

Contents

Title.....	I
Abstract.....	II
Contents.....	III
List of Illustrations.....	VI
Acknowledgements.....	XIV
Author’s Declaration.....	XV
Introduction.....	1
1. The Great Western Railway.....	8
2. Literature Review.....	13
2.1 Consumption, Advertising and Marketing.....	13
2.2 Selling Transport.....	23
2.3 Selling Holidays and Leisure – The Historical Perspective.....	29
2.4 Selling Holidays and Leisure – The Modern Perspective.....	31
3. Sources.....	35
4. Methodology.....	40
5. Chapter Content.....	45
Chapter One: Marketing Holiday Travel: Theory and Practice on the GWR 1906-1939.....	48
1. Selling Travel Since 1830.....	48
2. A New Dawn - Selling after 1900 – Stage 1.....	61
2.2 Sales Publications and Photographic marketing.....	70
3. Continuity and Change 1921-1929 – Stage 2.....	80
3.1 The GWR Resumes Marketing.....	85
3.2 Explaining Continuity and Change: From the ‘Advertising’ to the ‘Publicity’ Department.....	91
3.3 Explaining Continuity and Change II: Depression, Competition and Social Change.....	96
4. Reinvention 1930-1939 – Stage 3.....	101
4.1 Changing Personnel.....	103
4.2 Modernising Holiday Haunts.....	109
4.3 New Photographic Strategy.....	112
5. Conclusions.....	120

Chapter Two: The Romantic Gaze: Selling Customers a Dream of Britain.....	122
1. Who were the ‘Lovers of the Picturesque’?.....	127
2. The Romantic Gaze 1906-1914.....	138
3. The Anti-industrialism Aesthetic 1920s and 1930s.....	155
4. The Decline of the Romantic Gaze.....	169
5. Conclusions.....	176
Chapter Three: Marketing Family Holidays.....	180
1. The Collective Gaze –Photographic Realism and Fantasy 1906-1914.....	186
2. From Pretty Beaches to Painting Books: Family Marketing in the 1920s.....	199
3. Vignettes of Family life: Marketing Between 1930 and 1939.....	211
4. Conclusions.....	234
Chapter Four: ‘Letting the Ladies Know’: Picturing Women as Customers of Holiday Travel.....	237
1. Selling to Women? GWR Marketing 1906-1929.....	242
2. ‘Letting the Ladies Know’: Women as an Individual Market Segment 1930-1939.....	260
2.1 Picturing the Female Passenger.....	262
2.2 The ‘Girl Next Door’.....	265
2.3 The Cinematic Beauty.....	273
2.4 Fashioning the Passengers.....	280
3. Conclusions.....	289
Chapter Five: Repositioning the Outdoors Leisure Market.....	292
1. 1906-1915: The Hunter, Sportsman and Weekender.....	296
2. 1921-1933: The ‘Serious Camper’: Towards Hiking, Rambling and Camping Guides.....	307
3. Mystery Tours and Aspirational Lifestyles – Repositioning the Outdoors as an Alternative Holiday Destination in the 1930s.....	317
3.1 Escape from the City.....	321
3.2 Looking Good for the Nation.....	327
3.3 Good Country Manners.....	331
3.4 Repositioning the Camping Guides.....	335

3.5 Camping Coaches.....	339
4. Conclusions.....	343
Chapter Six: ‘The Acme of Comfortable Travel’: Picturing Customers as Passengers.....	346
1. Knowing the Passenger.....	350
1.1 Knowing the Passenger: Quantitative Data.....	353
1.2 Knowing the Passenger: Qualitative Data.....	356
1.3 Knowing the Passenger: The Company asks the Customer.....	365
1.4 The Challenge from the Roads.....	367
2. Picturing Passengers in the 1930s.....	370
2.1 ‘My Friends and Fiends’: Picturing the Fellow Traveller.....	380
2.2 ‘From Ordeal to Luxury’: Comfort and Cleanliness.....	386
2.3 ‘To Uphold the Traditions of the GWR’: Picturing the Staff.....	392
3. Conclusions.....	394
Conclusion.....	397
Abbreviations.....	408
Bibliography.....	409