

DAVID

Scott Kovacs

MA by Research

University of York
Theatre, Film and Television
November 2018

Synopsis:

DAVID is the story of a young man living with schizophrenia whose ordinary challenges of daily life are complicated by the interference of auditory hallucinations and delusions. When David discovers his abusive father has recently been released from prison, he must bravely face his demons or destroy the progress he's made

Research:

Based on research of schizophrenia and filmmaking approaches undertaken prior to production, novel surround-sound, visual, and editing techniques were developed and used to enable viewers to experience the central character's mental illness first hand; at times placing the audience inside David's head while in other instances offering them a more objective point of view.

Running time:

00:29:59:15

I declare that this piece of work is a presentation of original work and I am the sole author. This work has not previously been presented for an award at this, or any other, University. All sources are acknowledged as References.

Deposit Licence

Why is a deposit licence required?

To enable future digitisation of your thesis if requested, you need to sign this licence giving permission for your thesis to be deposited in the University of York's e-thesis repository.

This repository supports the long-term preservation of e-prints, and free access to them. To undertake this role, the administrators of the repository need you to confirm the declaration below so we can store, copy and manipulate the material in order to ensure that it can be preserved and made available in the future. This Deposit Licence is designed to give repository administrators the right to do this, and to confirm that the depositor has the right to submit the material to the repository. The Licence is non-exclusive, and the depositor does not give away any of their rights to the repository.

Depositor's Declaration

Covered work

I agree that my work can be deposited in the University of York's e-thesis repository, currently White Rose Etheses Online or the British Library's repository (EThOS), if requested for digitisation at a later date. Research referred to below as "Work" is covered by this Licence and when I deposit my Work in the future, whether personally or through an assistant or other agent, I confirm the following:

Non-exclusive rights

Rights granted to the University of York through this Licence are entirely non-exclusive. I am free to publish the Work in its present version or future versions elsewhere. I confirm that the University of York administrators or any third party with whom the University of York has a Licence to do so may, without changing content, translate the Work to any medium or format for the purpose of future preservation and accessibility.

Deposit in White Rose Etheses Online

I understand that work deposited in White Rose Etheses Online will be accessible to a wide variety of people and institutions - including automated agents - via the World Wide Web. An electronic copy of my thesis may also be included in the British Library Electronic Theses On-line Service (EThOS). I understand that once the Work is deposited, a citation to the Work will always remain visible. In exceptional circumstances, removal of the Work can be requested after discussion with the service administrators; removal is at the discretion of the University of York.

I confirm as follows:

- That I am the author or co-author of the Work and have the authority on behalf of the author or authors to sign this Licence and to hereby give University of York administrators the right to make available the Work in the way described above.
- That the contents of the thesis correspond with those on which the examiners have based their recommendation for the award of the degree.
- That I have exercised reasonable care to ensure that the Work is original, and does not to the best of my knowledge break any UK law or infringe any third party's copyright or other Intellectual Property Right.
- The administrators of the University of York / White Rose Etheses Online do not hold any obligation to take legal action on behalf of the Depositor, or other rights holders, in the event of breach of intellectual property rights, or any other right, in the material deposited.

After the deposit of your examined thesis in WREO, and before you leave the University, you should ensure that your research data is either disposed of securely or is retained and deposited in a suitable data repository. Research data that supports the findings in your thesis would normally be retained, unless there legal, ethical, funder or contractual requirements that would prohibit its retention. For guidance see Sharing, preserving and depositing your data, or contact the Library's Research Support Team for further information or advice lib-research-support@york.ac.uk.

Title of thesis DAVID

Name Scott Kovacs

Signature Scott Kovacs Date 06/03/19