As regards the members of the so-called 'Group A' of these early moneyers [synonymous with Period N9], Stewart Lyon (pers. comm. 12th December 2014) writes:

Please refer to my 1956 paper in BNJ 28, especially pp. 232--3, where I wrote as follows:

"The later hoards are remarkable for the almost total absence of coins of Archbishop Eanbald. Only a handful were found at York whereas at Hexham they represented over one-third of the episcopal coins. Examination of the coins of Eanred in the two hoards shows that the moneyers Cunwulf, Daegberht, Eadwini, Eadwulf, Ethelweard, Herreth, Hwaetred, Tidwini, Wilheah, and Wulfheard accounted for nearly half of the stycas of Eanred found at Hexham, but at York and Bolton Percy the proportion was barely 5%; these moneyers coined stycas with, apparently, a higher silver content than the others, and Cunwulf, Eadwulf and Ethelweard also coined for Archbishop Eanbald." I named them "Group A moneyers" and explained why it could be assumed that their coins, and those of Archbishop Eanbald, were the earliest of the series. Table I on pp.240-1 underpins the argument with some numbers."
