what fruite of immortality

a booke of laudes or praises

for Choir, String Ensemble, Percussion and Narrator

Music by Edward Caine
based on a psalter by Archbishop Matthew Parker (1559-1575)
and psalm settings by Thomas Tallis (1505-1585)
edited by Graham Bier

Commissioned by the Sir Jack Lyons Celebration Award in collaboration with Graham Bier.
Premiered by The 24 and students of the University of York, cond. Graham Bier, narr. Jason Darnell.
Sir Jack Lyons Concert Hall, University of York 20/6/12.

Performance Directions

General

Performance should be accompanied by a slideshow, which can be found in the accompanying CD in Apple Keynote, Microsoft Powerpoint and Adobe PDF format. Slide cues are given in the score.

With some practice the narration could be performed by the conductor.

3. "On the Psaltery (Boya)"

The aim of this movement is to reproduce the sound of a psaltery playing a monody, found in the "(structure)" line. Some creative use of espressivo and dynamics can be used to bring out the monody, but the ratio of the dynamics between the parts must remain constant.

Choir

1. Prelude and 9. Epilogue

Pitches can be cued by either the conductor, by words spoken by the Narrator or specific notes sung by the Counter-tenor solo as indicated.

 = pitch to be held

 = length of pitch (time-space notation)

 = notes joined by a dotted line to be performed simultaneously

syllables sung are based on IPA and derived from the poem:

"It is a glasse: a myrroure bright, for soule to see his state: A garden fayre: all fully dight, with herbes most delicate."	It Is a glas a mlrør brait fɔr sol tu si hɪs stɛt a ɡɑrdʒn fɛr ɔl fuli dait wɪθ hærbz most delɪcɛt
---	---

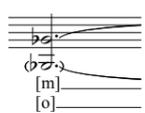

Exaggerate the consonants and the rolled "r"s.

6. Psalm 23 "The Lord so good, who giveth me food"

[m] = held consonant or vowel. Based on the IPA (m, n, ŋ, o, a, ε, i). While performing these pitches, move the tongue to the back of the throat to bring out overtones.

bars 53-56 - overtone gliss optional, if you have someone able to produce clear overtones.

 = b.64 growl tone (produced by vibrating the vestibular fold on its own). This can be sung by any male member of the choir and does not need to be sung from the Tenor 1 position. Optional.

 = b.64 subtone (produced by vibrating the vestibular fold sympathetically an octave below the sung note). Optional and can be sung from any male position.

bb 64-76 Bass 2: slow rising overtone glissando. Can be sung in the isakere voice (produced by vibrating the vestibular fold sympathetically at the same pitch as the sung note) or using a clear voice and placing the tongue at the back of the throat. Optional and can be sung from any male position.

7. Together Clap Ye Hands

Ideally this movement should be performed from memory, but stands can be used to facilitate the clapping of hands.

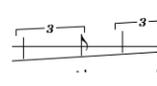

∨ □ = inhale/exhale

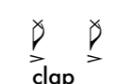

■ □ = air tone. This should be reasonably loud but not too forced.

× ⊗ = sotto voce or whispered

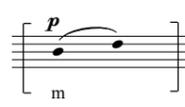

● ○ = voiced

☉ ☊ = sprechgesang

 = undetermined glissando. This should explore the full range of pitch including falsetto.

 = clap your hands

9. Epilogue

 = improvisatory cell. Move between any of the cells at your own pace, leaving lots of space, and in a relaxed manner.

↓ = conductor cue. When the conductor cues you, move in your own time (not immediately) to the cell indicated and then move to the next section, tied across as indicated.

Ensemble

Strings

Resultant harmonics and natural harmonics are notated at pitch rather than an octave down.

 = play the wood of the bridge (on the side or under the strings depending on available time)

 = white noise: play the side of the instrument

 = play the tail-piece

Percussion

 = cup hand and tap the open end of the metal tube

 = blow through the metal tube, angling it sideways to amplify the white-noise sound

1. Prelude and 9. Epilogue

Ensemble is cued by either the conductor or the counter-tenor solo, with a couple of cues coming from the Narrator.

 = short indeterminate note

 = long indeterminate note (line indicates length of time to be held)

3. "On the psaltery"

The level of dynamics is important, and derived from spectral analysis. Each ensemble should be playing as one instrument. The aim is to replicate the sound of a bowed and plucked psaltery.

Percussion - if it proves too difficult to perform both pitches arco in a diad, play only the lowest pitch.

Details of the Premiere

Several aspects of the performance (including the physical setup) of this piece are variable. In particular the arrangement and text of the Tallis settings and the nature of the narration.

The premiere used the following directions:

2. Tallis Tune 4:

As written.

4. Tallis Tune 5:

Verse 1: Solo tenor leads, tenors join in first line in octaves, congregation join in second line, women up an octave, all singing tenor line in unison.

Verse 2: Tenors mf as written, SAB pp singing "loo" in their own parts.

Verse 3: as written.

Verse 4: as written, with 3 sopranos on the tenor line an octave up.

5. Tune 6

Verse 1: as written.

Verse 2: tenor line louder than the other parts.

Verse 3: sopranos and tenors louder than the other parts.

Verse 4: SAT only until bar 44 where basses join in as written.

Verse 5: Altos and basses louder for the first line. Two altos add the tenor line up an octave from bar 44-end.

8. Tune 7

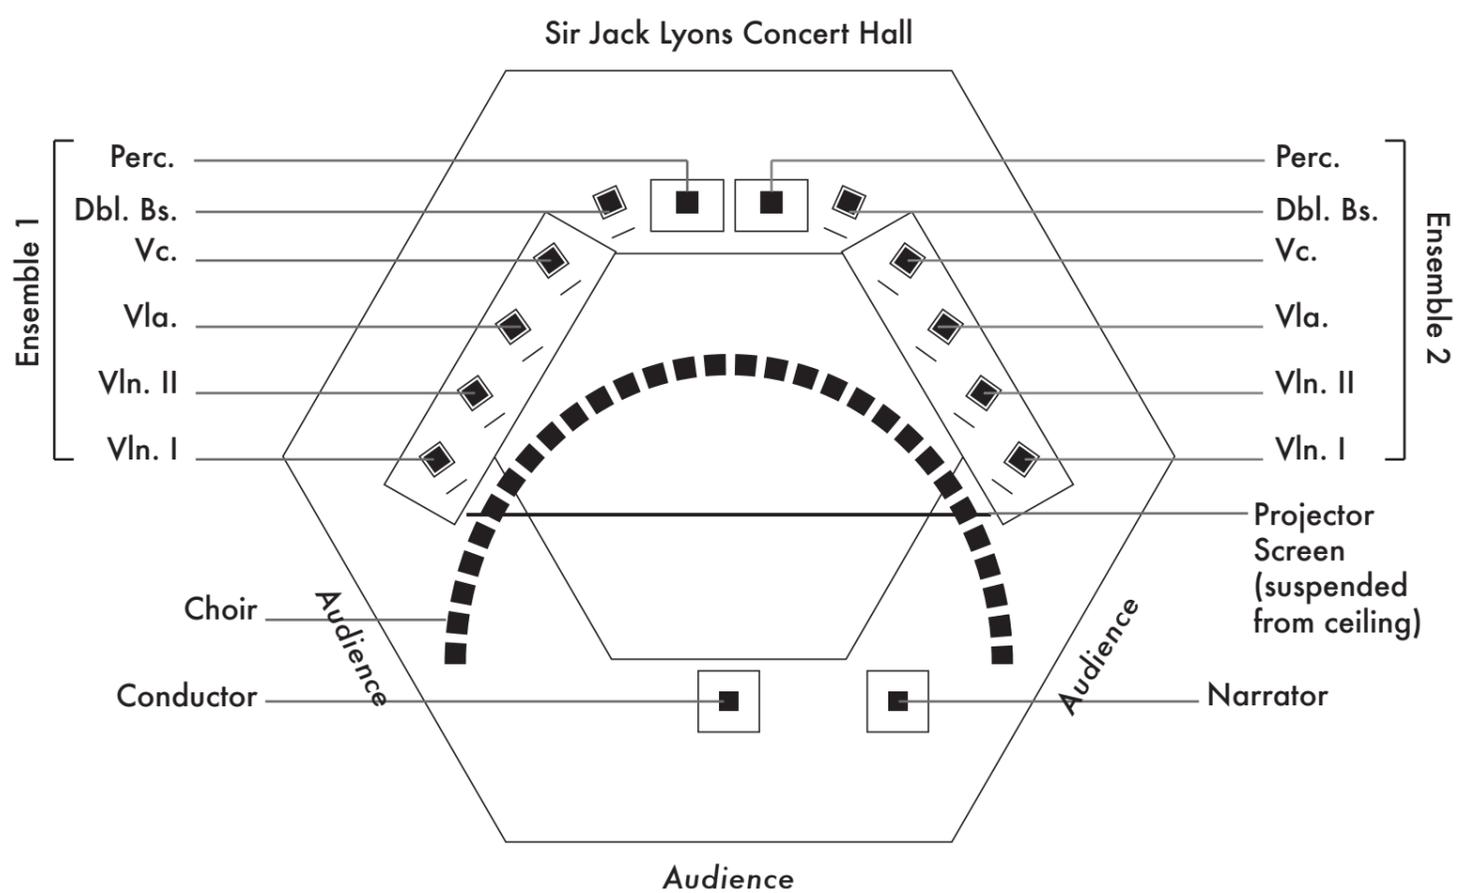

Verse 1: as written

Verse 2: Altos and Tenors on the tenor line for the first half, second half as written.

The Narrator, Jason Darnell, read the part in an approximation of a 17th Century English accent. However, the piece can also be narrated in a modern accent.

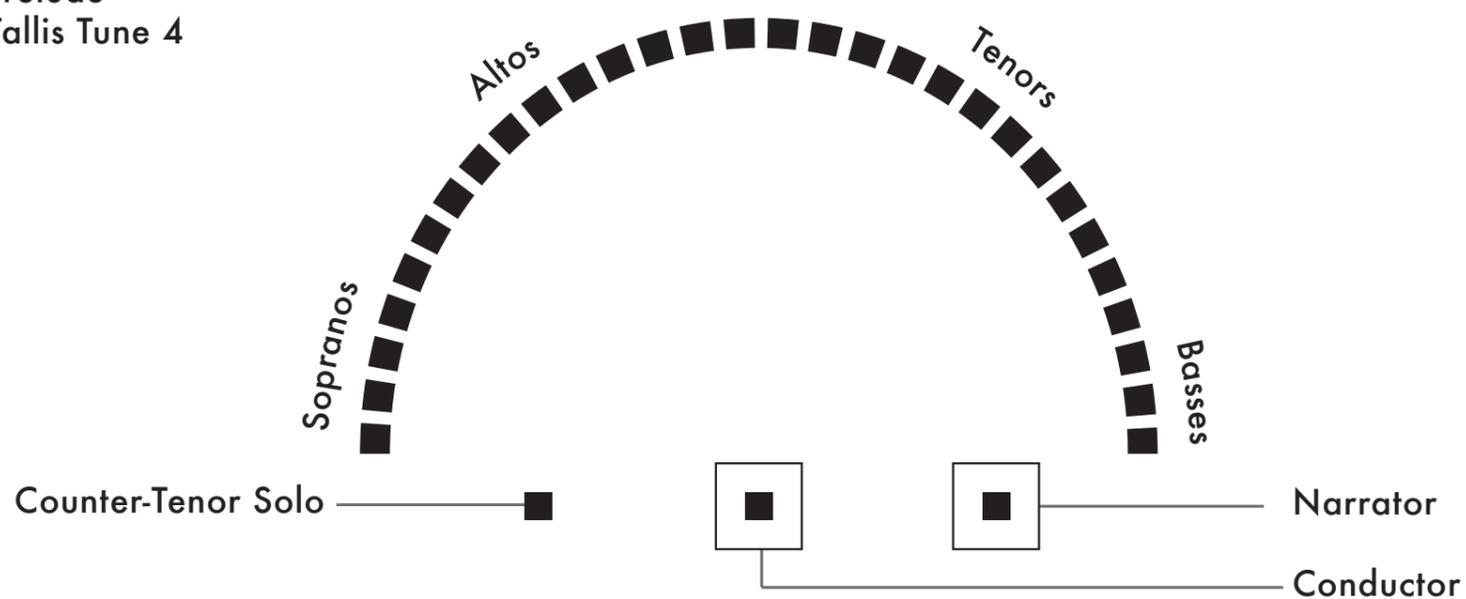

Setup

Setup can be variable, depending on the space available. The two ensembles should be arranged antiphonally. The following is the setup for the premiere of the piece:

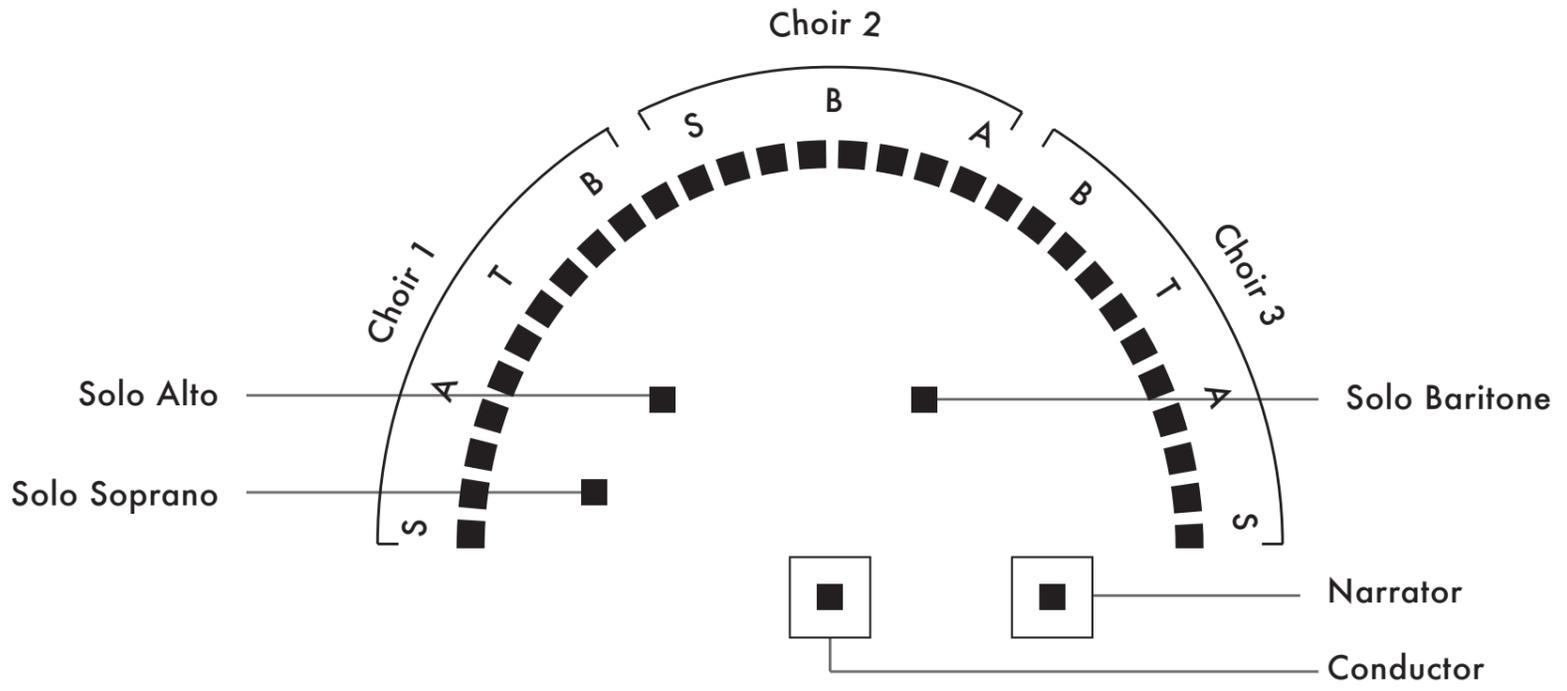

Choir and soloist positions for each movement

1. Prelude
2. Tallis Tune 4

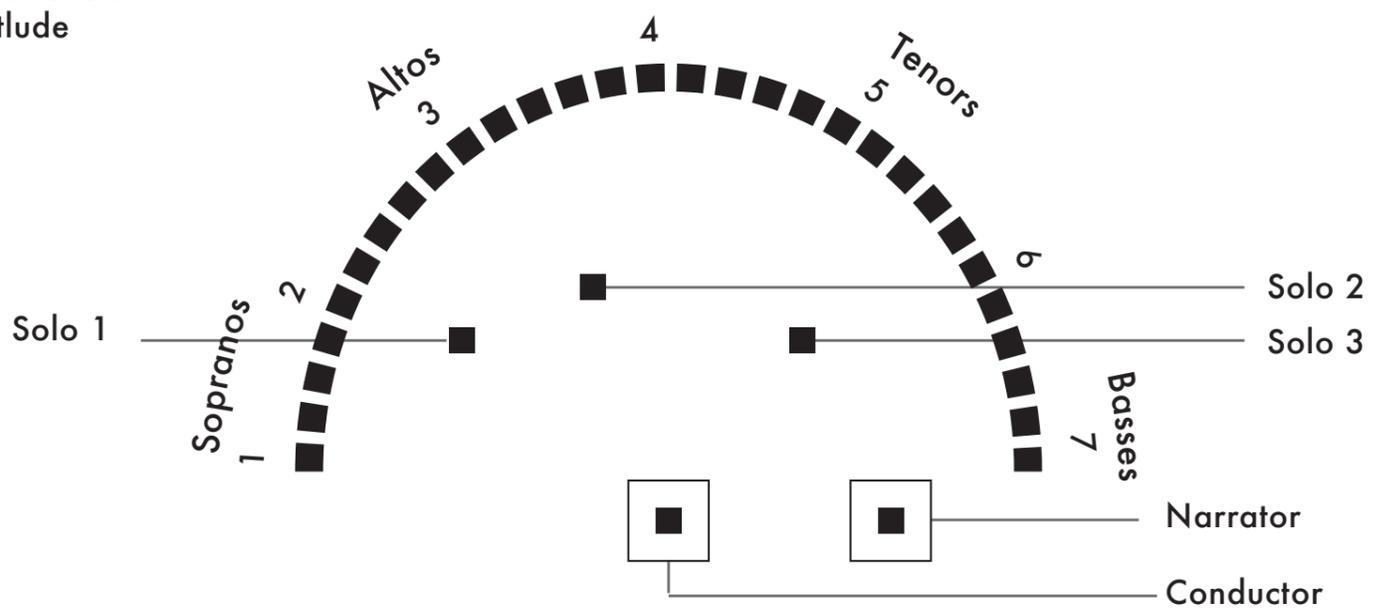

3. On The Psaltery - Choir disperses, Ensemble only.

- 4. Tallis Tune 5
- 5. Tallis Tune 6
- 6. Psalm 23 "The Lord so good, who giveth me food"

- 7. Together Clap Ye Hands
- 8. Tallis Tune 7
- 9. Postlude
