then the high priest begins 'God is great' and it is the one by the sheikh, Abu‘l-ḥasan es-Sūrī, may God be pleased with him. Amen. They proceed during it to the Altar of Isaac. 'God is great and there is none like Him' etc., (C.p.70).

Then is said over the Altar of Isaac, 'For in the Name' (Deut. xxxii.4) and 'For our benefit' (C.p.270).

\(^1\) As in Passover Evening Service!C.p.157 line 23, translation p2
And it came to pass after these things, that God did prove Abraham, and said unto him, Abraham, and he said, Here am I. And he said, Take now thy son, thine only son, whom thou lovest, even Isaac, and get thee into the land of Moriah and offer him there for a burnt offering upon one of the mountains which I will tell thee of.
And Abraham rose early in the morning... and rose up, and went unto the place of which God had told him. On the third day Abraham lifted up his eyes and saw the place afar off ... and we will worship and come again to you... and Isaac spake unto Abraham his father, and said, My father, and he said, Here am I, my son And he said, Behold, the fire and the wood but where is the lamb for a burnt offering? And Abraham said, God will provide himself the lamb for a burnt offering, my son: so they went both of them together. And they came to the place ... and Abraham built the altar there, and laid the wood in order, and bound Isaac his son, and laid him on the altar, upon the wood... And the angel of the Lord called unto him out of heaven, and said, Abraham, Abraham..... And Abraham lifted up his eyes....and took the ram, and offered him up for a burnt offering in the stead of his son. And Abraham called the name of that place Jehovah-jireh: as it is said to this day. In the mount of the Lord it shall be Praised be' and after it is said 'Hearer' and 'Declare ye' (C.p.72) and after them,

'praised be our God, the Lord, a God full of compassion and gracious, slow to anger and plenteous in mercy and truth' (Ex.xxxiv.6).

And after it, they enter and visit the altar and they ascend and stand facing the altar of Noah and they begin 'Blessed is' the first of it is said, (i.e.) three sections to the tune of a solemn chant, known amongst the elders:—

Blessed is the house of Jacob, the store out of which there came,

Six hundred thousand, that were descended from seventy souls.

Who can assess their greatness or estimate their glory.
They hasten to the altar with (the words)\(^1\) 'Sheaves of the field' and they finish it at a slow pace with three proclamations. Then is said, 'Praised be' to a solemn chant, 'For in the Name' (Deut. xxxii 4) et seq. and 'For our benefit' (C.p.270) et seq. and afterwards the elders recite the KATEF of the Place, which is the KATEF of Noah.

Cr.13 f.51 b.

2. But Noah found grace in the eyes of the Lord. These are the generations of Noah. Noah was a righteous man, and perfect in his generations: Noah walked with God (Gen. vi. 8,9.) Thus did Noah; according to all that God commanded him, so did he (Ib.22) And Noah did according to all that the Lord commanded him. (Gen. vii.5) And Noah only was left, and they that were with him in the ark. (Ib.23). And God remembered Noah (Gen.viii.1.) And Noah went forth... after their families, went forth from the ark (Ib.18). And Noah built an altar to the Lord; and took of every clean beast, and of every clean fowl, and offered burnt offerings on the altar. And the Lord smelled the sweet savour (Ib. 20.21).

'There is none like unto God, O Jeshurun' (Deut. xxxiii.26) 'Praised be' to a solemn chant. 'The Eternal, at the beginning and at the end, blessed is our God' (C.p.4) its beginning is to a solemn chant and its end to a lively tune And 'Praised be' to a solemn chant and after it they visit the altar and congratulate one another.

C.p.275 line 1,

The priest says to them, 'May He receive (the celebration) of it for a hundred years, in the days of all of you', the response is, 'May He receive (the celebration) of it for a hundred years, in your days' (C.p.156).

The priest then begins 'He who feeds', it is said as they approach the top of the 'everlasting hill', composed by Marqah, upon him be God's favour. Amen.

1On the Feast of Unleavened Bread.

Proclaim unto God, most exalted, who chose His people Israel from all the peoples of the world and sent unto them Moses, chosen of every soul and delivered His people from Egypt, in ease and peace, with great wonders such like have never been seen. They ended with the death of the firstborn of Israel whilst the firstborn were at peace. They passed through the sea on this day and went out of it in peace. All of them sang, after the prophet Moses, unto the Lord, men and women praised with exalted voice, 'The Lord is my strength and my song, who is like unto thee amongst the mighty, O Lord'. Thus may it be done for you unto your enemies and may you be released of all oppression. And may the festival be made blessed and a blessing upon you, O assemblies of the Lord. Thus may He preserve your lives, all of you elders and maidens (?) and may He fulfil for you His word in His exalted book. 'Six days shalt thou eat unleavened bread and on the seventh day is a celebration to the Lord'. And for a hundred years with rejoicing and glory may you make the Feasts of the Lord.

CONCLUSION: All who are here, give thanks and praise to the Maker of creatures, the world and all that is therein. May you celebrate this day again to its length and breadth. Praised be God.

God has blessed thee (Ib. xvi.15) according to the blessing of the Lord thy God (Deut. xvi.10). To stand before the Lord thy God, to minister to Him and bless His name. For in them the Lord thy God chose to minister and to bless the name of the Lord (Cf. Deut. xviii.5).
But the Lord thy God turned the curse into a blessing unto thee, (Deut. xxiii.5). That the Lord thy God may bless thee in all that thou puttest thine hand unto (Ib.20).
And bless thee and it shall be righteousness unto thee before the Lord thy God. (Deut. xxiv.13) Look down from thy holy habitation, from heaven, and bless thy people Israel, (Deut. xxvi.15). These shall stand upon Mount Gerizim to bless the people (Deut. xxvii.12) And all these blessings shall come upon thee and overtake thee...Blessed shalt thou be in the city, and blessed shalt thou be in the field. Blessed shall be the fruit of thy body and the fruit of thy ground...Blessed shall be thy basket and thy kneading trough. Blessed shalt thou be when thou comest in and blessed shalt thou be when thou goest out (Deut. xxviii. 2-6). The Lord shall command the blessing upon thee in thy barns, and in all that thou puttest thine hand unto; and He shall bless thee in the land (Ib.8) The Lord shall open unto thee His good treasure the heaven to give the rain of thy land in its season, and to bless all the work of thine hand. (Ib.12). And it shall come to pass, when all these things are come upon thee, the blessing (Deut. xxx.1).

thy God may bless thee (Ib.16). I have set before thee

... the blessing (Ib.19). And this is the blessing, wherewith Moses the man of God blessed (Deut. xxxiii.1). Bless, Lord his substance, And accept the work of his hands: (Ib 11). And of Gad he said, Blessed be...(Ib.20).
The blessing of the Lord: Possess thou the west and the south (Ib.23) And of Asher he said, Blessed be Asher with children (Ib.24) And there hath not arisen a prophet since in Israel like unto Moses (Deut. xxxiv.10).

all of it

And after it there is said ' A law' (Deut. xxxiii.4) and 'Praised be' to a solemn chant 'Thou art Creator of the World' (C.p. 67) all of it, and three SEGUDOTH.
The First, 'And Abraham called the name of the place' et seq. (Gen. xxii.14).
The Second 'The set feasts' et seq. 'Blessed be He who said, 'Seven Sabbaths' et seq., (Lev. xxiii.2 and 15?)
'The Lord bless thee'et seq. (Num. vi.24)
The Third, 'Six days shalt thou eat unleavened bread' (Deut. xvi.8) et seq., 'The Lord shall open unto thee' (Deut. xxviii.12) et seq.

C.p.276 line 1

Then is said, 'The Lord, a God full of compassion and gracious' (Ex.xxxiv.6) to a solemn chant, and after it the priest says, 'May our Lord receive your prayer, the big (form of it).

May the Lord accept your prayers and answer your requests and hear the sounds of your cries and may you all celebrate this day again. May He not diminish your blessing and may He be entreated by your requests. May He favour your words and speech and perform these requests, bringing the day for which you are praying. The God of Plaints and beseechings are answered by the hand of gods, greatest of all great and owner of the world. 'Remember the covenant' ascends from holy hearts and pure mouths to the exalted habitations; from the gates of the firmament passing through the hosts (lit. heaps) of angels standing before the throne of His presence. Mercy, kindness and prosperity are abundantly given to you from there, to you and all your assembly wherever they are. May our God make this festival - which is the feast of the celebration of Unleavened Bread and is the end of the seven days of the Feast of Unleavened Bread, and is the first week of the 'seven sabbaths' and it is thus or thus - of the fifty days which the Lord our God commanded us - when we count them will be this festival (Pentecost) -, may the Lord make it blessed and a blessing upon you and upon all your assembly and may your festivals be blessed of God. Praised be God et seq.

OF THE FEAST OF UNLEAVENED BREAD ON MOUNT GERIZIM,

And afterwards 'Welcome' and it is this, by our Lord Pinhas, God show him favour.

Welcome O festival, (which is) not the beginning of the festival of the harvest. A remembrance which endureth for ever, the end of the fifty days. May you celebrate the day again, from God, to you this congregation; may you make it every year in full.
'Thou shalt observe and do these statutes' (Deut. xvi.12).

And they chant, 'And thou shalt remember that thou wast a bondman in the land of Egypt' et seq.(ib.)
and three proclamations, and God knows best: And if there are pilgrims present, there is said 'From the name' (Deut. xxxii.14), 'And he reared up the courtyard round about' (Ex.xl.33) all of it, and 'Hearers' and 'Declare ye' (C.p.72) and all the congregation go round the hill top and they congratulate one another.

May God not cut off the customary (festive) prayers from Israel.

PRAYERS FOR THE FEAST OF UNLEAVENED BREAD.

1 A Kime and an introductory piece, the introductory piece is used on the day of the Feast of Unleavened Bread if the ascent of Mount Gerizim Beth-El does not take place, and it is composed by their scribe, Solomon the priest, the Levite, in Shechem.

As the days of the heavens upon the earth, mayest Thou be blessed and exalted; every time and hour, and every night and day, mayest Thou be praised and lauded with praises and exaltation, God of the heavens and the earth, living continually for ever.

Again like the days of fathers and sons we will bow down upon our faces, upon the earth and turn to the Lord our God, upon the holiest of habitations the place of our worship and we will make supplication for our (lit. the) numbers and the acceptance of our words.

1. BM(G)855 has the heading, followed by a rubric giving directions for the usual introductory prayers 'For in the Name' sections of the creation, the KATEF of Genesis, scripture portion Ex.xii. followed by two hymns 'God most high God'(C.p.250r 52) and 'Oh merciful King' afterwards is a 'Gloria'.

All the days of generations and their successors continual in greatness, He endureth in superiority over the order of creatures. It is fitting for us (to praise Thee) O chosen One, for Thou didst make (us) a gift, which is put in the Law, the holiest teaching.

Again we will return (repeat?) and praise Thee with sincere hearts, and we will stand before Thy greatness with pure souls. We will seek that which He singled out for you of precious blessings, that which He promised you in the Law with mighty words.

For Thou art our God, we will exalt Thee continually. All the days of our lives we will stand before Thee and spread forth our two hands and say in the greatness of Thy Name, Remove all oppression from us and save us from Thy vengeance.

Thou art the God of our fathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, O whom Thou didst love, O Unique One, O Giver, and Thou didst establish for them the covenant. O Near One, O secure One; for their sakes pity the piteous ones and make Thy favour near.

All the days continually, we will magnify Thy name mightily. We will exalt Thee and testify that there is no second to Thee in earth and in heaven. For Thou art One alone and nothing is superior to Thee. I AM THAT I AM, look down from Thy holy habitation from the heavens.

Another conclusion.
PRAYERS FOR THE FEAST OF UNLEAVENED BREAD.

God of Abraham, the son of Terah, who came to the plain of Moreh, and the fearful God said unto him, 'I am Almighty God', flee from wrongdoing, walk before me and be perfect'.

God of Isaac, the sincere one, who was bound upon the altar in the place upon the holiest of all hills, the mount of the Divine presence and the habitation of the angels. His merit He did magnify and from him arose two peoples.

God of him that was clothed in merit and dreamt dreams and saw a ladder upon the holiest of hills, that is Jacob, Israel. God sent him his angel to Penuel from the heavenly habitation.

God of him who ran from adultery and released his garment gripped in her hand. He cleaved to God and was distant from all evil, that is the righteous Joseph, the interpreter of dreams.

God of the prophet of all the world, the prophet who is everlastingly great. The whole world bears witness to him, for he is Moses the saviour, who saved Israel from the hand of the harsh Pharaoh, with exalted signs.

God of Aaron the priest who was anointed with oil and wore the Ephod and breastplate with the holy garments. He expressed the blessings and wore the mitre, the Urim and the Thumim.

God of him whose Lord sought him (and) apportioned him for the High Priesthood and clothed him with the special garments, that is Eleazar, the faithful, who served in the sanctuary, the holiest of habitations and was a 'perfect man'.

God of Ithamar, the officer who wore ministering garments, who was appointed over the ark of the testimony and ministered in the Temple. He was sanctified in the priesthood, and sounded (?) the horns, and stood at the altar.

God of him that was zealous for God and the light crowned his face. He took a spear, cleaving (trusting?) in God, and pierced the adulterers restraining the plague from upon his people. He made with him a covenant of priesthood established for ever and ever.

For these, Oh assembly, may He guard you and bless you with a blessing. With His covenant may He glorify you and restore you to favour. May He remove all your adversaries and bring nigh those that love you and may you complete a hundred years.

May He fulfil His word unto you and that which He said in His book, according to the holy one who explained it, 'Israel's seed will be great'. May He make you secure from that which you fear. 'May the Lord open to thee His goodly store, the heavens'.

AMEN, I AM THAT I AM.

They stood both of them joyfully whilst Moses told Aaron his brother, the words of the Lord who had sent him, and both went and came —

When they saw and heard, they believed and rejoiced and praised their Lord who had visited them with His salvation.

When Pharaoh heard these words, he said to Moses, and Aaron, 'Who is the Lord that I should hearken to his word,

To send this people, from serving me here, I know not who is this king. I have never seen his countenance.

They said unto him, 'He hath no body or form, for He is the king who created all things; the heavens and the earth are the throne of his kingdom'.

Pharaoh answered them, to this, 'Go unto your burdens, why do you two part the people from its work?'

And this wicked one strengthened himself and said this thing, how clever was that which was secretly destined to smite him.

The signs of our Lord began and became rooted in Egypt; they prevailed over Pharaoh and his limbs trembled from them.

And when each one of them (i.e. the plagues) was, his soul was confounded and he sought from Moses release if he could attain it with his prayer.

And they would say unto him, 'By your life, pray to your Lord because of this wonder for my heart is fallen at the sight of it'.

Moses heard his words, and prayed for him, and delivered him from his oppression and relieved his distress. And when he was delivered he strengthened himself and returned to his evil, and thought himself wise until the destroyer passed through into his house.

And to the house of his servants, that was sent upon them in the midst of the night. There was amongst them a great outcry, for all their firstborn died.

But Israel were in their places eating their sacrifices and giving thanks to their God for His abundant goodness.

See, O my friends, the distinction between the Hebrew and the Egyptian, the one dwelt in favour whilst the other (suffered) oppression and suffering.

This people were rejoicing and slaughtering sacrifices eating to the fill, each one according to his desire. Whilst the other people were plagued and the clouds of wrath hovered over them. Their hearts burned and they drank the cup of bitterness.

Israel went forth from Egypt, banners and hosts.
Lights of favour hovered over them supported with kindness and pity.

They passed through the Red Sea, singing to the Lord because of the signs they were shown by His messenger.

Moses answered his word, 'Oh foolish one, Oh Pharaoh, see your magicians and what they said, and be convinced who is true'.

The speech between them was prolonged; I am unable to relate it (lit. interpret). All this was from our Lord your God and for the sake of him whose prayer He heard. I seek from my Lord and open my eye towards the 'holy habitation' that He should, Amen, drive out the enemy and fulfil His covenant for you.

In His might, may He hear your cries and heal your wounds; increase your seed and kine and sever not the covenant with you.

May the blessing be accepted in the remembrance of our God. 'The Lord bless thee and keep thee' and remove from you all shame. I AM THAT I AM, look down upon you from His habitation. May the Lord open unto you His storehouse, and restore His favour unto you. May thine enemies show obedience to you and may He hate those that hate us. May you see the sanctuary standing upon our holy mountain, (on) the day that the enemy will be subdued before us. May the days of 'disfavour' speedily be removed from us and May He fulfil for you that which He said in our holy scripture and so may He preserve all your lives every father among you and his son. May He forgive the hundreds of the Rabbanim and the hundreds of the priests and the hundreds of the assembly of Israel, who worship at our holy mountain. And at this conclusion we will say, saying with our lips, 'Blessed art Thou in Thy kindness, in Thy mercy answer our requests. Blessed is Thy name in our mouths and in the mouths of all our assembly. C.p.282 line 1,

The place that hath no likeness, which is the holiest of places, has thirteen names, founded in truth (based upon truth?).

One is the 'ancient mountain' for the 'ancient God' chose it in ancient times with seven witnesses.

The second is known as 'Beth-El', for its holiness is exalted and the meritorious of the world come to it.

The third is, 'House of God', for the angels of God rest upon it at all times and upon it go up and down.

The fourth is, 'Gate of heaven' for it is the storehouse of mercy; the burnt offerings and peace offerings were made upon it.

The fifth name is 'Luzah' for its lights are there and all who see it find its lights burning.

The sixth is, 'Mount of Inheritance', and it is called House of God, (the) holy, chosen, mountain, in which are put the secrets.

The seventh name is, 'Holy Place' for it is sanctified above (all) the mountains far from creation it was sanctified and Israel testify to its holiness.

The eighth is 'Mount Gerizim' for upon it blessings are proclaimed which have in them secrets, with the honoured names (i.e. of God?).

The ninth is 'The goodly mount' in it the assembly find all good, as in the Torah is written before you, it will be revealed to those who worship upon it.

The tenth is 'The chosen one' for God chose and proclaimed its name the gate for mercies and kindnesses.

The eleventh, 'One of the mountains' to which both of them went; one the father of the mighty and the other the child.

The twelfth, 'Everlasting hill' for it is holy and exalted above the mountains and also its sanctity is great.

The thirteenth is, 'The Lord will be seen', God appeared on it to him that fed the ringstraked sheep.
PRAYERS FOR THE FEAST OF UNLEAVENED BREAD.

We will beseech our Lord and Master to return us the days of our fathers and reveal His sanctuary to us upon the chosen of worshipping place.

May He restore unto us the blessing with which the priest did bless, in which he did refer to the most honoured Name.

Three times in the year, blessings are pronounce upon it from the mouth of the ARCHON¹ of the priestly house whose hand Thou didst consecrate.

My Lord, restore Thy favour and reveal to us Thy sanctuary (as) in Thy holy teaching, O Doer of deeds.

Show us pity and make a deliverance for us in accordance with the holy Law and the chosen of persons.

May you celebrate this day again, Oh people that are gathered together, fathers and sons who prostrate themselves in this place.

Some lines for the week of the Feast of Unleavened Bread, composed by the honoured and stately elder, the priest, Amram, may God cause him to continue etc.

For a hundred years may you make it and be in rejoicing in the days of our Lord, the servant of the Compassionate One (?) the greatest of your princes, the Lord preserve his life, grant him endurance and grant him continual kindness, glory and rejoicing. May He preserve his life and the life of his sons and increase his good things. So may He preserve all your lives elders and young ones. May He increase your number and may the earth be full of you. May He destroy the congregation of your enemies and may the Lord root them out. It is fitting for you, O assembly, Oh you that are here (to) be sincere before God and 'circumcise the fountain of your hearts' and say, 'Lord God Oh, Master of existence, receive our prayers and requests and grant us mercy. 0 Lord in Thy abundant mercy Thy assembly seek (that) you should bless them. Ls.6 f. 167b.

IN THE NAME OF THE GREAT LORD.

The prayers of the night of the first (day of the week), the termination of the aforementioned Sabbath. They begin the prayers, proclaiming and saying and, 'For in the Name' (Deut. xxxii.3) and the Sections of the Creation, and the KATEF, Unleavened Bread, Sea, and Harvest.

And this is it,

"And out of the ground made the Lord God to grow etc.

(Ex. ii. 9).

Ls.6 f. 167b, line 22 omits,

"And it came to pass in the six hundredth and first year, in the first month' (Ex. viii. 3)

Ls.6 f. 167b line 27, adds,

"And all the fishes of the sea' (Ex. ix. 2).

Ls.6 f. 168 line 18 adds,

"And he made them a feast, and did bake unleavened bread".

(Ex. xix. 3).

1. Here begins a complete Pentateuch KATEF, in one continuous sequence, comparable to the KATEF of Passover Evening Service II, L.6 f. 12, cf. C.p.159 line 5.
Variations from that KATEF are listed here. Similarly BM(G)843 f. 178b.
"How dreadful is this place, this is none other but the house of God, and this is the gate of heaven (Gen. xxviii.17). But the name of the city was Luz at first (ib.19). And Jacob vowed a vow, saying, If God will be with me (ib.20). And of all that thou shalt give me I will surely give the tenth unto thee. (ib.22). I am the God of Beth-El (ib. xxxii.8(9)) And Jacob said, O God of my father Abraham, and God of my father Isaac, O Lord which saidst unto me, Return unto thy country, and to thy kindred, and I will do thee good (ib.9(10)).

"And Reuben went in the days of wheat harvest". (Gen. xxxii.14).

"And make thy seed as the sand of the sea". (Ib.xxxii.12).

"And he commanded the foremost" (Ib.17). And their children foremost (Ib.xxxiii.2). Saying, this came out first (ib.xxxviii.28). After the former manner (ib.xl.13).

"And Joseph laid up corn as the sand of the sea", (Ib. xli. 49).
And God remembered His covenant with Abraham, with Isaac, and with Jacob (Ex. xi. 24). Moreover He said, I am the God of thy father, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac and the God of Jacob (Ex. xiii. 6). O their God and their Lord et seq. "The Lord God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac and the God of Jacob (ib. 15). The Lord, the God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, of Isaac, and of Jacob, hath appeared unto me (ib. 16) That they may believe that the Lord the God of their fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac and the God of Jacob, hath appeared unto thee: (ib. vii. 2-5). O their God, et seq. Blessed be He who said, "I am JEHOVAH: and I appeared unto Abraham, unto Isaac and unto Jacob, as God Almighty (ib. vi. 2) And I will bring you in unto the land, concerning which I lifted up my hand to give it to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob (ib. 8). And Eleazar, Aaron's son took him one of the daughters of Putiel to wife; and she bare him Phinehas; these are the heads of the fathers' houses of the Levites according to their families. These are that Aaron and Moses (ib. 25-26) Peace be upon them etc. "The Lord is righteous (Ex. ix. 27).
And that thou mayest tell in the ears of thy son, and of thy son's son, .... that ye may know that I am the Lord your God (Ex.x.2) And the Lord turned an exceeding strong west wind, which took up the locusts and drove them into the Red Sea: (ib.19) And unleavened bread; with bitter herbs they shall eat it (ib. xii.8) And against all the gods of Egypt I will execute judgements. I am the Lord, (ib.12)" Blessed be He who said, "And when I will see the blood, I will pass over you, and there shall no plague be upon you (Ex.xii.13). A feast by an ordinance for ever (ib.14) Seven days shall ye eat ... (ib.15) At even ye shall eat unleavened bread (ib.18). Ye shall eat nothing leavened; in all your habitations shall ye eat unleavened bread. (ib.20). The Lord will pass over the door, and will not suffer the destroyer to come in unto your houses to smite you. And ye shall observe this thing - in this month - (ib. 23-24). Unleavened cakes (ib.39). This day ye go forth in the month Abib (ib. xiii.4) Thou shalt keep this service in this month (ib.5). Six days thou shalt eat unleavened bread, and in the seventh shall be a feast to the Lord. Unleavened bread shall be eaten (ib.6-7). Thou shalt keep this ordinance in its season from year to year (ib.10). But the Lord led the people about, by the way of the wilderness by the Red Sea: (ib.18) Between Migdol and the sea ... over against it ye shall encamp by the sea (ib.xiv.2) And overtook them encamping by the sea (ib.9).
The Lord shall fight for you, and ye shall hold your peace

Ls.6.f.169b.

and the children of Israel shall go into the midst of the sea (ib.16) And Moses stretched out his hand over the sea; and the Lord caused the sea ... and made the sea (ib.21) So that the Egyptians said, Let us flee from the face of Israel; for the Lord fighteth for them against the Egyptians. And the Lord said unto Moses, stretch out thine hand over the sea, that the waters may come again upon the Egyptians upon their chariots and upon their horsemen. And Moses stretched forth his hand over the sea, and the sea returned to its strength when the morning appeared; and the Egyptians fled against it, and the Lord overthrew the Egyptians in the midst of the sea. And the waters returned, and covered the chariots, and the horsemen, even all the host of Pharaoh that went in after them into the sea: there remained not so much as one of them. But the children of Israel walked upon dry land in the midst of the sea, and the waters were a wall unto them on their right hand, and on their left. Thus the Lord saved Israel that day out of the hand of the Egyptians; and Israel saw the great work which the Lord did upon the Egyptians, and the people feared the Lord, and they believed in the Lord, and in His servant Moses (ib.25 -31). For He hath triumphed gloriously
The horse and his rider hath He thrown into the sea. My strength and song, and He is become my salvation. This is my God and I will praise Him; my father's God and I will exalt Him. The Lord is mighty in war: the Lord is His name — Blesseed be His Name — Pharaoh's chariots and his host hath He cast into the sea: And His chosen captains are sunk in the Red Sea. (Ex.xv.1-4) The deeps were congealed in the heart of the sea. (ib.8). The sea covered them: They sank as lead in the mighty waters. Who is like unto Thee, O Lord, among the gods? Who is like Thee glorious in holiness, Fearful in praises, doing wonders? (ib.10-11). For the horses of Pharaoh went in with his chariots and with his horsemen into the sea, and, the Lord brought again the waters of the sea upon them; but the children of Israel walked on dry land in the midst of of the sea (ib.19). Sing ye to the Lord, for He hath triumphed gloriously; the horse and his rider hath He thrown into the sea (ib.21). 1

Ls.6 f. 170 line 1 adds,

"The Feast of unleavened bread shalt thou keep: seven days thou shalt eat unleavened bread" (Ex.xxiii.15)

Ls.6. f. 170 line 2 adds,

"And the Feast of Harvest" (Ib.16).

Ls.6 f. 170 line 5 adds,

"And I will set thy border from the Red Sea even unto the sea of the Philistines" (Ib.31).

1. From here onwards coincides with the Passover Evening KATEF L.6.f.19b.ff apart from variants noted.
"For I will deliver the inhabitants of the land into your hand" (Ib.31). And He said unto Moses, Come up unto the Lord, thou, and Aaron, Nadab, and Abihu, Eleazar and Ithamar, Aaron's sons (Ib. xxviii). And the stones shall be according to the names of the children of Israel (ib.21). And Aaron shall bear the names of the children of Israel (ib.29). And Aaron shall bear the judgement of the children of Israel (ib.30).

"And unleavened bread, and cakes unleavened ... and wafres unleavened" (Ex.xxix.2). "Out of the basket of unleavened bread" (ib.23).

"Hew thee two tablets (Ex.xxxiv.1). And Moses hewed two tables of stone like unto the first (ib.4).

"The feast of unleavened bread shalt thou keep, seven days thou shalt eat unleavened bread ... at the time appointed in the month Abib (Ex.xxxiv.18) And thou shalt observe the feast of weeks even of the first fruits of wheat harvest (ib.22).

"On the day of the first month" (Ex.xl.2). "And it came to pass in the first month" (ib.17).
"And when thou offerest an oblation of a meal offering baked in the oven, it shall be unleavened cakes of fine flour - or unleavened wafers (Lev. ii. 4) It shall be unleavened (ib. 5) And if thou offer a meal offering of first fruits unto the Lord (ib. 14) It shall be eaten without leaven (ib. vi. 16) Then he shall offer with the sacrifice of thanksgiving unleavened cakes .. and unleavened wafers (ib. vii. 12) And the basket of unleavened bread (ib. viii. 2) And out of the basket of unleavened bread (ib. 25).

"The first bullock (Lev. iv. 21). And he shall offer that which is for the sin offering first (ib. v. 8) And slew it, and offered it for sin, as the first (ib. ix. 15).

"And eat it without leaven" (ib. x. 12).

"And when ye reap the harvest of your land, thou shalt not wholly reap the corners of thy field, neither shalt thou gather the gleanings of thy harvest: (Lev. xix. 9).

"Just balances, just weights, a just ephah, and a just hin, shall ye have: I am the Lord your God. And ye shall observe all my statutes (Lev. xix. 36-37). Speak unto the priests the sons of Aaron (ib. xxi. 1). And he that is the high priest among his brethren (ib.xxi.10)
Neither shall he go out of the sanctuary (ib.12) And he shall not profane his seed among his people: for I am the Lord which sanctify him (ib.15).

Ls.6.f.170b line 13 adds,

"And on the fifteenth day of the same month is the feast of unleavened bread unto the Lord: seven days ye shall eat unleavened bread. (Lev. xxiii.6) And shall reap the harvest thereof, then ye shall bring the sheaf of the first fruits of your harvest unto the priest (ib.10). Neither bread, nor parched corn, nor fresh ears (ib.14) And ye shall count unto you from the morrow after the sabbath ... shall ye number fifty days; and ye shall offer a new meal offering unto the Lord (ib.15,16) And when ye reap the harvest of your land, thou shalt not wholly reap the corners of thy field, neither shalt thou gather the gleaning of thy harvest: thou shalt leave them for the poor, and for the stranger. I am the Lord your God." (ib.22).

Ls.6.f.170b line 13 ff omits,

"In the first month (ib.5) In the first day (ib.7) On the first day (ib.39) On the first day (ib.40).

Ls.6.f.171 line 1 omits,

"These shall set forth first (Num.ii.9) And Eleazar and Ithamar ministered in the priests office (ib.iii.4)

Ls.6.ibid adds,

"A basket of unleavened bread, cakes of fine flour mingled with oil and unleavened wafers (Lev. vi.15) With the basket of unleavened bread (ib.17) One unleavened cake ..., and one unleavened wafer (ib.19).

Ls.6 f. 171 line 7 omits,
"And he that offered his oblation the first day (Num. vii.12) In the first month (ib.ix.1) And they kept the Passover in the first month (ib.5) And ye shall be remembered before the Lord your God, and ye shall be saved from your enemies Also in the day of your gladness and in your set feasts... and they shall be to you for a memorial before the Lord your God, I am the Lord your God (ib.x.9-10).

Ls.6.f.171 line 13 adds,
"Or shall all the fish of the sea"(Num. xi.22) And brought quails from the sea (ib.31).

Ls.6.f.171 line 18 omits,
"In the first month" (ib.xx.1);

Ls.6. f. 171 line 23 omits,
"And in the first month" (ib. xxviii.16) In the first day (ib.18).

Ls.6. ibid adds,
"And on the fifteenth day of this month shall be a feast: seven days shall unleavened bread be eaten (Num. xxviii.17). In your feast of weeks, ye shall have an holy convocation (ib.26).

Ls.6.f.171 line 28 omits,
"And they journeyed from Rameses in the first month, etc. (Num. xxxiii.304)
Ls. 6. ibid adds,
"And passed through the midst of the sea into the wilderness" (Num. xxxiii.8) And the goings out thereof shall be at the sea. And for the western border, the sea.. from the sea.. the sea of Chinnereth (ib. xxxiv.5-11).

Ls. 6 f.171 b line 3 adds,
"By the sea shore" (Deut. i.7).

Ls. 6 f.171b line 6 adds,
"But as for you, turn you, and take your journey into the wilderness by the way of the Red Sea" (Deut. i.40). Then we turned, and took our journey into the wilderness by the way to the Red Sea, (ib.ii.1) Even unto the sea of the Arabah, the salt sea, (ib.iii.17).

Ls. 6 f.171b line 12 omits,
"For ask now of the days that are passed" (lit. first days) (ib.iv.32).

Ls. 6 f.171b line 16 adds,
"Even unto the sea of the Arabah, the salt sea" (cf. ib. quote Deut. iii.17).

Ls. 6 f.172 line 13 omits,
"Hew thee two tables of stone like unto the first...
That were in the first tables. And I hewed two tables of stone like unto the first ... And he wrote on the tables according to the first writing (Deut. x. 1-4) And I stayed in the mount as at the first time (ib.10).
"Even unto the hinder sea" (Deut. xi.24).

"That the Lord thy God may turn" etc. (ib. xiii.17-18)

"Observe the month of Abib, and keep the passover unto the Lord thy God: for in the Abib (Deut. xvi.1)
Thou shalt eat no leavened bread with it (ib.13) Six days thou shalt eat unleavened bread: and on the seventh day shall be a feast (unto) to the Lord thy God; thou shalt do no work therein (ib.8) Seven weeks shalt thou number to thee ... seven weeks. And thou shalt keep the feast of weeks unto the Lord thy God .. and thou shalt rejoice before the Lord thy God, And thou shalt remember .. and thou shalt observe and do these statutes (ib.9-12) And thou shalt rejoice in thy feast, ... because the Lord thy God shall bless thee ... In the place which He hath chosen (S.P.) in the feast of unleavened bread, and in the feast of weeks .. every man shall give as he is able, according to the blessing of the Lord thy God which He hath given thee.

(Deut.xvi.11-17).

1. The KATEF of the Passover services has Deut. xvi. 1-8 in full; in this KATEF it is abbreviated as given.
And three proclamations and, 'The Lord, a God, full of compassion and gracious' (Ex.xxxiv.6) and 1'Blessed is our God' to a medium solemn chant, and after it to a lively tune2. 'The Lord is God' (C.p.4) and 'We will bless' (C.p.7) and the addendum, as you can see before you, complete.

'O Lord God, 'Turn from Thy fierce wrath' et seq. (Ex.xxxii.12).

3'The Lord, a God, full of compassion and gracious;et seq. (Ex.xxxiv.6).

Blessed be He who said, 'Seven Sabbaths' et seq. (Lev. xxiii.15).

'The Lord our God is one Lord' (Deut. vi.4).

'Six days thou shalt eat unleavened bread' et seq. (Deut. xvi.8).

'The Lord shall open unto thee His good treasure,' et seq. (Deut. xxviii.12).

1. BM(G)843 omits.
2. Nine headings, each one written triangular shape, in two rows across the page, the first row in red ink, the second black.
3. In the margin.
And 'God of Abraham Thee we shall bless' (C.p.9) and,

'Then sang!...' (Ex.xv.) et seq., and one scripture (scroll) is brought out and, 'We will go' (C.p. 49) and they chant antiphonally 'For in the Name' (Deut. xxxii.3) and 'The Lord is mighty in battle'(Ex. xv.3) and a 'hymn of praise';
(Cf. C.p.288) et seq. and the KATEF of the 'circle'.
and it is, Unleavened Bread, and Sea, and Harvest.

2"While the earth remaineth, seedtime and harvest..(Gen.viii.

Ls.f.175 line 18,

Then they depart from the 'circle' during 'We stand all of us' (C.p.9) first verse and second verse and 'Hear O Israel' (Deut. vi.4) and after finishing there is read a SURA from the MANAT, suitable for the festival. And after it the SEGUDOTH as follows,

'I have lifted up mine hand unto the Lord, God Most High, possessor of heaven and earth' (Gen. xiv.22).

"God is with thee in all that thou doest" (Gen. xxii.22).
'The Lord, before whom I walk, will send His angel with thee and prosper thy way (Gen. xxiv.40) et seq.

Ls.f.175b line 1,

Second,

Blessed be He who said, 'Seven Sabbaths shall there be complete: even unto the morrow after the seventh sabbath

1. In the margin, 'It is correct that there should be said after the 'hymn of praise', Durran, 'Blessed is' (C.p.47) and 'Magnified...'. (C.p.48) all of it', so too BM(8)843 all the relevant phrases containing the 'key' words of the previous KATEF, cf. c.270 line 9. shall ye number fifty days; and ye shall offer a new meal offering unto the Lord (Lev. 15-16).

Third.

'Six days thou shalt eat unleavened bread: and on the seventh shall be a solemn assembly to the Lord thy God: 'thou shalt do no work therein' (Deut. xvi.8).

Then is said, 'The Lord, a God, full of compassion and gracious' (Ex. xxxiv.6) And the priest shall bless and he makes mention according to what accords with the number (of the Omer?) and after it there is said, 'O assembly' (C.p.162) with an additional verse(?). And the chant 'Six days' and three proclamations. And the prayers end with blessing.

May God not cut off to Israel the customary feasts.
ADDITIONAL RUBRICS.

C.p.157 line 4, l. 4b.

Line 4, L.5 f. 4b. The customary order of the slaughtering of the sacrifice, in Mount Gerizim, 'between the evenings'; if the Passover falls on the night of the first evening (of the week), the priest begins the KATEF beginning with 'And God blessed the seventh day' (Gen. ii. 3) and before 'Surely they shall not see the land' (Num. xiv. 23) is said, 'On the sabbath day'.

Line 7, L.6 f. 1b. The customary order of the night of the blessed Passover, at DAKATES, in Nablus, the (Divinely) protected, the prayers of the sacrifice 'between the evenings', the priest begins.

Line 9, L.7 27b The customary order of the night of the blessed Passover on Mount Gerizim; the prayer of the sacrifice 'between the evenings', First the priest begins 'Oh Good One' (C.p. 85?) and they complete it altogether with glorification and devotion, and after they complete it they kneel down to pray, then after they finish it the priest begins,
THE CUSTOMARY ORDER OF THE TABLE.

The customary order of the table, takes place in the Medinah after they come down from Dakates in connection with the customary festival prayers (which are said) after they complete the prayers of the festival at Dakates. If there is a new bridgroom in that year, or a birth, or some great matter of rejoicing affecting the whole community, then they gather together in the house of (rejoicing) and the table is prepared. They all stand up, then the priest begins 'Blessed be' (C.p.47) to a known tune, according to the melody (used) at the time when they raise the sacrifice and all say chants, mention of which preceded in the customary order, from the first of them to the last. And there is said beforehand 'Six days', 'An everlasting statute — on the first' (Ex.xii.17), and three proclamations and the priest says 'Blessed art thou' with the cup in his hand and he mentions the (coming of) the Feast of Unleavened Bread and he says, with the cup (in his hand) to the celebrants 'For a hundred years' (Cp.156) then the remainder of the congregation say (it). When all the company have done so they drink with one another and the high priest repeats one of the previous songs mentioned in the customary order, then the congregation sing lustily. And God knows best.
The customary order of the preparation of the sacrifice is (as follows), when it happens to be a sabbath, the slaughtering of it takes place at noon and the customary order is as precedes but the chant omits 'This is that night' (Ex. xii. 32) and 'Thou shalt therefore keep this ordinance' (Ex. xiii. 10) and before the going down of the sun they raise the sacrifice and they complete the prayers of the night of the Sabbath, according to the customary order, and 'Welcome' (C. p. 114), all of it. And when they begin it they gather round sharing the sacrifice and God knows best. And the prayers of the Sabbath day are the prayers of the Sabbath of the feast mention of which comes in this collection.
GLOSSARY.

The Glossary gives words — in addition to those in the Glossary to Cowley's, The Samaritan Liturgy — for which a special Samaritan usage appears to be warranted by the context in which they occur in the Passover liturgy. They are arranged in alphabetical order according to the first letter of the root, which is followed by the reference to, and form in which, they occur in Cowley's text, and any lexicographical parallels.

I. Table of MSS. & The Services They Contain.

A. For the Feast of the Passover.
B. For the Feast of Unleavened Bread.

II. The Orders of Service.

A. Of the Feast of the Passover.
B. Of the Feast of Unleavened Bread.

The following symbols are used in these tables:

D = Durran
G = Gloria (נַגַּבְנַנֶּה).
K = KATEP
M = Marqah.

For the text, authorship and date of the hymns, reference should be made to Cowley's Indices of First Lines and Authors.

C. Introduction pp. lxxxiii and cvi. respectively.

The Order of Services is based on Cowley's text and is confirmed by the various MSS., in which they are contained (Cf. Tables IA and IB) except where variations are indicated.
